Lewis Guilty Of Contempt, Sentence Set For Today

Federal Attorneys Favor Heavy Fine As Angry Miners Threaten New Strike

(See Joseph Livingston's Column, Page 17)

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

John L. Lewis and his miners union, judged guilty of contempt of court, will be given a sentence today in which "expediency" will play no part.

The reaction from the coal fields was one of blazing anger, with strong threats of a new strike.

Federal Justice T. Alan Goldsborough yesterday found the big union and its president guilty "beyond all reasonable doubt—practically beyond all doubt," of civil and criminal contempt. In a stinging, 30-minute decision, he made it clear that he wants to hand down a heavy punishment.

But he postponed passing sentence for one day. He told Department of Justice attorneys to be ready at 10 a. m. to state their recommendations for a sentence.

Heavy Fine Favored

Government counsel, it was learned, will not call for a jail term. Instead, they will suggest a heavy fine against Lewis and the United Mine Workers' union. The justification will probably be that Lewis is a two-time offender. In December, 1946, Goldsborough judged him in contempt for not obeying a back-to-work court order.

The fine at that time was $10,000 against Lewis and $3,500,000 against the union. The latter was reduced by the Supreme Court to $700,000. Today, the Justice Department will surely recommend a higher figure.

Reports from the Nation's coal pits last night showed the miners in an angry mood. The night shifts of five Birmingham, Ala., mines either walked out or failed to come at all.

Threats From Other Areas

Miners of the Cumberland, Md., region declared flatly that they will not be on the job today. "We won't take it," many said. In Illinois, a miners' representative said the men "won't produce another pound of coal" if Lewis is punished.

"There won't be any use for telegrams ordering the men back to work," he said. "They'll go out and stay out if the sentence sticks."

Early in the day, before Goldsborough's decision, the week-old back-to-work movement, after a

Weight Lifting Policeman Fined For Malingering

Police Pvt. Richard Keith Kallio, 29, who upholds barbells as well as the law, was convicted of malingering yesterday by a police trial board and fined $150.

The trial board ruled, 2 to 1, that Kallio had been guilty of feigning illness and disability. Votes of guilty were cast by Inspector Milton D. Smith, head of the trial board, and Capt. William J. Cunningham, commander of the Tenth Precinct.

Dissenting was the third member of the Trial Board, Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward A. Beard. Beard said he could not see that the evidence proved Kallio guilty of malingering, inasmuch as Dr. William Sager, a member of the board of police and fire surgeons, had testified that Kallio was suffering from a back injury and he had ordered him placed on the sick list.

Kallio, who is attached to the Sixth Precinct, is District AAU heavyweight weightlifting champion. He also is a golfer of some repute. Last Friday it was testified that after reporting sick because of a bad back, Kallio was observed playing golf.

Police Supt. Robert J. Barrett ordered Kallio returned to immediate duty.

President Has Annual Opening-Game Joke

By Arthur Ellis—The Washington Post

Dirksen Calls For Straight D. C. Sales Tax

Lines Up With Horan In Opposing Grocery, Medicine Exemptions

By Edward Ryan
Post Reporter

House District Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) said yesterday he feels the District's proposed sales tax should have no exemptions for food, medicine or other purchases.

Dirksen predicted earlier that a sales tax this year is "unavoidable" if the District's urgent needs for schools and other services are to be met.

His call for a sales tax without exemptions put him in line with Representative Walt Horan (R., Wash.), chairman of the House subcommittee in charge of the proposed 102-million-dollar District budget for the fiscal year starting July 1.

Citizens Testify Today

Agency officials yesterday completed their testimony on the budget in executive session. Today the doors will open at 10 a. m. to more than 30 representatives of Washington organizations for their views on the budget. The hearing will be in the main House Appropriations Committee room on the ground floor, House wing of the Capitol.

School, recreation and welfare programs are expected to be main topics of the citizens' testimony, but some groups have already filed notice that they will ask that the budget be held down to avoid new taxes.

Horan said yesterday there is no way to predict now what size budget his subcommittee will recommend, but he said "we'll go through it with a fine-tooth comb."

Commissioners Back Plan

Horan sees in the sales tax the only hope of giving the District an adequate budget. Washington's Commissioners took the same view when they proposed a budget total some six million dollars more than the revenue that existing tax laws would produce next year.

Their plan is for a 2 per cent general retail sales tax, with exemptions for groceries, medicine and some other items.

Dirksen said that he believes that the most easily administered form of a sales tax is the one with no exemptions at all.

Representative George J. Bates (R., Mass.) chairman of the House District Fiscal Affairs subcommittee, has consistently steered away from the sales tax as the least desirable kind of levy.

Truman Toss Wild; Guess on Outcome Good

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

President Truman opened the 1948 baseball season at Griffith Stadium yesterday with a short flip to Nats hurler Sid Hudson and proved himself a better prophet than pitcher.

A little while before, he had predicted New York would win the ball game eight to four. His guess was on the nail for the Nats and only four short of the Yankees' winning 12 runs.

With Mr. Truman in the presidential box were Mrs. Truman and their daughter Margaret, who joined him during a quick detour by the White House on his way from the Capitol to the game. Mrs. Truman left at the beginning of the sixth inning and created momentary consternation among fans who take their baseball seriously.

Hudson Runs for Catch

The President rose when she left and many fans thought he had missed count and was going through the traditional gesture of standing for luck at the beginning of the seventh. They were reassured when he stood as the next inning opened and 32,000 spectators stood with him and yelled for the luck that wasn't there.

Being a pitcher with a left arm as supple as his right, and vice versa, Mr. Truman juggled the ball from one hand to the other before his throw and grinned at the photographers jockeying for position and calling advice. Some wanted a left-handed pitch and some the opposite and since he couldn't do both, the President took the ball by the seams, as it were, and let go with his left.

It Fell Short

It was an overhand toss and the ball looped upward and fell so short Hudson had to run forward to catch it.

In the box for the ceremonial toss were A. B. "Happy" Chandler, baseball czar; Clark Griffith, president of the Senators; Del Webb, coowner of the Yankees, and the two team managers, Joe Kuhel of the Nats and Bucky Harris of the Yanks. Also in and near the box throughout the game were Government officials and members of Congress who had lunched with the President before the game.

This luncheon is an affair of some 12 years standing, tendered annually at the Capitol before the opening game by Lowell B. Mason of the Federal Trade Commission. A feature of the gathering is a guess at the score by all present

Truman Sees Yanks Wallop Nats in Opener

31,728 on Hand As New York Scores 12-4 Win

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

The Yankees came out swinging for the fences with a seven-run crusher in the first inning yesterday to break the opening game wide open and deal the young and tender Nats a 12-4 beating before President Truman and 31,728 paying customers at Griffith Stadium.

For the Washington fans the afternoon was something less than gala after the ceremonial pitch by the President from the White House box. Two hours of gloom set in after Early Wynn relieved the President of the pitching duties.

The Washington pitching took a rapid and prolonged turn for the worse after the President quit the job. He made the opening toss with a southpaw delivery, a low heave captured in the scramble by Sid Hudson, while the Yankees stood by respectfully.

But the Yankees' respect for pitching ended at that point. Staging an exhibition for the White House, Cabinet and congressional big shots who were a dime-a-dozen in the choice seats, the Yankees whacked Wynn for a 7-0 lead before he could retire the side in the first inning.

The first loud sound was a home run off the bat of Tommy Henrich, the second man to face Wynn. It floated into the temporary bleachers in left field with George Stirnweiss on base. Pitcher Allie Reynolds of the Yankees got into the home run act a bit later with a swat into the same sector that accounted for the Yanks' fifth, sixth and seventh runs of the inning.

The Nats never recovered from that onslaught, though there were brief huzzahs when they countered with three runs of thteir own in the first inning. Reynolds

D. C. Peeping Policemen Case To Have High Court Review

(Court of Appeals rebukes police, prosecutor in decisions. Page B-1)

The "transom peeper" case got to the Supreme Court yesterday and put this question up to the justices:

How far does the law protect people who live in rooming houses, apartments and the like against police raids without warrants?

The case began two years ago, when the police thought Earl H. McDonald, 38, was in the numbers racket. One day three detectives trailed him to a lodging house on 3d st. nw.

The landlady screamed when one detective opened a back window. But he brushed her aside and opened the front door for the other two. Without a warrant, the detectives searched the rooms on the ground floor.

On the second floor, one detective stood on a chair, peeped through a transom and saw two men with numbers slips, adding machines, $968 in money and other tools of the gambling trade. McDonald and Joseph F. Washington, 48, were arrested and given jail terms.

Two justices of the United States Court of Appeals here said the detectives saw a crime going on, so they had a right to pick up the two men. The peeping, said Justices Wilbur K. Miller and Bennett C. Clark, was ungentlemanly but not unlawful.

Justice Henry W. Edgerton dissented, saying Miller and Clark missed the point. The question was not, he said, whether detectives could do their snooping in an unusual way, but whether they could peep from a place where they had no right to be. He added that the decision was a threat to the civil rights of all who live in rooming houses, apartments and the like.

The Supreme Court will hear the case, possibly before June, and say which opinion was right.

DAR Hears Truman Give New Warning

We Lack No Power To Meet Challenge Of Any Aggressor, President Asserts

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

The United States must make it known that "we will not permit the free peoples of the world to be engulfed by any aggressor" if we are to avoid war.

That was the message President Truman gave to the opening session of the fifty-seventh Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution last night.

Delegates, 4000 strong, crammed into Constitution Hall, heard DAR President General Mrs. Roscoe C. O'Byrne read the President's message, in which he declared that "we would be much farther along the road to world recovery but for the determined campaign of obstruction by one great power, which has sought to perpetuate poverty as a means of aggression."

Reference to Soviet

Although the President named no country in his letter to the DAR Congress, it was clear that he referred to the Soviet Union. Members of the convention, which is to stress "a strong America, hea even stronger language from Representative Joseph W. Martin (R., Mass.), who told them:

"The ravages of communism—of treachery within our very midst—are eating away at the foundations of our free government. We will stop this plague of communistic disruption, but we have not begun to do that a minute too soon."

Mr. Truman's message to the DAR Congres was reminiscent of the radio address that President Roosevelt had delivered at the outbreak of the European war. Said President Truman:

"The people of the United States do not want war. It is my firm belief that no nation, regardless of size, wants war. It should be unmistakably clear that no nation could hope to escape indescribable destruction if another war should break out. It is doubtful if civilization itself could withstand the shock. Our best hope of avoiding such a war is to make it known by our words and our actions that we will not permit the free peoples of the world to be engulfed by any aggressor."

"Strength in Belief"

Mr. Truman apologized for being unable to attend the Congress in person. In his message, he said:

"We are known throughout the world as a strong people. What some do not realize is that we do not derive our real strength from material power, but from an indestructible belief in certain spiritual values which we believe apply with equal force everywhere and at all times. When they have been threatened in the past, the American people have risen to protect them with a united strength that would not admit defeat.

"Today the free way of life again is gravely threatened. The basic issues are no longer subject of compromise for they concern principles that lie deep in our national conscience. If we are to serve the best interests of humanity, the fundamental position of the United States must be made unmistakably clear. We must make plain the fact that we lack neither spiritual nor material strength to meet any challenge.

"As a Nation and as a member of the United Nations we have

Plan for 18,000 Ready

Young Proposes Police Check Loyalty of District Employes

The police department would investigate the loyalty of the District's 18,000 employes under a program to be proposed today by John Russell Young, president of the Board of Commissioners.

Young said he would outline his recommendations at a meeting of the Commissioners, the first full board session since February 19, at 10 a. m. in the District Building.

The Commissioner, who supervises police and fire activities in the District, began mapping his program on April 10 after the Civil Service Commission declined to include District workers in the Federal loyalty check.

Young said yesterday he would ask his two fellow Commissioners to:

1. Authorize the Missing Persons Bureau and Special Investigations Squad of the Metropolitan Police Department to check actions and allegiances of District workers.

2. Appoint a committee, headed by a member of the corporation council's office, to perform two functions. The first would be to prepare recommendations on the broad outlines of policy and procedure; then, after the program gets under way, to evaluate police reports and make recommendations for action to the District Commissioners.

3. Designate the Board of Commissioners as the final authority on steps to be taken as a result of the investigations.

Commissioner Guy Mason already has stated that he approves of the loyalty investigation, and believes local police should do the actual checking.

Commissioner Young said his plan is modeled on the Federal loyalty checking program with the District police performing the functions of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and a committee functioning as the Federal Loyalty Board does in the national program.

Commissioner Young said he has not yet considered whether reports will be made public, be made available to congressional committees, or whether employes will be given full specifications of "disloyal activities," and be represented by counsel at hearings.

The commissioner said he believed the committee should include a representative of the corporation counsel's office and "three or four" District government department heads.

The commissioner said he has not discussed the program with Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, but if more help is required to carry out the program, "we'll give it to him.

The Missing Persons Bureau and Special Investigation Squad is headed by Lieut. Harry Blackman. At present it consists of 13 policemen, a policewoman and two clerks. It was organized in the early thirties as the Crime Prevention Bureau.

U. S. and Russian MPs Clash As Americans Halt Kidnaping

Vienna, April 19 (AP).—American and Soviet military police clashed today over an attempt by three Russian soldiers in civilian clothes to kidnap a stateless German woman in the American zone.

It was the most serious encounter between Russian and American police authorities since the start of the four-power occupation.

American authorities said they would make "the strongest possible protest" to the Russians. They gave this account of the incident:

The kidnaping took place this afternoon near the Kahlenberg, a castle overlooking the city.

The woman, identified as Elsa Pfeffer, had left the displaced persons' camp at Cobenzl when a civilian car with the three Russians inside pulled up alongside and forced her into the automobile.

British and French soldiers in an international military police patrol car saw the incident and notified the American driver. The patrol followed the car, forced it into the curb and ordered the Russians to proceed to the nearest American military police district.

At the police station Col. Bernard F. Hurless, American provost marshal, ordered the party to American military headquarters. Captain Kooshin, deputy Russian provost marshal for Vienna, and several Soviet troops, appeared.

Hurless asked Kooshin to instruct the driver of the Russian car to pull into the courtyard behind headquarters to avoid a scene.

Kooshin refused and said, "You will have to use force."

"If we have to, I guess we can," Hurless replied.

An American military policeman dragged the driver from the car. The Russian in the back seat had a gun in the woman's ribs.

Kooshin tried to interfere and Hurless placed him under arrest.

An American tried to drive the car into the courtyard and a Russian pulled the hand brake. Hurless ordered the police patrol car to push the car into the courtyard.

At that point the Russians ceased all resistance and went quietly into the building.

Another loaded pistol was found in the car. Military identity cards of all three men were discovered hidden in the back seat.

Maj. Krupka, the Soviet provost marshal, demanded custody of the woman but refused to say why. Hurless refused to surrender her. In accord with four power agreement the three Russians were turned over to Krupka.

Kooshin insisted the Russians were picnicking in the woods.

First Returns From Milan in Deputy Contest Show Same Trend

Rome, (Tuesday) April 20 (AP).—An avalanche of anti-Communist votes gave Italy's moderate parties a better than 2-to-1 lead over the Communist-led Popular Front early today in the race for control of the Senate.

As the unofficial vote count mounted, the anti-Communist parties steadily widened their margin over the front—a combine of Palmiro Togliatti's Communists and Leftist Socialists.

Information released unofficially by the interior ministry showed that from 6511 of Italy's 41,647 voting sections, Premier Alcide de Gasperi's Christian Democrats had rolled up 2,050,129 votes. Their allies, the anti-Communist Socialist Unity Party, reached 380,000.

The Front had 1,187,607 votes behind the informal anti-Communistwosome.

World Watches Election

The elections, held Sunday and yesterday to fill seats in the Senate and Chamber of Deputies, were watched all over the world as a symbol of the political struggle between East and West. The United States has poured more than two billion dollars in rehabilitation aid into Italy and international communism has guided the Italian Communists—largest Communist group in the world outside Russia.

Thus far, returns from the deputy contests have been received only from Milan where an early showing gave the Christian Democrats a two-to-one lead.

The popular vote will be reflected almost exactly in the Chamber of Deputies because that house is elected by proportional representation. The present trend, if continued, would mean an anti-Communist Chamber. It was expected that returns in the deputy contests would reach a strong flow late today.

The national vote will fill the Chamber's 574 seats and 237 of the Senate's 356 seats. The other 119 Senators will be filled by nomination.

Outline of Struggle

[The thing to watch in the Italian election results will be the size of the Communist-front minority in terms of seats in the new Chamber of Deputies.

[Because of the multi-party system in Italy, which makes coalition government necessary, de Gasperi and his allies will need something like a two-to-one majority over the Communist front in the chamber.

[If the Communists and their left-wing Socialist allies win more than 40 per cent of the seats, they will be strong enough to make life difficult or impossible for any anti-Communist government.

[If the Communist Front should win between 30 and 40 per cent of the seats—and nearer 30 than 40—the result would be fairly satisfactory to De Gasperi, who could then form a government without having to depend on the Communists' allies for support.

[If the election gives the Communist Front less than 30 per cent, it will be a smashing anti-Communist victory.—Editor's Note.]

Returns Incomplete

From the scattered, incompelte figures, it was impossible to determine to what party or coalition control of the Senate will pass. There has not yet been a complete listing of the 44 minor parties in the election.

Only in the tiny village of Val d'Aosta in the Alps had a candidate obtained the necessary 65 per cent of the vote to win a senatorial seat.

If, as will be the case in a great majority of the Senate contests, the required 65 per cent is not obtained by a candidate, the lower ranking candidates will begin transferring their votes in trading deals. The juggle of votes, which may take several days, will continue in each district until one candidate obtains 65 per cent.

Thus because of this complicated system, the total national vote for each party may not be reflected precisely in the makeup of the senate. Small anti-Communist parties may poll several hundred thousand votes nationally, but may not win a single senate seat because they failed to get enough in any one place.

For this reason many anti-Communist votes may be lost in the senate race and the two-party front

Armed Forces Divided Over Defense Funds

3 Billion Dollar Program Awaits Pentagon Ruling

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Congress learned yesterday that the armed forces have been unable to agree over a division of the Administration's three-billion-dollar supplemental defense program—much less the bigger expansion plans advanced on Capitol Hill.

Chairman Chan Gurney (R., S. Dak.), of the Senate Armed Services Committee, disclosed the stalemate in announcing that the group had voted to await a "unified report from the Pentagon" before reaching a determination of the draft, 70-group Air Force and universal training issues themselves.

Meanwhile, leaders of the House Armed Services Committee prepared legislation to give the Nation a 837,000-man Army and substantially larger National Guard and reserve forces.

To Introduce Bill Today

Following a meeting with Representatives Dewey Short (R., Mo.) and Carl Vinson (D., Ga.), ranking majority and minority members, committee staff members and Army chiefs, Chairman Walter G. Andrews said he would introduce his draft-manpower bill in the House today.

It will add the 55,000 more soldiers asked by Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Army chief of staff, last week, take the limits off National Guard and Reserve enlistments and make other major changes in the version now before the House committee, members said.

Earlier the House group heard Grant Reynolds, chairman of the "Committee Against Jim Crow in Military Service and Training" announce the group is launching a nationwide campaign of civil dis-

Film Writer Found Guilty Of Contempt

John Howard Lawson Faces $1000 Fine, Possible Jail Term

Film Writer John Howard Lawson late yesterday was found guilty of contempt of Congress.

Lawson faces a $1000 fine or 4 to 12 months in jail, or both, for refusing to tell the House Un-American Activities Committee whether he ever was a Communist Party member.

Justice Edward M. Curran left Lawson free on bond until he calls him up for sentence, which probably will not be until nevt week.

Lawson, the writer of "Algiers," Smashup," "Blockade" and many other hit movies, was the first of 10 Hollywood notables brought to trial here for defying the House committee. They were called as witnesses last fall, when the committee was investigating the alleged power of Communists in the movie industry. The 10 refused to answer, when asked whether they were Communists themselves.

Next to go on trial will be Dalton Trumbo, also a writer, who is due to be called before Justice David A. Pine in the District Court next week.

When the jury had left the court, Justice Curran called Defense Counsel Ben Margolis to the bar and reminded him that last week he accused the justice of improper conduct. At that time, Curran told Margolis he might be in contempt of court.

Curran asked yesterday whether the lawyer meant to say that he was acting from wrong motives or anything of the sort. Margolis said that he did not, that in Los Angeles, where he practices law, that is what a lawyer would say if he did not agree with the judge. Curran then dropped the contempt proceeding.

Six Still On Trial

Acquittal Directed by Court For Three Top Union Leaders

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

A court-directed verdict of acquittal yesterday freed the three top union leaders in the District's labor conspiracy case, leaving six defendants still on trial.

Acquitted were Joseph V. Moreschi, president of the 400,000-member International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers Union (AFL); Achilles Persion, secretary-treasurer of the international, and John W. Garvey, international organizer.

While Special Prosecutor Leo A. Rover declared that the three failed to prevent looting of $75,000 to $100,000 in union funds from locals here, at Quantico, Va., and La Plata, Md., after hearing reports of such looting, District Court Justice Alexander Holtzoff said:

"You cannot conspire by neglect. It would be necessary, to prove conspiracy, to show that these defendants entered into an agreement to embezzle . . . the court does not feel there is any evidence . . . which a jury could be justified in inferring (they) . . . entered into an agreement with the other six defendants."

The directed verdict was made on the basis of Rover's opening statement to the jury. Justice Holtzoff had denied a similar motion last Friday, but the motion was renewed yesterday and he said he reconsidered the case over the weekend.

Rover said the Government had no evidence that the three personally profited from the alleged embezzlement, but said their "willful neglect . . . goes to the very heart of decency and honesty in which these unions are run," and affects "the perpetuation of the labor movement."

U. S.-Born Darol Froman Was a Canadian Who Pioneered in Manhattan Project

Dr. Darol K. Froman, 41-year-old scientific director of the Eniwetok Atomic Weapons Proving Grounds, was born in the United States and yet is a naturalized American citizen.

Directs Atomic Proving Ground

DR. DAROL K. FROMAN

He was born October 23, 1906, at Downs, Wash., of Canadian parents. Later the family returned to Canada, where the famed nuclear physicist spent his boyhood. He was graduated from the University of Alberta in 1926, and received his master's degree there in 1927.

Froman is one of the pioneers of the Manhattan Project—the Army-operated unit that developed the atomic bomb. He joined it at the metallurgical laboratory of the University of Chicago in 1942. In 1943 he went to Los Alamos, N. Mex., where he remained until chosen for his present post last December.

He had two posts at Los Alamos. The first was head of the electronics division. The second, an Atomic Energy Commission spokesman said, "must remain unnamed."

In 1928 and 1929 Froman was a fellow at the University of Chicago, where he won his Ph. D. in 1930. He then taught at Alberta briefly, leaving in 1931 to teach at McGill University, Montreal, for 10 years.

He taught at the University of Dencer a year before joining the Manhattan Project. While there he studied cosmic rays and was director of the Mount Evans High Altitude Laboratory.

It was while in Denver that he decided to give up his Canadian citizenship, and applied for his first papers. Friends say they were completed a year ago.

Mrs. Froman also was a Canadian citizen. She, too, has applied for naturalization. They have two daughters, Kay, 13, and Eva, 4. While at Los Alamos Froman bought a ranch in the Rio Grande Valley. His father helps operate it.

Truman Hails Cuban Tie at Joint Session

President Truman yesterday told Congress the world can remain at peace if all Nations genuinely desire it, and "respect the freedom and the rights of others."

Mr. Truman spoke at a colorful joint session commemorating half a century of Cuban independence, and American participation in freeing the island republic from Spanish rule.

Both the President and Cuban Ambassador Guillermo Belt, who responded, recommended the record of harmony between the two nations as an example to the rest of the world.

Allusion to Russia

Mr. Truman mentioned no other country by name but plainly alluded to present taut relations with Russia when he clipped his speech short with this line.

"This is a truth the whole world should take to heart—particularly at this time."

The prepared, but unread, ending of his speech went on to say:

"The will to avoid war and to seek an understanding that precludes all violence and aggression is one of the most profound and universal concepts held by the people of this earth.

"I am convinced that the plain people of the world, of whatever nationality, desire nothing more passionately than freedom for themselves and others—freedom to be left in peace to earn their daily bread after their own fashion—freedom to leave their neighbors in peace to do likewise.

"This is the great issue of our day: Whether the universal longing of mankind for peace and freedom shall prevail, or whether it is to be flouted and betrayed. . . ."

Why Speech Was Cut

Charles Ross, presidential secretary, said Mr. Truman cut his speech short because of the time schedule, but holds to all of the ideas expressed.

Speaking in English, Ambassador Belt recalled the congressional resolution adopted just 50 years ago, declaring Cuba to be free of Spanish rule. Six days later Congress declared war on Spain.

Said the Cuban Ambassador: "Our confused and turbulent world can derive a great lesson from that resolution which genuinely an sincerely expressed the sentiments of the American people."

Record of Friendship

He called the 50-year record of friendship an example of how two nations different in language, traditions, culture and size can be united by strong bonds of mutual respect and confidence.

Both speakers were warmly received. The center aisle, which has abruptly divided the applause during the President's recent appearances, disappeared for this occasion. Galleries were full, and except for the Supreme Court, busy Washington turned out with the House and Senate membership.

A red-coated Marine drum and bugle corps sounded ruffles and flourishes as the flags of the two nations were presented by a dress-uniformed color guard. The Marine Corps orchestra played the Cuban National anthem and songs of the Spanish-American war period.

Soviet-Bound Air Equipment Seized by U. S.

Newark, N. J., April 19 (AP).—United States Attorney Edgar H. Rossbach filed suit today in Federal Court on behalf of the Government to take possession of 10 cases of merchandise consigned to Russia that were seized by customs officials at a Jersey City pier.

The petition stated two of the cases contained flight recorders and eight cases contained photographic recording paper. It added some of the equipment was for possible use in pilotless aircraft or guided missiles.

This was the first indication that Federal authorities in Jersey City had seized Russian-bound materials.

No declarations, the petition added, were filed with the Government or with Moore, McCormack Lines, Inc., shipping agents, in accordance with presidential proclamation.

The cases were seized at the Claremont terminal, Jersey City, and inspected first by customs officials April 1, the petition stated. The U. S. Army Signal Corps inspected the shipment April 7, the petition added.

The petition did not state the identity of the shipper.

According to the petition, the cases were addressed to: M. V. T., Moscow, U.S.S.R. Ingenenoe Vravlenie Roder No. A1C 29-80-64041. Trans. No. E 1041."

The cases were labeled "Delicate Instruments. Don't Drop. Optical Recorder," the petition stated.

Candidate Bludgeoned In New Jersey Town

Somers Point, N. J., April 19 (AP).—A Republican candidate for freeholder, at whom two shots were fired last Friday night, was struck down early today, and a lighted cigaret apparently was ground out on his face by his assailant.

Ted Meskers, 32, son-in-law of Police Chief William Morrow, was found unconscious in the street. He was struck from behind, and could give no description of his attacker.

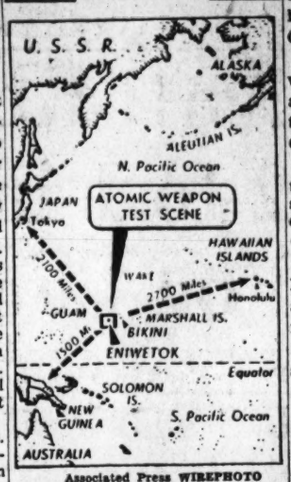
Atom Weapon Given Tests At Eniwetok



Associated Press WIREPHOTO
Pointer indicates Eniwetok atoll in Marshall Islands where "an atomic weapon" has been tested

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

An "atomic weapon" has been tested at the proving grounds of the Atomic Energy Commission on Eniwetok Atoll in the Marshall Islands, the Atomic Energy Commission announced yesterday.

The date of the test, and the nature of the weapon was not made public. Whether it is a new weapon or an improvement on the ones used in the previous six known nuclear blasts also was not made clear.

Unofficial speculation, centering in Honolulu, has been that a guided missile with an atomic warhead might have been tested.

More Information Given

A terse eight-line announcement included this slight additional information:

"A classified report of the best results is being made to the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy of the Congress.

"The test was conducted under full security restrictions of the Atomic Energy Act of 1946, and pursuant to the provisions of the Act, the public inssuance of further information concerning the test is not permissible at present."

Details are the secret of a mere handful of persons. They include the carefully-screened scientists and technicians of ATC, and the few military men who took part.

3 Previous Tests Made

Previous use of atomic weapons included three tests and two in military action. In order they were:

June, 1945: a test bomb in New Mexico.

August 6, 1945: at Hiroshima, Japan, when the world learned for the first time of the sucessful control of atomic energy for military purposes.

August 9, 1945: at Nagasaki, Japan, with devastating results.

July 1, 1946, at lonely Bikini Atoll in the Pacific, over a fleet of navy vessels abandoned there for the test. Five warships were sunk, six badly damaged.

July 25, 1946: an underwater test, also at Bikini. This sank the old battleship Arkansas and eight other vessels, including the aircraft carrier Saratoga.

A third deep, underwater test, scheduled for Bikini, was canceled.

The fact that the Atomic Energy Commission was establishing a base for testing atomic weapons was first made known last July 22. ATC announced then that it was "establishing proving grounds in the Pacific for routine experiments and tests of atomic weapons."

Joint Task Face Created

On December 22 ATC announced the creation of a new military unit to be known as "Joint Task Force 7" to construct the plant and aid in the tests. This force, including Army, Navy and Air Force personnel, was to administer the proving ground and provide the ships, planes and troops required for the tests.

Dr. Darol K. Froman, 41, a nuclear scientist who worked on the Mahattan Project during war years, was announced as scientific director. A former University of Denver professor, he also had worked on cosmic rays.

Yesterday's announcement opened a week in which President Truman will renominate the five members of the commsision.

Presidetnial Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said Chairman David E. Lilienthal and his associates have all agreed to accept new appointments. The nominations will run from one to five years, so that one vacancy will occur each year.

Ross would not say the length of the new term to which each commission member will be nominated, subject to Senate confirmation.

Their present terms expire in August. Besides Lilienthal, the members are Robert F. Bacher, Sumner T. Pike, Lewis L. Strauss and W. W. Waymack.

At the Atomic Energy Commission, meanwhile, a spokesman denied a published report that the commissioners had agreed on the recommended length of term for each member. He added that the commission made no recommendations on this matter to the White House.

Armed Forces Divided Over Defense Funds

obedience in protest against racial segregation in the armed services.

Reynolds, a member of the New York State Correction Commission, showed the House committee a card he had signed pledging that he would not be drafted for "Jim Crow military service."

He said that other Negroes would be asked to sign the pledges and that an order for 100,000 buttons—inscribed "Don't Join a Jim Crow Army"—has been placed.

The buttons will be sold outside the White House and Congress, said Reynolds, a former Army chaplain.

Gurney Reveals Dispute

Chairman Gurney revealed the Pentagon dispute over money after a closed session of the Senate committee. Defense Secretary James Forrestal informed the group, he said, that his promised report on a "balanced," unified expansion of the armed services will not be ready before Wednesday.

Forrestal had asked the Joint Chiefs of Staff for recommendations on a balanced arms program which includes a 70-group air force and some firm estimates of its cost. The Defense Chief's proposals based on their findings had been expected last week.

Gurney said that Forrestal was unable to promise this by Wednesday, though he hoped to have it ready by then. The Senate committee, however, agreed to meet that day, anyway.

He said they learned that the three armed services "never have gotten together on an allocation of the money under the three billion supplemental defense" plan first proposed to Congress nearly a month ago.

And the Senate leader added that "from hearsay" he understood "the nearest they can get together is a division of a 3.6 billion dollar total."

The three billion dollar expansion proposed by President Truman and Forrestal would provide a bolstered 55-group Air Force, a 782,000-man Army and a strengthened Navy. But the House, disregarded Administration pleas for "balanced" defense forces, overwhelmingly approved funds to start building a 70-group USAF program.

Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.) urged swift action on the Air Force expansion in a speech yesterday on the Senate floor. "No one could claim," he declared, "that air power alone will be enough—but we must have it soon."

And while the Senate Armed Services Committee decided to await Forrestal's "unified recommendations before acting, an influential figure on Capitol Hill warned that the wait must not be long.

Chairman Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) of the Senate Appropriations Committee, issued a statement backing "prompt congressional authorization of a 70-group Air Force." He had been quoted over the weekend as favoring a "go slow" policy and supporting only a 55-group force.

Bridges, who is also a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, said he was hopeful that Forrestal's recommendations would be sent to this group "immediately." "But in any event," he added, the Senate Appropriations Committee "is prepared to act swiftly regarding air force expansion and any other national security matters placed before us."

Kept Away From Game

In this connection, Gurney said that Forrestal had informed the Senators that he had "told the generals and admirals they couldn't go to the opening ball game" yesterday because of the need for speeding the program.

Congress has to have a unified recommendation from the Pentagon, Gurney insisted, because "requests unilaterally presented are wrong." When a reporter remarked that unification of the armed forces didn't seem to be working, the Senator remarked:

"By golly, it's got to work."

The draft bill to be introduced by Representative Andrews today will be the first such measure to be formally introduced in the House. House committee hearings have been based on a "committee print" prepared by Andrews after consultatoin with other members of the group and partially based on Administration recommendations.

Changes Proposed

According to Representative Short, the bill will carry the following changes over the unofficial version on which the hearings have been held:

1. Increase in the authorized strength of the Army from 782,000 to 837,000 officers and men. With present totals for the Navy and Air Force unchanged, this would give the Nation active armed forces totaling 1,999,000 men.

2. Remove the earlier version's manpower limits on the National Guard and organized reserve branches of the Army, Navy and Air Force. This would permit men of draft age to enlist in one of these forces up until the enactment date of the draft act and be exempt from induction—within limits of strength imposed by appropriations.

3. Thereafter, Short said, youths under the age of 18 years, six months, could enlist in the Guard or organized reserves and be exempt from draft if vacancies exist. Ceilings would be set in the annual appropriations bills.

4. Draftees or others in the armed services would not be entitled to the educational, loan and other benefits of the GI Bill of Rights, as under the prior version. They would be allowed to take out Government life insurance.

5. No one would be drafted until three month instead of 60 days after the bill became law. This would postpone any actual inductions at least until September.

6. Maj. Gen. Lewis Hershey, USA., retired, would be eligible to head the Selective Service System. Military men were barred by the earlier text.

Reynolds' proclamation of a civil disobedience program had been made earlier before the Senate Armed Services Committee. A. Philp Randolph, president of the AFL Pullman Porters Union, then joined him in the threat.

Representative F. Edward Hebert (D., La.) commented yesterday:

"If an advance copy of this statement has been sent to the Kremlin, I am sure theer is great rejoicing in Russia today."

Under questioning, Reynolds said he "didn't like Russia," and despised "fellow travelers" "Communism stands for slavery," he declared.

3 Powers to Talk On German's Future

For Note to Italy

Labor Party May Expel Left Wingers

London, April 19 (AP).—Some left-wing members of the British Parliament may be thrown out of the Labor Party because of a telegram of good wishes sent to Italy's pro-Communist Socialists, a Labor Party spokesman said today.

Such an action would constitute the first stringent disciplinary action taken against rebels among the Labor Party's heavy majority.

The spokesman said Laborite John Platts-Mills "made a vague admission" he sponsored the message. One independent Socialist and 37 members of Parliament are alleged to have signed the telegram.

The Daily Herald, organ of the Labor Party, called the incident an "escapade too dangerous to be ignored."

De Gasperi's Party Leads

may make a better showing in the senate.

The complete national senatorial vote may be known later today, but the distribution of senate seats will probably not be known for several days.

The makeup of the senate is important because the government must have a majority in both houses. A senate dominated by the Popular Front probably would not approve an anti-Communist government. The senate and chamber will choose a national president May 10, who in turn will name the premier to form the Italian republic's first government.

There is no set percentage of chamber or senate seats required for participation in the government. Italian Communist have claimed they were "robbed" because De Gasperi kept them out of his government although they held 30 per cent of the constituent assembly's seats.

Voting Is Peaceful

If it should get more seats in this election than the Christian Democrats, Italy's biggest party, the Popular Front probably would claim the right to form the government.

De Gasperi, however, has warned the Communists he will hold power "by force," if necessary, and that he is capable of doing it. In the last days of the campaign, the army and police put on impressive mobile shows of force which resulted in elections marked by a lack of expected violence.

Returns from Florence gave the anti-Communists a better than three-to-two lead in that supposedly dependable part of the "Red north." Unofficial returns showed the Christian democrats received 109,084 votes, other anti-Communists 29,275 and the Popular Front 86,013.

Returns from 812 of Milan's 903 sections gave the Christian Democrats 306,129 votes to 233 for the front.

Dr. Paolo Canali, the premier's secretary, said De Gasperi and his security advisers talked over methods of dealing with "Plan K." Rightist newspapers in Rome said the plan might be put in operation by the Communists tomorrow.

The Communists, denying they were planning any such move, bitterly assailed the non-Communist press for reviving the charges. A member of the Communist Party's central committee called upon government authorities to declare officially that "Plan K" does not exist.

The plan, first reported months ago, was said by the Giornale Della Sera to have been brought up to date for a Communist defeat in the election. This was purported to be the plan's new form:

Extreme Lefist newspapers would publish sensational election victory claims. Communists would take control of communications, especially in the strategic north. Workers would be armed and sent into factories.

De Gasperi Consults Leaders

De Gesperi saw Interior Minister Mario Scelba, Minister of Merchant Marine Paolo Cappa, and Defense (Army, Navy and Air) Minister Cipriano Facchinetti. Canali told a reporter:

"The plan was discussed. It may even be on paper. There have been reports of many such plans."

U. S., Britain, France Conference Slated To Get Started Today

London, April 19 (AP).—The United States, Britain and France will begin tomorrow the task of haping western Germany's future as a separate state.

Political and economic objectives will be covered in the three-power talks to be held behind closed doors.

Groundwork for the meeting was laid last month in a 10-day conference. United States Ambassador Louis Douglas said those sessions resulted in the greatest progress in producing decisions since the end of the war.

The three powers agreed to give western Germany a major role in the European Recovery Program, a federalized form of government and to place the mineral-rich Ruhr Valley under international control.

The new conference will go on from there. As in the first meeting, the Soviet Union will not be represented. No invitation was issued to the Russians.

High on the agenda is a move to merge the French occupation zone with the already economically merged British-American zones of Germany.

4-Power Austria Talks Face Another Delay

London, April 19 (NYHT).—The four-power talks on a peace treaty for Austria were confronted today with a new delay. Yugoslavia informed the Foreign Ministers' deputies that its memorandum on territorial claims and repaartions would not be available until next week at the earliest.

U. S. Forming New Army In Germany, Is Charge

Berlin, April 19 (AP).—Berlin's Communists press charged today that the United States is organizing a new German army to be headed by Field Marshal Gerd von Runstedt, commander of German troops at the 1944 battle of the Ardennes.

The Russian licensed National Zeitung claimed most of Hitler's former general staff already had set up headquarters at Kassel in the American Zone.

French Prepare Plans To Bolster Defense

Paris, April 19 (U.P.).—The French government today prepared a series of bills for parliament to bolster the nation's defense through "military reorganization."

Premier Robert Schuman did not specify the nature of their organization.

Gov. Dewey Wins 2 Kentucky Delegates

Albany, N. Y., April 19 (AP).—Governor Dewey today won two delegates to the Republican National Convention from one Kentucky district.

James C. Hagerty, the Governor's executive assistant, announced that Dewey had been notified that delegates pledged to support his candidacy had been selected in the Ninth Kentucky District.

Twenty-three additional delegates will be selected at district conventions still to be held, Hagerty added.

De Gasperi's government marshaled 330,000 troops and police for the election. Canali pointed out that these security forces are on the alert thorughout the country and said he could not see how a Communist uprising could succeed.

De Gesperi said he was "very encouraged" on the basis of the count thus far. Like other major political leaders, however, the premier withheld any prediction about the final outcome until fuller figures are at hand.

Because of the complicated voting system used the exact distribution of the Senate's 237 seats probably will not be known before Thursday.

Despite spotty weather, an estimated 90 per cent of Italy's 29 million eligible voters cast ballots for the first parliament of the Italian republic. This maybe a world record for a free election.

Throughout the last month of the campaign, as international tension grew, orators pounded home the message that Italy had to choose—perhaps for all Europe—between communism and democracy, between the East and the West, even between war and peace.

Army Ruling Galilee City, Haganah Says

Jerusalem, April 19 (AP).—Haganah, the Jewish militia, said tonight it had imposed martial law in Tiberias, on the shores of Gallilee, after Arabs had evacuated the historic city.

Jewish sources said the Arab evacuation left Tiberias the third largest all-Jewish community in the world. Haganah said the martial law was declared "to protect properties evacuated by Arabs and to guarantee the sanctity of holy places."

(A communique issued by the Arabs said "heavy fighting" was going on in Tiberias.)

Police said they were investigating a report by Arabs of the village of Kabir, near Haif, that Jews took six Arabs from a Jewish armored car near there and shot them. The police said they found the bodies of nine Arabs "all of whom had been shot and badly disfigured", and one wounded Arab.

An unidentified band of armed men today held up a truck carrying an estimated $80,000 worth of gold to a bank in Tel Aviv. The men escaped before Haganah military police could reach the scene. British Military courts, was ab-

Ways and Means Clerk Replaced

The House Ways and Means Committee voted yesterday to replace James A. Tawney as its chief clerk. Gordon Grand, jr., New York attorney, was selected to succeed him.

No immediate explanation was given for the action, except that the change was requested by Chairman Knutson (R., Minn.).

Knutson sponsored Tawney four years ago for the job as the committee's Republican clerk, and he became chief clerk when the Republicans took control of Congress last year.

Tawney is a native of Winona, Minn.

President Asks Funds for Ships

President Truman asked Congress yesterday for $65,163,879 for expanded merchant ship construction and other Maritime Commission costs. He called it part of the defense program.

This money is in addition to $39,500,000 previously asked for the Maritime Commission for the year beginning July 1.

Mr. Truman's request was made in a letter to House Speaker Martin (R., Mass.).

On Trusteeship

U. S. to Give Palestine Views to U. N.

Lake Success, April 19 (AP).—The United States will lay its Palestine trusteeship ideas before the United Nations Assembly's political committee tomorrow, the American delegation said tonight.

An authoritative source familiar with Slav policy said, meanwhile, that the Russian bloc in the Assembly might demand U. N. control of middle eastern oil.

This source declared oil is one of the biggest factors in the Holy Land case. He added that international control under the U. N. would make the Palestine issue less complicated.

An Washington Orders

The American decision to start the trusteeship ball rolling was taken on orders from Washington, it was reported.

Informed sources said a paper to be put on the comittee table is merely a rough sketch based on the U. N. proposed trusteeship plan for an international set-up for Jerusalem, which has been broadened to take in all of Palestine. To this U. N. proposal, these sources added, the United States has added some 15 points giving its views on a trusteeship.

The U. N. Palestine Partition Commission decided at a closed meeting here to shelve work on a provisional council of government for a Jewish country in Palestine.

The hint of a possible Russian-bloc move came as the Assembly voted 44 to 0, without debate, to send the Palestine issue to the 58-member political committee tomorrow. The 6-nation Russian and satellite group and four other partition supporters abstained on this vote.

Stiff Fight Mapped

There were indications that Russia's Andrei A. Gromyko, an advocate of the U. N. plan to partition Palestine, is mapping a stiff fight to save the U. N. scheme for separate Jewish and Arab countries in Palestine.

Thus far the only document before the political committee is a report by the U. N. Palestine Partition Commission that military forces must be sent to Palestine to avert chaos after May 15.

Britian will end her Palestine mandate on that date.

At the 27-minute forenoon Assembly meeting in Flushing Meadows, Burma was seated as the fifty-eighth U. N. member. The vote for Burma's admission was 55 to 0.

Bogota Parley May Condemn Communism

Bogota, Colombia, April 19 (AP).—A strongly-worded resolution condemning international communism was written today for submission to the Inter-American Conference. The meeting drove for adjournment, perhaps by the end of the week.

Meanwhile the Colombian governmeent today decreed censorship o fthe press and telecommunications throughout Colombia.

The resolution did not mention the Soviet Union by name, but said international communism was a threat to the security of the western hemisphere.

It calls on all 21 of the American republics at the conference to repudiate communism, but leaves to each individual nation the manner of combatting it. Informants said the proposal had the support of a majority of delegates.

It was pointed out that the resolution would not necessarily affect operation of Communist parties in countries where they are legal.

Conference work will come to a virtual halt tomorrow during funeral services for Jorge Eliecer Gaitan, Liberal Party leader whose assassination set off the attempted revolt that caused disruption of the conference April 9.

It will be a national holiday in Colombia. Gaitan will be buried in his own home, which will be made into a national shrine.

The conference delegates were reported to be in agreement over the issue of European colonialism in the Western Hemisphere.

The Chilean member of the special committee on colonialism said it was unlikely that any mention will be made in conference resolutions on specific claims.

The Chilean said recent events, including the Colombian uprising, strengthened the feeling of various delegations that nothing should be done to affect friendship of Latin America with France, Britain and the Netherlands—the principal colonial countries.

Argentina claims the British-ruledFalkland Islands, and Guatamala British Honduras (Belize).

30,000 Greeks Closing Ring On Rebel Band

Athens, April 19 (AP).—American observers reported today that 30,000 Greek soldiers are slowly closing in one approximately 2000 guerillas in south central Greece.

Lieut. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, commander of the United States military mission, will go to the area Wednesday.

The Greek spring offensive was in its fourth day and scattered minor clashes were reported.

The biggest operation since the guerillas started their uprising two years ago is being supported by coast guard cutters and patrol boats in the Gulf of Corinth. This is the base of a three-sided squeeze on insurgents from east, west and north.

A high authority told American newmen the offensive, known as "Operation Roumeli," will not reach a decisive stage for several days.

Costa Rica Agreement Signed; Question: Will Fighting Stop?

San Jose, Costa Rica, April 19 (AP).—An agreement aimed at settling Costa Rica's civil war was signed today by President Teodoro Picado and a representative of Rebel Chieftain Jose Figueres.

The agreement provides that Santos Leon Herrera, third vice president, will assume the presidency until May 8. Miguel Brenes, a former labor minister, was designated minister of war with authorization to form a new cabinet.

It was believed that a constitutional assembly will be called May 8.

zFather Benjamin Nunez signed the agreement on behalf of Figueres.

The civil war has been in progress since March 12. It was precipitated when Congress annulled the election of Otilio Ulate Blanco to the presidency.

There was no assurance the agreement between President Picado and Figueres would end the fighting.

[The Nicaraguan government issued a statement in Managua saying it had sent troops into "strategic frontier positions" in Costa Rican territory to prevent an invasion by Costa Rican rebels.

[The Nicaraguan statement said its troops had been ordered to be neutral and defensive in character, without any intention of engaging in the Costa Rican civil war.

[In Washington the United States State Department protested Nicaraqua's sending troops into Costa Rica.]

11 Coal Miners Killed, 96 Trapped in France

Lille, France, April 19 (AP).—Eleven miners were killed and 96 were trapped tonight in the pit of Sallaumines coal mine by a dust explosion. Scores of other miners were led to safety through an adjoining shaft.

Approximately 350 miners were reported in the pit, 15 miles south of here, when the explosion occurred at 6 p. m.

Scrappy Dissents Liven High Court

Post Reporter

Justices Douglas and Jackson livened up the Supreme Court yesterday with two of the scrappiest dissents handed down this year.

When the court voted 5 to 4 to hold that people on trial for a crime don't always have a right to counsel, Douglas said the right to a fair trial was being scuttled.

When another 5-to-4 vote gave Federal taxes first claim on a bankrupt's money, Jackson said the majority was using one law to sabotage another. The majority cited rulings in which Jackson joined. He said if the rulings meant what the majority claimed, he didn't understand them the first time.

Case From Illinois

The right-to-counsel case came from Illinois, where 67-year-old Roy Bute has been in jail for 10 years on two charges of taking indecent liberties with little girls. Bute had no lawyer when he pleaded guilty, and as far as the record shows he was not offered a lawyer by the judge who heard his plea.

Justice Burton, giving his second opinion of the term, said for the majority that the trial judge was not bound by law, or the Constitution, to tell Bute that he had a right to a lawyer. The justice explained in a 34-page essay on Federal and Illinois law that a man who faced the death penalty must be offered a lawyer, but one who faced a less penalty—like Bute, who got 1 to 20 years—had no such right.

Chief Justice Vinson and Justices Reed, Frankfurter and Jacwson agreed with Burton.

Douglas Asked Question

Justices Black, Douglas, Murphy and Ruteledge did not. For them Douglas asked:

"Of what value is the Constitutional guaranty of a fair trial if an accused does not have counsel to advise and defend him?"

From Sir Matthew Hale, the famous English chief justice, Douglas quoted the axiom that charges like that against Bute are easily made, hard to prove but harder to defend, though the accused "be ever so innocent." And unless Bute had a lawyer at his side to help his defense, said Douglas, the man was denied due process of law.

Douglas added that if Bute had been tried in a Federal court, the judge would have been bound to see that he had a lawyer. He said he could not see how something unfair in a Federal court could be fair in an Illinois court.

The Bute case was the latest of a line of clashes over the right to counsel, which have split the Supreme Court for a decade.

Story of Tax Case

The tax decision grew out of the failure of a small firm, which had only $1135, and owed various creditors. One was the State of Massachusetts, which got the whole $803 due in unemployment taxes. Another was the Government, which got the rest on its claim for about $1675 in social security and other taxes. Justice Rutledge said for the majority that the Federal claim came first, so the State would have to hand over its $803.

The Chief Justice and Justices Black, Reed and Murphy agreed with Rutledge. Dissenting were Justices Frankfurter, Douglas, Jackson and Burton. For them Jackson said the decision was "an unnecessarily ruthless interpretation of a statue that at its best is an arbitrary one." For the Government to take all the money and leave none for Massachusetts, he added, was harsh and unjust and would gouge the States and private creditors in such cases.

In closing, Jackson said:

"The court's opoinion, however, goes to some lengths to show that the court as a whole and without dissent on this point has become committed to the interpretation it adopts, and by unusual deference to the doctrine of stare decisis (following former rulings) declares itself bound hand and foot to full priority. I am unable to detect the commitment which the court so clearly sees. But if I have agreed to any prior decision which forecloses what now seems to be a sensible construction of this act, I must frankly admit that I was unaware of it.

"However, no rights have vested and no prejudicial action has been taken in reliance upon such a ruling. It does not appear to have been called to the attention of Congress and in effect approved by failure to act. Under these circumstances, except for any personal humiliation involved in admitting that I do not always understand the opinions of this court, I see no reasons why I should be consciously wrong today because I was unconsciously wrong yesterday."

Voting Rights Ruling

Other rulings of the justices yesterday:

Turned down two appeals from United States Circuit Court decisions which upheld the right of Negroes to vote in South Carolina primaries, despite a State law that allows the Democrats to hold all-white primaries;

Refused to hear an appeal filed by the veteran movie maker, Cecil B. DeMille, who was thrown out of the FL FederatioAn of Radio Artists when he would not pay a $1 assassment for political purposes; and Refused to review the claims of four Standard Oil companies to property taken from them during the war by the Alien Property Custodian, who held that the oil companies were trying to save the property for German firms by going through phony stock transfers.

Guests are high-ranking baseball fans, and prizes are presented each year for the best guesses of the year before. Statuettes of themselves in baseball uniforms were presented to Representative McCormack (D., Mass.) and Leslie L. Connelly for second place last year.

Among other guests yesterday were House Speaker Martin (D., Mass.) and Minority Leader Rayburn of Texas; Senate President Vandenberg (R., Mich.) and Senators Wherry (R., Nebr.), Millikin (R., Colo.), Butler (R., Nebr.), Tobey (R., N. Also in the President's box, seated directly in front of him, was Nats Pitcher Chic Pieretti, detailed to fend off any foul balls (baseballs, that is) that might come his way. Pieretti improved his time by having Mr. Truman autograph a ball for him.

Parties Eye W&L 'GOP Convention'

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Lexington, Va., April 19.—Historic Lexington, home and tomb of Robert E. Lee, will be turned over to the Republicans tomorrow—complete with a parade, an elephant and a convention.

Renewing a 40-year-old tradition, students of Washington and Lee University are holding a mock Republican convention to pick the winners in the GOP battle for the nomination.

Five times out of eight in the past, W. and L. men have come up months in advance with the winners.

The records of the students here for picking winners is so good that few of the Republican presidential candidates, even the dark horses, wanted to ignore the convention.

Spokesmen for several leading candidates have made it clear to their chairmen here they do not want this convention turned into a personal popularity poll, but want it run as a real mock convention and a test of strength..

One told a college chairman, "there's no reason why we should waste all this money and effort if we're only to find out what the students at Washington and Lee think of GOP possibilities most of them wouldn't vote for anyway."

Senator G. Wayland Brooks (R., Ill.) is expected here today to meet with his "Illinois delegation" and observe procedings. There may be other Congressmen, it was reported.

Supporters of Harold E. Stassen, told his campaign cochairmen here—Bill Todd of Kingsport, Tenn., and Bill Wade of Roanoke, Va.—that funds would be forthcoming from his headquarters to meet all expenses. The Stassen headquarters are in the Dutch Inn.

About on a par with the Stassen group for spending is the Illinois State committee, currently supporting Dwight Green.

Illinois Republicans gladly stumped up expenses to fly James Stanfield of Paris, Ill., student chairman of the Illinois delegation here, to Chicago and back for instructions and consultation.

Supporters of Senator Arthur Vandenberg (R., Mich.), supplied both expenses and campaign material.

Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York and Senator Robert A. Taft, two of the leading contenders, have supplied no funds but they have sent bales of material, advice, buttons, and so forth.

Marsh Clark of Washington, D. C., a senior law student, is campaign manager for Taft. The headquarters are in the Sigma Chi House here.

Dewey's headquarters are at the Robert E. Lee Hotel. Ben Haden of Houston, Tex., is Dewey's campaign manager.

In a broad Southern accent, Haden said, "I'm personally for him, you know. He's great."

Later he added, "Oh, well, of course, I'm a Southern Demotcrat. We're mostly all dyed-in-the-wool Southern Democrats around here, but while this is going on, we have to learn to think like Republicans for a time."

The students here have gone about the task of organizing some 1100 young men into delegates to a political convention with serious determination to reflect as nearly as possible what the vote would be if the Republican Party were meeting today.

Chairman of the "Republican National Committee" is Fred M. Vinson, jr., son of the Chief Justice. Working with him on organization was a delegations committee and a steering committee. Insofar as possible, student leaders of delegations were selected from the States they represent.

When instructions have been given in primary campaigns the delegates are bound by those instructions. Where primaries have not been held the State chairmen of the mock delegations consulted the State Republican committees and leading politicians of the State.

Here they claim 300-plus votes for Dewey on the first ballot; 200-plus for Taft, and 200 for Stassen.

Philip Lanier of Danville, Ky., campaign manager for Vandenberg, claims a modest 46 on the first ballot, but he's playing a quiet hand waiting for Dewey, Stassen and Taft to deadlock the convention.

Larry Wales of Lajolla, Calif., campaign manager for Governor Warren, triumphantly insists he has 11 states. Among them he claims Oregon.

The boom for General MacArthur at this mock convention is noticeable for its silence. He has one devoted supported in his campaign manager, Howard Fender of Fort Worth, Tex., who went to West Point and served as a major in World War II.

Francis Russell of Sunderland, Mass., campaign manager for Speaker Joe Martin, modestly claims only a favorite son vote from Massachusetts—just to start—but he thinks his candidate has a lot of strength hidden away which will come out on later balloting.

For Dwight Green, Stansfield claims Illinois on the early balloting with a substantial showing of strength later.

Floating peacefully over the lush green campus here is a Green banner. The statue of Cyrus McCormick, inventor of the reaper and a native of these parts, is adorned with a big Green placard.

Pictures of Stassen, Dewey and Taft hang almost literally from every building and from every bush and tree.

Only the beautiful spreading white dogwood trees on the campus of the college whose first benefactor was George Washington and whose greatest president was Robert E. Lee have escaped the Republican placards.

These convention previews here started in 1908 and are normally concerned with the party not in power. Hence the GOP convention in a university more than half of whose students are Southerners.

The convention will be called to order tomorrow by Vinson, chairman of the "Republican National Committee" for this one occasion. The usual routine of political conventions will be carried out.

Beverly T. Fitzpatrick of Virginia, permanent chairman, has announced that Representative Clarence J. Brown (R., Ohio) chairman of the executive committee of the Republican Party, will deliver the keynote address.

Va. Ruling Hailed as Backing Religious Program in Schools

Bridgewater, Va., April 19 (AP).—An official of the Virginia Council of Churches said today an opinion of the attorney general's office in connection with religious education confirmed the councils belief in the constitutionality of the program in Virginia schools.

Walter E. Rogers, assistant attorney general, in a ruling approved non-sectarian prayers, and the study in Virginia public schools of churches as they have influenced history. He said more information was needed, however, before he could rule on the instruction offered by the council.

Dr. Minor C. Miller, director of the council's department of religious education, said today he was "deeply gratified" at Rogers' ruling, and added:

"Our Virginia plan of weekly religious education is fundamentally different from that in Champaign, (Ill.)."

The opinion by the attorney general's office was handed down after a United States Supreme Court decision held the Champaign religious education plan unconstitutional.

Virginia Plan

Miller said that under the Virginia plan of instruction no sectarian teaching is given, Bible teachers are not approved by public school authorities, public school teachers have no responsibility for enrolling children in the Bible classes.

Lexington police and firemen will lead a mile-long student parade at 2 p. m. today. The VMI Band will play and Stassen managers have their own band coming from Covington, Va.

Best of all is the GOP elephant, which is being trucked here free by the Mason-Dixon Lines—students have been chipping in to buy him (or maybe her) a bushel of oats and two bales of hay.

Green to Be GOP Keynoter

By The Associated Press

Governor Dwight H. Green of Illinois and House Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr., of Massachusetts will hold the top posts of honor at the Republican convention in Philadelphia in June.

Green, as temporary chairman, will deliver the keynote speech.

Martin will wield the gavel as permanent chairman.

They were selected late yesterday by the 32-member convention arrangements committee which met in the convention city.

New Jersey voters choose their delegates today to the Republican and Democratic national conventions, but the results are expected to give little indication of trends in the presidential race.

The 44 Democratic candidates for delegates are unopposed, and Frank Hague, the State's party leader, has given his approval to the "outstanding candidate for the Presidency, Harry S. Truman." There will be 36 convention votes, some of the delegates having half a vote.

There are contests for five of the Republicans' 35 delegates' seats, but all the candidates have committed themselves to a "favorite son," Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll. Some of the candidates, however, are outspokenly friendly to Harold E. Stassen, presidential hopeful from Minnesota, and might turn to him after the initial convention maneuvering.

Dalstrom Acquitted Of Drunken Driving

115 Traffic Tickets Fixed During Week

Traffic ticket adjustments for last week rose to 115, nine more than the previous week's "fixes."

The Police Department reported that of the total, 100 were excused with warnings and 15 had their tickets canceled.

Among those warned were two deputy United States marchals, Donald H. Foster and Herbert T. Talbert, who were let off from parking infractions because they were on official business.

Ten of the cancellations were in favor of diplomatic representatives of various countries, as follows:

Jean G. Baudelaire, Germain Rainquet and Jean Morderiau, France; Ali Fahim, Egypt; Hossein A. Espandiari, Iran; Eduardo Lonardi and Carlos Vidneiro, Argentina; Dusan A. Marusic, Frederick de Moleyns and Thomas Mansy, embassy not listed.

St. Vincent de Paul Society Hears Reports

The Saint Vincent de Paul Society held its second general meeting of the year at Holy Redeemer Church, 210 New York ave. nw. yesterday.

The meeting opened with an 8 a. m. mass and Holy Communion. During the day reports were made on the work of the society at Gallinger Hospital, District penal and correctional institutions, the Receiving Home for Children, and the Home for Aged and Infirm and the Industrial Home for Negro Boys, both at Blue Plains, Va.

Fire Department Engineer Cleared Without Testimony

Ivan J. Dalstrom, spuerintendent of machinery for the District Fire Depratment, was last night acquitted of a police charge of drunken driving.

Trial Magistrate Arthur P. Owens, in Hyattsville Police Court hearing, ruled out the charge even before Dalstrom's attorney could put defense witnesses on the stand.

"I don't think the State has made out a case of driving while drunk," declared the magistrate.

Sole witness to the charge was Police Lieut. Ernest H. Mulligan, of Colmar Manor, who testified Dalstrom was "unsteady on his feet" when arrested following an auto accident Sunday, April 11.

The defendant, who draws the pay of a deputy chief engineer in the fire department, was found guilty of a second charge, reckless driving, and was fined $50.

He was arrested after his automobile rammed into one operated by Stephen Gill, 28, of 438 Orange st. se., who had stopped for a traffic light at 38th st. and Bladensburg rd., Colmar Manor, at 11:45 a.m. Dalstrom said he was returning home from duty, and had not been drinking.

He was later examined by Dr. G. Louis Weller, jr., member of the Board of Police and Fire Surgeons; found to have been "under the influence of alcohol," and suspended from the Fire Department.

Preparedness Day Marked by War Exhibit

Exhibition of the latest Army and Navy equipment and talks by high military officials on "peace through preparedness" highlighted the National Preparedness Day celebration yesterday in Alexandria.

Speakers at an outdoor rally last night near George Washington High School were Maj. Gen. William M. Hoge, commanding general at Fort Belvoir, and Rear Admiral Glenn B. Davis, Commandant Potomac River Naval Command.

The exhibitions included the latest types of search radar, mine detectors and fire control devices. Spectators watched the radar set pick up and "track" a Navy fighter plane.

The program was sponsored by Alexandria Post No. 10, ANVETS, as part of a Nationwide celebration by more than 1400 posts. Yesterday's activities commemorated Paul Revere's ride and the battles of Concord and Lexington, April 19, 1775.

Suspect Held In Robbery

A 23-year-old suspect was arrested in a Washington hotel room early today after a Takoma Park, Md., man had told police he was kidnaped, beaten and robbed of $200.

Five police scout cars and two headquarters cruisers surrounded the Shamig Hotel, 512 Eye st. nw., and arrested the youth in a hotel room about 1:30 a. m. He was taken to police headquarters for questioning.

John Courtney, 35, of 217 Holly ave., Takoma Park, Md., told Prince Georges County police at Marlboro he left a tavern in Oxon Hill, Md., about 7 p. m., when two men dragged him into a car, drove him to a nearby field where he was beaten, cut on the arms and robbed.

Details of Traffic Accidents Will Warn Children: Careful!

District police have started a new reporting system for traffic accidents involving children, whereby details of the accidents are sent to precincts to be used as safety lessons.

Capt. L. T. Johnson of the Police Traffic Division said the new system went into effect last Friday.

The Accident Investigation Unit, he said, is now sending details of every accident in which a child is injured to the Schoolboy Patrol Coordinator in each precinct. The coordinator then is to use the information as a vivid example to youngsters of the need for greater caution.

Thirteen children were hurt in District traffic during the 48-hour period that ended yesterday noon. Johnson said more than 300 children had been hurt in District traffic this yetr up to April 4, about 60 more than last year during the same period.

Two children was injured in accidents yesterday morning. At 8:30 a. m., Larry Klipp, 5, of 1100 W st. se., was struck by an automobile operated by Dr. Winfred Overholser 55, superintendent of St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

Police said the child darted diagonally across Nichols ave. at W st. se., into the vehicle, going south on Nichols ave. The child was taken to Casualty Hospital with abrasions of both knes and a possible fracture of the left leg, and was expected to be released after X-rays were completed. No chages were made against Dr. Overholser.

About noon, 5-year-old Inez Patricia Jones, of 3531½ Georgia ave. nw., ran from a loading plat form in the 3500 block of Georgia ave., into the right rear fender of an automobiel operated by Charles Campbell, 57, of 100 Southern ave. se., police reported. She was treated at Garfield Hospital for scalp lacerations and minor bruises and released.

Pastor Deplores Play Space Lack Around St. Luke's

Lack of play facilities in the neighborhood surrounding St. Luke's Episcopal Church, 1514 15th st. nw., was deplored yesterday by the Rev. Dillard Brown, pastor of the church.

Mr. Brown was one of several participants in the radio program, "Make Way for Freedom," presented over WQQW at 4 p.m.

"In the area around my church—40 to 45 blocks—there is not one playground or other place where children can find wholesome recreation," he said, adding that such conditions create juvenile delinquency.

Efforts to remedy the situation, he reported, had met with no success. "We can't get any kind of cooperation from agencies concerned so as to get streets closed off for play streets."

'Old Abe' Carries On

Boston (U.P.).—The Abe Lincoln, a 35-year-old coal-burning fire pumper, is still used by the Boston fire department. At a mid-winter fire which did one-million-dollar damage to a warehouse, Old Abe was coaled up to provide ice-melting steam that cleared ladders and trucks in half the time it would have taken to chop them free.

Law-Appeal Habit in Labor Disputes Deplored By NLRB Head as Sign of Industrial Malady

National Labor Relations Board Chairman Paul M. Herzog yesterday deplored the "habit" of labor disputants "running to the board or the courts to demand injunctions against one another."

He said it was a "symptom of a serious industrial malady," and that the trend ought to be reversed while there is still time.

Snowed under a record case load—as many cases now come to the NLRB in a month as used to come in a year—Herzog warned of "a bad washout on the track ahead." He said that "those who seek sole refuge in the statute books make orderly collective bargaining and plant harmony difficult, if no impossible."

Labor relations cannot be solved, he declared, "until industry and labor determine to deal so reasonably and so unreservedly with one another that neither feels impelled to cry out for assistance of Government except in rare and unusual situations.

"No matter how friendly and how informal that assistance may be, it is bound—especially where a quasi-judicial agency like the board is involved— to take on the attributes of a lawsuit. . . .

"Legal pleadings stress rights more than responsibilities; they disclose a greater interest in winning a victory than in finding a solution. . . .

"In the long run, Government will either lose the confidence or gain complete control over the people it is supposed to serve, if it is forced to adjudicate all the controversies between industry and labor."

Lewis Guilty Of Contempt

month's strike, had gained momentum. In most areas, the work force was 90 per cent of normal. Only in Tennessee and Utah was there a sizable proportion of miners still on the job.

In handing down his verdict yesterday, Goldsborough revealed his anger and his intent to exact a heavy punishment. Some observers thought his words forecast a jail sentence.

He made clear that his decision would not be influenced by any considerations of its effect on the miners continuing to work or not. He said:

"What the court does, or will do, in assessing punishment, and what the court has done in holding these defendants guilty, is a matter which is being watched by every lawless element not only in this country, but in the world.

"It is also being watched by all decent people to ascertain whether or not the courts have power to protect citizens of this country in their normal way of life. The court doesn't think this matter can be viewed from the standpoint of expediency . . .

"The court is firmly convinced—firmly convinced—that this situation has gotten beyond the bound of expediency. The issue has to be met."

Without going into detail, Goldsborough dismissed the legal arguments which Lewis' counsel made in his defense. These were to the effect that the court order which Lewis ignored from April 5 to April 12 violated the First, Fifth and Thirteenth Amendments to the Constitution.

In his extemporaneous decision, Goldsborough dwelt mainly on Lewis' second ground for defense. This was that there was no strike and that neither he nor the union had called one. The court order to Lewis to stop the strike, his counsel said, was therefore meaningless.

Goldsborough's summary of his view of this argument was: "Simply ridiculous." Some 250,000 to 350,000 men don't get the same idea at once, "independently of leadership," and walk out at the same time, he said.

Instead, he said, the evidence showed:

. Lewis threatened a strike.

On February 2 he wrote the coal operators that the union reserved the right to take "independent action."

"What independent action could be taken them, except strike?" Goldsborough asked rhetorically.

2. Lewis called a strike.

On March 12, he wrote that he would "go forward" in requiring the coal operators to honor their contract with the miners.

"Go forward in what way? Any other way than a strike?" Goldsborough asked again.

3. He called the strike with a code word.

In the March 12 letter he wrote that the operators were "dishonoring" the contract. That started a strike. When Lewis wanted to call it off, a month later, he telegraphed the miners that the agreement was "honored."

"If a nod or a wink or a code was used in place of the word 'strike,' there was just as much a strike called as if the word 'strike' had been used," Goldsborough said.

So, he went on, this led him to propound a new principle of law. It had never been stated before because this was the first time a union used a code to try to avoid responsibility. The new principle:

"As long as a union is functioning as a union it must be held responsible for the mass action of its members."

The principle, he declared, is one also directed to the preservation of unions. This is so, he said, because if the use of a wink, a nod or a code is recognized as valid by the courts, there will follow union lawlessness, chaos and ultimate anarchy." Then, "the unions will have to be socialized. In other words, they will have to be destroyed."

When Goldsborough finished, Welly K. Hopkins, attorney for Lewis and the union, moved formally, for the record, that the verdict be set aside. His motion was, of course, denied.

Goldsborough also agreed to hear argument on Wednesday morning on the Government's petition to replace the pending restraining order with an 80-day injunction under the Taft-Hartley Act.

Hog Dumping Cuts Prices

Chicago, April 19 (U.P.).—Stimulated by efforts to step up production in struck meat plants, farmers flooded Midwest markets with 100,000 hogs today.

But the back-to-work movement was ineffective and hog prices dropped $1 to $1.50 a hundred pounds as the result of the heavy influx.

Ralph Helstein, president of the striking Packinghouse Workers (CIO) said an attempt by Armour & Co. to operate its struck plants was "a complete failure." He said Armour's plan to inspire a back-to-work movement "boomeranged" and many farmers suffered "heavy losses as a result."

The Department of Agriculture said the 100,000 hogs received at 12 Midwest livestock terminals was the biggest one-day shipment since December.

Armour, John Morrell & Co., and Rath issued back-to-work invitations to strikers and to the open labor market. But in Chicago and elsewhere picket lines were strengthened and there was no evidence that the back-to-work movement had succeeded.

At Chicago more than 1000 police were alerted for duty at struck plants, but no more than the usual number of nonstriking employes who have been at work all along reported.

Picket lines also were tightened at Indianapolis and Ottumwa and Waterloo, Iowa. Extra police were on duty at all the cities.

European Neutrality Seen Danger to U. S.

Lord Rothermere Tells AP Meeting Such a 'Cloud' Is Now Forming There

New York, April 19 (AP).—Lord Rothmere, British newspaper publisher, said today the safety of the United tSates could be undermined by any serious movement for neutrality in Britain and western Europe.

He said "a cloud of wishful neutrality" was now forming there.

Addressing the 100th anniversary luncheon of the Associated Press, Lord Rothemere praised the European Recovery Program as "one of the greatest acts of statesmanship in modern history." However, he observed that it did not provide for newsprint to report fully "this battle for freedom."

"Ignorance Breeds Isolationism"

"Ignorance, as you know better than anybody, breeds isolationism," he said. "Isolationism breeds neutrality.

"A serious movement for western European neutrality, particularly British neutrality, could undermine the whole conception of your precarious peace and freedom.

"The new American desire to secure peace through strength has been stigmatized as 'imperialism.' I say that if this is imperialism, 'then let's have more o fit.' We are behind you and we will do our best to expound to our people all that you are seeking to do for the future of your children and of free peoples everywhere."

Newsprint Situation Serious

Lord Rothermere, who is publisher of the Daily Mail of London, the Evening News and Sunday Dispatch, said the newsprint situation in Britain was growing worse. He foresaw "the possibility of a reduction from four pages daily to two pages."

Lord Rothermere called America "the greatest and most powerful nation in the world."

"Everything America does or fails to do inevitably affects the world beyond her shores," he said.

The membership voted to send special greetings to Frank Noyes of the Washington, D. C., Evening Star, honorary president of the AP. Noyes was unable to attend the meeting because of illness.

Court Clears 3 Union Chiefs

torneys for the three international officers, said that in October, 1943, after the alleged embezzlement was uncovered by Federal agents, the union held a trial for several of the local union leaders, found Larry Kelly guilty and expelled him.

Kelly, local union leader and alleged ringleader of the looting, disappeared during the 1943 grand jury probe here and has been reported dead.

Prosecution in the case suffered another rebuff yesterday. Rover announced the prosecution will abandon a charge of defrauding the Government of liquor taxes, to avoid a legal pitfall which could have possibly brought a directed acquittal at the end of the trial for the remaining defendants.

This was the allegation that touched off the entire probe. Federal agents in 1943 found about $19,000 in liquor at local union headquarters, 523 New Jersey ave. nw., and the El Patio night club, 711 13th st. nw. Larry Kelly was coowner of the night club.

The Government will continue its case on the liquor purchases, but not on alleged nonpayment of liquor taxes involved. Justice Holtzoff warned the prosecution last week that proceeding on the tax issue could involve two alleged conspirators, where only one is charged. This in turn could negate the single conspiracy indictment.

Remaining defendants are Faust Moreschi, son of Joseph Moreschi, and now an international representative of the union; George Morgan, George W. Plummer, Evans H. Hamilton, and Joseph Speed, former local officials, and Isaac Weiner, real estate operator who allegedly conspired to build restaurants at Cedar Point, Md., with union funds.

First witness in the trial was called yesterday, and again the prosecution encountered an obstacle. Clyde B. Stoval, an accountant employed by the international union in 1942-43, said he could not positively identify certain records because of the great number involved.

Justice Holtzoff ordered him to examine the papers and be prepared to answer questions today when the trial resumes.

D. C. Loyalty Check

Loyalty checks seem to be the order of the day, and it is not surprising to see reports that the Board of Commissioners are about to order that the records of District employes be scrutinized. It comes as a shock, however, to hear that the Commissioners are planning to put this program into the hands of the police. To mingle this task of personnel screening with the task of law enforcement is, in our opinion, to embark on a dangerous threat to the individual freedom that every American claims by right of heritage.

Advance reports on Commissioner John Russell Young's plan indicate that the initial investigations of District employes would be made by the "investigation squad" of the Police Department. Its reports would go to a committee of department heads who would study the cases and recommend to the Commissioners whatever action it considered desirable. Apparently the city fathers are leaning toward this method because the District has no personnel system of its own and the Federal Civil Service Commission has concluded that it has no authority to investigate District employes. It is readily apparent that the Commissioners do not have at their disposal a proper investigative system. But that is no excuse for embarking upon a crude venture that might result in injustice to District employes and encourage an already too prevalent tendency on the part of the police to snoop into affairs with which they have no legitimate concern.

Whatever may be said for the Federal system of loyalty investigations, it is at least based upon investigations by civilian personnel agencies—the Civil Service Commission and departmental investigative units. Employes accused of disloyalty have a right to a hearing before a departmental loyalty board, to appeal to the department head and finally to the Loyalty Review Board in the CSC. No such safeguards are provided in the Commissioners' scheme as it has been tentatively outlined. Instead of having a civilian agency check police and other records, the police themselves would become the initiators of charges and complaints that could be screened only by busy department heads and the Commissioners themselves. We know of no danger from subversive elements in the District that would warrant such a grave departure from sound procedure in these matters.

There are only a few District agencies in which infiltration by disloyal persons is a matter of major concern. These include the water and police departments. But the police can scarcely be expected to do an objective job of checking subversive elements, if any, in their own ranks. On the whole, the scheme which Commissioner Young intends to submit to his colleagues appears to us to be undigested and dangerous. If the District is to have a loyalty program, the least the Commissioners can do is to ask that it be integrated with the Federal system of loyalty checks or set up with proper local safeguards that seem to be lacking in the Young plan.

Atom Commissioners

The five men who in October, 1946, began the unprecedented task of directing the development of atomic energy in behalf of the people of the United States are now approaching the end of their initial term in office. The President, it is reported, has asked all of them to accept renomination. They have scarcely had sufficient time in office as yet to do more than familiarize themselves with the tremendous problems confronting the Atomic Energy Commission and to lay the groundwork for a long-range program intended at once to preserve the country's preeminence in atomic weapons and prepare for the momentous industrial applications realizable only if the world remains at peace. It would be a great misfortune if their work should be interrupted virtually at its inception.

The passage of the Atomic Energy Act of 1946 was, as James R. Newman and Byron S. Miller called it in their recently published book, The Control of Atomic Energy, a political event which "in its impact on social, economic and political circumstances is an event comparable in importance to the successful release of atomic energy itself." Although the present commissioners under the chairmanship of David E. Lilienthal have necessarily devoted their attention primarily to the military aspects of atomic energy, they have demonstrated, even in the brief period of their tenure, a full awareness of the nonmilitary potentialities of the act and a devotion to the great policies laid down by Congress. They have worked together as an effective, harmonious team and thoroughly deserve reappointment on the basis of their performance.

It will be recalled that the Senate inquiry into their qualifications, concluded scarcely more than a year ago, was an extraordinarily grueling and exhaustive one. There can be no justification for a repetition of it, no warrant for permitting Senator McKellar again to vent his political spleen and his groundless prejudices at the expense of these men's reputations. Their character and competence have now been established beyond question, and their reconfirmation by the Senate should be as much a matter of course as their renomination by the President.

Security Within U. N.

We have been criticized from a number of sources for our opposition to the plan of 16 Senators to amend the Charter of the United Nations with Russia's consent if possible or without it if necessary. Perhaps we did err in saying that acceptance of this resolution would be equivalent to "throwing the U. N. into the ash can." It is more accurate and more devastating to say that the result would be to give the U. N. to Russia. For it is inconceivable that the Kremlin would let such a valuable opportunity to discredit the United States slip through its fingers. The moment this country pulled out of the United Nations to set up a rival world organization the U. N., with its very substantial prestige among the nations, would become an instrument of propaganda and perhaps political and military strength in the hands of Moscow.

Every member of the U. N. would be faced with the awful decision of whether to secede from the U. N. to join the new American-sponsored association of nations. It is by no means improbable that some of the democratic powers would prefer to stay with the U. N. in spite of our withdrawal. That tendency would be encouraged by the distrust that would inevitably arise from such a display of nercurial temperament on the part of the United States. It would be said that this country had betrayed the United Nations as it betrayed the League of Nations. With that sort of propaganda broadcast to the world by a jubilant Soviet Union, American prestige would doubtless be seriously impaired; the European Recovery Program would be jeopardized; and whatever new organization this country might sponsor would probably get off to a bad start.

We have repeatedly emphasized in these columns that we favor modification of the U. N. Charter so as to make it a more effective instrument for the maintenance of world peace. But this can be done only by remaining within the U. N.—not by withdrawing and handing the U. N. to Russia such a display of mercurial temperament on as a ready-made anti-American bloc of disillusioned nations. In our opinion, this country must retain the good will and leadership that have come to it through the medium of the U. N. as a chief foundation stone of our foreign policy. For this reason we have suggested that means of collective security which cannot be halted by the Soviet Union's veto in the Security Council be sought within the United Nations.

The instrument through which this may be accomplished is Article 51 of the Charter. Under this article every member of the U. N. or a coalition of members has the right of self-defense against attack. The nations of the Western Hemisphere are already organized to resist outside aggression under this provision. A similar regional defense system can be set up to include the United States, the countries of western Europe and any others that wish to join. This group of democratic powers could agree upon joint action whenever it might be necessary to resist agression against any one of them. Or they could agree to carry out the provisions of the Charter upon the affirmative vote of two thirds of their representives. Better still, they could agree, as suggested by the Commission to Study the Organization of Peace, to act in defense of any member recommended for assistance as a victim of aggression by a two-thirds vote of the General Assembly, in case the Security Council were unable to act.

It may be said that the objective sought is similar to that of the Culbertson plan sponsored by the 16 Senators. But there is a vast difference in the approach. Procedure under Article 51 would keep the United States within the United Nations and retain for the group of powers preparing to act against aggression the notable prestige that the U. N. has in the world. Weak and inadequate as it is, the U. N. stands in the eyes of the world as the only international instrument for the maintenance of peace. Let it not be the United States that abandons this effort before something more effective has been put in its place. If this country is to retain world leadership, we think its efforts will have to be toward further integration of the forces working for peace—not toward the diffusion that would certainly follow abandonment of the U. N.

News For the Voice

The fear of governmental control of news, reiterated at the convention of the American Society of Newspaper Editors in Washington last week, is a very real and well grounded fear. The editors showed a timely comprehension of the larger issue, however, in adopting a resolution overriding this fear and expressing the hope that during the present international emergency the Associated Press and United Press will furnish factual news summaries for foreign information use by the State Department. Anything less would have been, in effect, to quibble over whose fire hose to use while the flames were consuming the house.

In theory, at least, there is a valid argument that the objectivity of private news services might be corrupted in the eyes of other countries if they were to lend their facilities for Government propaganda. This is an argument, however, that does not take account of present realities. The fact is that in the ideological struggle with Russia, the Voice of America broadcasts and allied foreign information activities are virtually the only means of getting the truth across to people subjected to the Kremlin's propaganda barrage. Though private agencies ought to supplement this work, they simply are not organized to take it over completely. And the subversive war proclaimed by Moscow is so vast that this country must use every weapon at its disposal. The Voice of America has been severely handicapped by its inability to use reports of two of the three major news services. It would be ironic indeed if exaggerated concern over "propaganda" were to frustrate the country's only effective answer to the Russian variety of "objectivity."

Back To Bogota

The situation in Colombia illustrates the aphorism that forest fires break out only when the woods are dry. It is evident that the purely indigenous issues in Colombia have not been settled by the setting up of a Conservative-Liberal coalition government. This arrangement was hurriedly accepted by the Liberals as soon as they realized that the Communists had stolen their uprising. As to this theft, the testimony of returning Latin delegates coincides with that of Secretary Marshall, Undersecretary Lovett and Admiral Hillenkoeter.

Two of these delegates, who have been through or participated in several Latin-American revolutions, have been giving their off-the-record evidence over the weekend in Washington, and they are very convincing. One had rented a house for the duration of the conference. As soon as the rioting started, he found that his staff of seven were all Gaitanistas. The entire household, together with this particular delegate, stayed glued to the radio during the uprising. The moment that the affair turned Communist was perceived by all the listeners simultaneously. Suddenly the same made-in-Moscow patter as the Italian electorate was then being assailed with came out of the ether. The other delegate pointed to the destruction of conference records, the firing of churches, and the pitiless carnage as evidence of the difference between this and "just another Latin-American revolution." The technique was modeled on the pattern given in the classic account of the Bolshevist revolution, namely, Malaparte's Coup d'Etat, Technique of Revolution.

Now that the Communist effort to kill the inter-American conference has been scotched, note might well be taken, as Mr. Sumner Welles does in an adjacent column, of other lessons which are available from the Colombia experience. From the beginning we have felt and said that the Marshall Plan should have been sold to the American republics as a common enterprise. When President Truman went to Rio, we suggested that this should be the theme of his address. We opposed the Marshall proposal for the arming of the Latin-American countries, stressing, as Mr. Welles does, economic aid. This is, however, the problem mainly of private capital, though, if the present channels are to be unclogged, there is need of a sort of code of fair practices as a safeguard binding upon both lender and borrower.

Such a code does not, of course, dispense with Government aid. Increase in Export-Import Bank capitalization in behalf of inter-American business is a starter in such interprise; side by side with it is the beginning of ECA operations. South of the Rio Grande ECA help has hitherto been minimized, but it will be real, and it is, moreover intended to prime the pump of world business. And there is more than economic assistance to Latin America in aid to prostrate Europe. With western Europe on its feet, the Latins will find the pressure of Communist infiltration relaxed, as we shall. The importance of this is underlined by the affair at Bogota. At the same time the seething trouble in Colombia, where economic stress has been worsened by the Conservative regime's highhandedness, is, as Mr. Duncan Aikman wrote in our columns last Saturday, something in itself to remember and be guided by in our economic diplomacy.

VARIATION ON A THEME BY SOLOMON

Lo, the winter is past,
The long winter gone with its sound
And its fury and blast
And spring leaps up from the ground.
Now vibrations come forth
That seem like the bursting of words
As they spread to the north—
The sound of the singing of birds.
The rains too are gone,
Gone down with the sweep of the flood,
And mad music of dawn
Shakes the quick folds of the bud.
But the winds have been chill,
The voice of the turtle-dove quivers;
The earth's heart is still,
Her blood has flowed out with her rivers.
No, the winter's not past,
The time of the birds is not here,
For the sky's overcast,
The snow has returned with the year.
It has come back to cover
The flowers that appeared in the land,
And the path of the plover
Is lost in the drift of the sand.
From the rock's cruel cleft
The dove cannot rise or awake,
For the hurricane's left
Has driven her down with the snake.
Lo, the winter is firm;
The cold of its anger crawls in
On the earth like a worm
And burrows where summer has been.

"70-Group Booby Trap."

Congratulations on your splendid editorial of April 15, "70-Group Booby Trap."

To stall now on the two important defense measures now pending before Congress, namely universal military training and the draft, in favor of air power would constitute a definite threat to the security of our country. As you so ably pointed out, 70 air groups without the support of a balanced land and sea force would be of practically no value whatsoever.

Retention of our security demands the immediate enactment of both a temporary draft and permanent universal military training legislation. The current rumor that Congress will scuttle UMT at this time is disheartening, to say the least.

The American Legion hit the nail on the head when it warned congressional leaders that enactment of the draft and a bigger Air Force without UMT was an invitation to "periodic security crises." In a statement the Legion's national commander asserted that congressional leaders are attempting to avoid action on UMT because of political repercussions. For Congress to consider the Nation's security in the light of politics is deplorable.

The Washington Post should be commended on its forthright stand in support of UMT as well as the draft and an enlarged Air Force. That is also the stand of the people of the United States, and if Congress will abide by the wishes of the people it will act accordingly now.

CLARENCE R. SMITH.

Italian Fascists

The front page of your April 16 issue carried a dispatch from Rome describing the pre-election riots in that city. Buried in the story was a passing observation which, I believe, has more real significance for the future than the Italian election, the Greek revolution, Palestine and the Turkish situation rolled into one. The report, citing the thousands of neo-Fascists who have recently sprung to arms to defend democracy against communism, stated that some of the Italian middle-of-the-roaders were becoming somewhat apprehensive that in slamming the door on the Commies they had inadvertently opened the window to the Blackshirts.

This is doubtless true, and merely bears out what the benighted Wallaceites have been charging—that Uncle Sam has been fostering the resurgence of Brown and Black fascism with far more success than he has been combatting the Red. That is not Uncle Sam's fault, of course—he has the best of intentions. But totalitarianism is in the European blood, and a flood of American dollars will not begin to wash it out.

What does all this portend? Perhaps it is worth recalling the words of a few visionaries before the Second World War, who pointed out that totalitarianism of different breeds has infinitely more in common than democracy and totalitarianism. Some of us are still inclined to regard the Stalin-Hitler alliance of 1939 as a marriage of convenience. That is wrong. It was an alliance of inevitability, like attracting like. It was the subsequent parting of the ways that was, from the standpoint of world politics, illogical, unorthodox and, for the Fuehrer, catastrophic.

America today is again helping to bolster the totalitarianism of the right to weaken the absolutism of the left. Some day there will be another—and more lasting—marriage of the natural partners. At that wedding, one very much fears, the United States will not be the best man.

J. H. P. TRIST.

"One to Go"

Contrary to your editorial of April 8, changing of clocks in the District is a concern of more people than those living in the District. Certainly those of us working for the Federal Government in the District, but crowded out into nearby Virginia and Maryland, should have a voice in the question. And since the District is Federal property, common sense teaches that all our people throughout the country should be given a voice in it; hence Senator Overton was in order.

It is unfortunate that you cannot devote your efforts to something more worthwhile than changing clocks back and forth, a childish trick to say the least. If our people anywhere in our country want to go to work earlier this can and should be done without tampering with the clocks.

A. E. UNDERWOOD.

Maryland Revolt

Here in Montgomery County, as well as throughout the conservative old State of Maryland, a political revolt is generating. Backbone of the revolt is the Maryland League of United Voters, formed about three weeks ago in Baltimore under the sponsorship of Americans for Democratic Action, the liberal, anti-Communist organization.

The organization meeting in Baltimore was attended by about 700 delegates from all over the State, including such liberal groups as ADA and virtually all the major labor organizations.

Although only about 10 days were left before the deadline for filing, the MLUV succeeded in getting into the race a candidate for Congress to run against the incumbent, Representative J. Glenn Beall, and three other Democrats.

The MLUV candidate for Congress in the Democratic primary is Will Allen of Bethesda, long a Washington correspondent, who is running with the backing not only of the MLUV and the Montgomery County Chapter of ADA, but also the support of a distinguished list of his colleagues in the corps of Washington correspondents — including Robert S. Allen, Drew Pearson, Marquis Childs and Elmer Davis. NATHAN ROBERTSON.

World Organization Now

May I congratulate you on your April 16 editorial, "Half a World," and your concurrence in principle with the atomic scientists' proposal for a limited supranational government. As you say, "it is indispensable to atomic energy control that national sovereignty be relinquished in some measure" and "such idealism is altogether realistic."

A reader seeing only your "Ashcan for U. N." of April 15, and your earlier comments on various proposals for "world government," could easily reach the frightening conclusion that you were opposing any and all changes or amendments in the U. N. because of the fear of Russian nonconcurrence and that you advocated entire reliance on so-called "regional mutual-defense pacts" under Article 51 of the Charter.

Certainly no one could successfully argue that the loose league of anarchic sovereign states called the U. N. is an organization capable of maintaining world peace. Even its sponsors and creators admit that it is based on the premise that the big powers want to be peaceful and good, and that the moment any big power changes its mind and decides to be warlike and bad, the organization is helpless to prevent war or maintain peace.

How can the formation of "little leagues" inside the "big leagues" provide security for any nation except through armaments, power politics and force? How can the breaking up of the world into a number of heavily armed regional units guaranty the avoidance of World War III? And against whom would these units be prepared, except Russia? Certainly, there is no other power whose actions would lead the United States to sponsor or organize any such regional units, and would not our sponsorship formalize the "two worlds" and make the shooting war inevitable?

What we all are desperately striving for is peace under law; not peace by appeasement; not peace by conquest; not peace by surrender; not peace by the Damoclean sword of "balance of power." How can we obtain peace under law? Only by the existence of legal machinery to settle disputes in international affairs as in domestic affairs. How can such legal machinery be created? Only by the existence in international affairs of the same kind of organized government, with adequate powers, as exists in our domestic affairs. Arizona and California do not go to war over the water of the Colorado River—they submit the matter to the United States Supreme Court for decision. Why is there no equivalent in international affairs?

The U. N. today can't furnish such an equivalent. One or 10 or 50 Article 51 regional leagues can't furnish it. But a properly reorganized U. N., provided with adequate, but limited, powers can furnish it.

The President's Air Policy Committee's report, signed by Thomas K. Finletter as chairman, states clearly what our policy should be. Armaments alone cannot create peace; they are only a necessary evil in a world not organized for peace. The United States must have a "double-barrelled policy;" first a policy of temporary powerful national armament to hold the world from exploding and to prevent our own destruction; second, a simultaneous program for world organization to permit these national armaments eventually to be abandoned.

We are well on our way to charging the first barrel. Resolutions pending in the House and Senate since last summer (S. 24 and H. 59) show the way to charge the second. They call on the President to call a review conference under Article 109 of the Charter to amend the Charter so that the U. N. may "enact, interpret and enforce world law to prevent war."

These resolutions are not an American "take-it-or-leave-it" ultimatum to the world, as you critically term the Ferguson-Culbertson proposals. They are free from the accusation of "detached idealism" which you cast on the Hutchins-Borgese detailed constitution for a complete world government. They state the objectives to be reached and leave to all the member nations present at the proposed conference the task of formulating the exact scheme of reorganization.

And who is omniscient enough to say that the Russians may not be willing to join, when the plan is ultimately prepared?

If, as you say, you approved the "rather sensible view taken by the scientists . . . that half a world is better than none at all," can we rely upon you to lend your vigorous support at once to securing early hearings and prompt passage of the resolutions?

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

More Inflation

TEN DAYS AGO the President's Council of Economic Advisers issued a report that was almost lost sight of in the swirl of headlines over Colombia, Russia, Berlin and other distant danger points. But that neglected report called attention of some danger points right here at home. While economists are inclined to use judicious language, avoiding any suggestion of the sensational, it is not necessary to read between the lines of this report to understand the deep concern it expresses. Essentially it is another warning of the threat of the blaze of inflation.

Because the council's warning was ignored, President Truman decided to make inflation, with its imminent peril to the Nation's economy, the theme of his speech to the American Society of Newspaper Editors. He used much more blunt language than the cautious economic councilors.

Congress, the report points out in a strictly factual way, is engaged in putting more fuel on the inflation bonfire. A large part of this spending is rated as essential by the Administration as part of the defense program. But it all stokes the fire.

On top of the $5,300,000,000 foreign recovery program, the House has approved an expanded aviation program to cost $3,200,000,000. On top of this will be the cost of an expanded Army and Navy, the manpower to be provided by a renewal of Selective Service.

At the same time the blithe spirits in Congress voted a tax cut that will mean a loss of nearly five billion dollars in revenue. In their earlier reports, the council points out, they had assumed that this would not happen. Apparently no one has told the learned doctors that it is an election year.

SO THE FLAME of inflation flares out and it sears millions who are caught within its reach. The average householder is discovering that the basic things at the bottom of the pyramid are going up. His tax bill is higher and likewise his electric light bill.

What to do about it? The council proposes certain controls which would help to check the wildest scramble for scarce commodities. "... ordinary prudence," says the report, "requires that increased attention be given to perfecting a system of allocations, priorities and export and domestic use limitations which would build up adequate stockpiles and safeguard production under the defense plan against bottlenecks and breakdowns."

In other words, we must be willing to accept a minor degree of self-discipline in order to keep the house from being burned down. The key to control is above all in metals, and especially steel, which today brings in the gray or black market two or three times the list price.

A touchy question in an election year, the way in which such controls should be applied, has been anxiously debated inside the Administration. A first step would probably be to prevent any more steel from going into the manufacture of oil and gas furnaces. The burden on the country's natural gas and oil supply is already strained to the breaking point.

The next step might be to restrict the use of steel for natural gas pipe lines. Consumers would not directly feel such restrictions. Fairly soon, however, it would be necessary to get down to the automobile industry, which consumes vast quantities of steel. Then you would hear a yell from the public.

ONE MAN who has a direct stake in this controversy is Paul G. Hoffman, newly appointed administrator of the European Recovery Program. The success or failure of what he is about to try to do—get Europe started toward economic well-being—may well depend on this very question.

The act he was named to administer gives Hoffman no prior claim on the goods necessary to ship to Europe. He and his aides must go into the market and try to locate the tractors, the fertilizers, the food that they decide the various European countries need.

It is not hard to imagine the difficulty that may arise. The ERP administrator authorizes the Netherlands to buy 1000 tractors at factory X. The Netherlands purchasing mission hopefully places the order, but factory X has an order from the Army for tanks and a backlog of domestic orders. Factory X is not interested in the foreign order.

Consistently President Truman has argued the need for a minimum of controls. When he appeared before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Bernard M. Baruch presented a comprehensive defense program which included essential controls here at home.

There is no sign that Congress intends to take the minimum steps necessary to keep the fire in check. No one likes to put on those curbs, especially at a time when the voters are conscious of what Government is doing. But doing nothing also has its risks, and in this instance, very great risks.

Franco's Friends

On April 7 Mr. Frank Linnen reproached The Washington Post and the rest of us for denying ERP aid to Spain because as he states, Franco "fought communism over a decade ago." I would like to point out to Mr. Linnen that Hitler also fought communism and democracy over a decade ago with the aid of Franco.

Mr. Linnen and others who follow this line of reasoning should make up their minds whose side they are on. Are they for democracy and America or not? Certainly France is not.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Bogota Intelligence

AFTER testifying in a secret session of a congressional committee, Admiral Hillenkoetter, Director of the Central Intelligence Agency, allowed himself to be interviewed in order to show that he had warned the State Department of the Bogota uprising. This would not have been edifying even if the admiral had proved his case. But in fact his own evidence disproves his case.

Lippmann

The key intelligence dispatch, dated March 23, which he says was withheld from the State Department by a representative of the Department in Bogota said: "Have confirmed information that Communist-inspired agitators will attempt to humiliate the Secretary of State and other members of the United States delegation to the Pan-American conference upon arrival in Bogota by manifestations and possible personal molestation." This was in no sense a warning of what happened in Bogota. No attempt was made to humilitate the Secretary of State; there were no manifestations against the Secretary of State upon his arrival in Bogota, and he has not been subjected to personal molestation.

The fact is that what Admiral Hillenkoetter predicted did not happen, and what did happen was not predicted by Admiral Hillenkoetter.

A "WARNING" that Secretary Marshall was going to be molested can hardly be construed as a warning that there was going to be an uprising against the Colombian government.

It was like the warning that there was going to be Japanese sabotage at Pearl Harbor, which led General Short to take measures against something which did not happen rather than against that which actually did happen.

It seems reasonably certain, not only from the uprising in Colombia but from the condition of the conference before it was interrupted, that the Administration, though it had warning of trouble, had not made a successful diagnosis of the trouble. It seems to have fixed its attention on the "Communist-inspired agitators," and not on the deep and violent popular unrest which was boiling up just under the surface.

THE CRUCIAL and difficult part of intelligence work is not in spying, and the collection of secret information. It is in the appraisal of the information, most of it not secret at all. The first installment of Mr. Churchill's memoirs in Life magazine is worth studying in this connection. There is a passage in which Mr. Churchill tells us how during the years 1931-34, when he was out of office, he managed nevertheless to appraise far more accurately than the government in office what was happening in Nazi Germany.

During those years he worked closely with three men. One was Prof. Frederick Lindemann, later Lord Cherwell, with Desmond Morton, who was in the British Intelligence, and with Ralph Wigram, "then the rising star of the Foreign Office and in the center of all its affairs." Mr. Churchill had access to the same information, scientific, intelligence, and diplomatic, as the government. He did not know any more than did the Prime Minister and the government. Yet he understood what he knew and drew the right conclusions, whereas they did not understand and drew the disastrously wrong conclusions.

THE MORAL of this story is that while an intelligence agency can serve a government, it is not a device for relieving statesmen of the task of judging correctly and wisely the course of events. It is a mistake to expect, and foolish of Admiral Hillenkoetter to talk as if we had a right to expect, the Central Intelligence Agency to appraise the situation in Colombia and South America. That was the business of the President and Admiral Leahy, of Secretary Marshall and Mr. Armour, after they had studied Admiral Hillenkoetter's reports and the State Department's reports. To suppose that an intelligence agency can make these final judgments is in effect to say that the intelligence agency could be not only the eyes and the ears, but also the brains of the Government.

There never was, and there never will be, such an intelligence agency.

THE AFTERMATH of the Bogota explosion shows that it could not have been easy to foresee it. For even by hindsight there is as yet no convincing and consistent story of what happened. That may be due in large measure to the censorship. But I suspect it may also be due to something else, something subtler and more misleading.

That something else is the very human propensity to insist on making the facts fit one's stereotyped preconceptions—in this case to treat a South American revolution as a phase of the Russian revolution, and then to suppose that all revolutionary conditions in the world begin and end in Moscow, that but for Moscow there would be no revolutions.

IN AN EPOCH which is as revolutionary as ours this can be a dangerous infatuation. For it concedes to Moscow exactly what Moscow claims and desires: that all the oppressed and discontented masses of mankind, and there are plenty of them, must look to Moscow for leadership, inspiration, and support. More dangerously even than that it places us in the position where we cannot lead, where we can offer no hope to, these masses, and where all we do is to range ourselves with those against whom their discontent is directed.

The stereotyped assumption that all discontent is Communist-inspired, that all discontent emanates from Moscow, will, if we persist in holding to it, be as fatal to our hopes and policies as it is contrary to our traditions and our genius. For America will never lead the nations to freedom and justice if, in our anxiety about the Red menace we become so hysterical about the Red scare that we can no longer distinguish between democracy and reaction, and lose our sympathy for and our touch with the suffering and bewildered masses of mankind.

Nor shall we be able to read and understand the intelligence reports which come in, no matter how many agents we hire and no matter how we organize the Central Intelligence Agency.

New Catalyst Boosts Output Of 'Gas' 25%, Chemists Told

Chicago, April 19 (AP).—A chemical that boosts the output of gasoline by 25 per cent was reported today by the American Chemical Society.

It also yields more fuel oil from the same starting amount of crude oil, said R. W. Richardson, F. B. Johnson and L. V. Robbins, jr., of the Esso Standard Oil Co., Louisiana division, Baton Rouge.

The chemical is a new cataclyst, which stimulates the cracking or breakdown of crude oil into gasoline and fuel oil.

This cataclyst is silica-magnesia, a combination of dried-out milk of magnesia and common white sand. It's used in powder form as a swirling cloud in a stream of hot oil vapors. Afterward it is recovered in virtually unchanged form, and is used repeatedly.

One disadvantage, they reported, is that the gasoline is not of high quality, but this can be remedied by blending with other fuels.

The process has been tested in model refineries and full-scale demonstrations probably will be made soon, they added.

New Powder May Aid Heart Sufferers

Chicago, April 19 (AP).—A new plastic powder promises many heart disease patients the boon of again eating foods with salt, two scientists reported today.

The powder is swallowed with water, like medicine. It then removes salt from food passing through the intestine.

Patients taking three tablespoons of the powder before and after each meal have been able to eliminate some of the excessive water without restricted diets or medicine, they said.

2 Women Get Awards In Scientific Fields

Chicago, April 19 (AP).—Dr. Gerty T. Cori of the Washington University School of Medicine, St. Louis, has been awarded the American Chemical Society's Francis P. Garvan medal honoring women in chemistry, it was announced tonight.

Miss Aida M. Doyle, 80, of Miami, Fla., was awarded a special diploma certifying 50 years continuous membership in the society. Miss Doyle retired 10 years ago after 13 years of service at Smithsanian Institute. Earlier she had been in the Census Bureau, a chemist in the Department of Agriculture, and a teacher in Washington, D. C. schools.

Bogota's Lesson

By Sumner Welles

Help, Not Indifference

SECRETARY Marshall was right in describing the uprising in Bogota as an "occurrence that goes far beyond Colombia." But whether the revolt was Communist-inspired, or, what seems more likely, merely Communist-abetted, it has had a tragic impact upon the national life of one of the most truly democratic of the American republics. It has undoubtedly dealt a blow to the international prestige of the American regional system.

In the long run, however, more harm will result from the fact that public opinion is now going to be so obsessed with a hemispheric Red scare that it will lose sight of the significance of what happened at the conference before the uprising.

The conference provided new evidence that the inter-American system is in real danger of collapse. For this Communist intrigues are not responsible. It is due chiefly to our own policies in recent years. The impression of the public here that all is well is being deliberately fostered in Washington.

A State Department spokesman has just declared that the inter-American system "is a stronger . . . system that it was at the end of the war." Now such a flagrant misstatement of fact as this not only misleads public opinion but also causes this Government's good faith to be questioned in Latin America.

ON THE very day of this statement, one of the most widely respected statesmen of Latin America said to me: "Bad as it is, the revolt at Bogota may prove to be a blessing in disguise. It will probably pull us together in taking effective defense measures. And it has at least postponed the open clash between the United States and the other republics which seemed inevitable before the rebellion occurred."

The feeling against this country at the Bogota conference was more bitter than at any inter-American meeting since the Havanna conference of 1928. The United States has failed to show any comprehension of our neighbors' most vital problem. It has refused to admit that they have any right to expect the United States to cooperate in a long-range economic program which would relieve their pressing difficulties, and which, by increasing production and promoting industrialization, would help them to raise the living standards of many peoples now illiterate, undernourished, desperately poor and without sanitation or decent housing.

The worst of it is that the peoples of the other Americas are beginning to think that the United States only remembers them when, as after Pearl Harbor, this country urgently needs their help.

OUR MISCONCEPTION of the underlying issue was recently illustrated by an editorial in one of this country's greatest newspapers. It complained that when Secretary Marshall had read to the conference the announcement of President Truman's recommendation that the capital of the Export-Import Bank be increased by 500 million dollars for loans for Latin America, the Latin-American delegates listened in stony silence. Their lack of enthusiasm was termed "the last straw."

This point of view is precisely that of Secretary Marshall and his Cabinet colleagues.

The other American republics had for three years been pleading with the United States to join with them in a program which would safeguard the democratic institutions and insure the future welfare of the hemisphere.

They had been flatly turned down. Yet they were apparently supposed to jump to their feet with jubilation—like school children granted a holiday—upon hearing an announcement that was in no sense responsive to their needs, and the purport of which had been published a month before.

The economic program for which they ask would involve no excessive burdens. It would imply the obligation of this Government, when private capital is neither available nor desired, to assure its neighbors of the credits and facilities needed over a period of years to help in carrying out a constructive development plan upon which all the American republics would agree.

SUCH A PROGRAM would insure economic stability in the new world. By helping to rebuild trade between Europe and Latin American it would expedite the European recovery, which is our major objective. By increasing purchasing power it would expand the market for our own exports. The adoption of this program would be the surest means of halting communism, which only prospers in those parts of Latin America where living standards are pitifully low.

The Latin American republics want no handouts. They do consider themselves entitled to the same friendly cooperation in the solution of their vital problems as that which they gave us during the war.

If the people of the United States want to preserve the inter-American system they must wake up to realities. It is only going to survive if we show our neighbors that we have learned that the welfare of the other Americas is essential to the welfare of the United States.

Pin Money Makes Unexpected Hit

By Richard L. Coe

THE CROWDED CRYSTAL BALL: Metro, which tosses the cabbage leaves about Hollywood with more prodigality than any other studio, is a bit on the astonished side . . . Some time back the studio invested a mere $250,000 in a picture to be made in Europe about a continent's lost children . . . Lazar Weschler, who produced "The Last Chance," had interested the company in a script by Richard Schweizer, who wrote that fine Swiss film . . . Now the film—which will be opening the new Playhouse a week from tonight—is a great hit in New York and a Nation-wide advertising campaign is under way. . . . Behind this unexpected success story is the American photographer, Therese Bonney . . . Despite her French-sounding name, Mabel Therese Bonney is a native Californian and that last name is Scottish . . . Miss Bonney's 1939 photographs of the children in Finland led to her remarkable book of pictures on "Europe's Children." . . . With the backing of President Roosevelt, she was able to get into the combat theaters in the eventful summer of 1944. . . . About this time Miss Bonney began to hammer on doors to back her in a film . . . UNRRA was most responsive and through Lazar Wechsler she got real encouragement . . . Military and international red tape slowed down the project, but finally all the various permits were in order and Producer Wechsler was able to make a start on the story, the germ of which Miss Bonney contributed from cases she had met on her own travels . . . It's a long tale, but Metro's role made possible a Hollywood director and a cast of names for the grown-up leads—the Metropolitan Opera's Jarmila Novotna, Montgomery Clift, Aline MacMahon and Wendell Corey . . . The youngsters are the real thing and when, for screen tests, they had to hold numbered cards, they shook with fear . . . Those numbers reminded their brief memories of concentration camps . . . Director Fred Zinnemann tells of one Jewish boy who had miraculously escaped as the Nazis were taking him to a gas chamber . . . Others had lived in the ruins of buildings like animals until UNRRA workers found them . . . The youngsters were not paid money . . . They received clothing and food instead . . . Now, through an endless chain of events, touched off by Miss Bonney's wartime rovings, it looks as though a slight financial investment has caught a stirring film, a picture with a heart.

HELEN HAYES will be making her London debut right after she finishes her performances out at Olney with her daughter in "Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire." . . . It seems astonishing that Miss Hayes has never played in England. One of America's great stars is known in England only through the films she made a dozen years ago . . . The role for London? None other than Amanda in "The Glass Menagerie," which the late Laurette Taylor created so memorably . . . Miss Hayes sails for England June 9, three days after her last Olney appearance, which means that her projected second summer theater appearance on the Coast is being canceled . . . Who'll have the other roles is undetermined, but Pamela Brown is mentioned for the Julie Haydon part . . . She'll be presented in England by H. M. Tennent, Ltd., which really means Hugh Beaumont, John C. Wilson's London partner . . . Because it has Miss Hayes on its schedule next season, the Theater Guild, too, will share honors with Bicky Beaumont in the offering . . . It will be a "limited" engagement, for Miss Hayes must get back to New York for a late winter production of "Speak to Me of Love," S. N. Behrman's adaptation of Archard's "Aupres de Ma Blonde." . . . Crowded days ahead, indeed, for Miss Hayes.

GW STUDENTS are pepped up about their offering of "Dark of the Moon," which will be played Friday and Saturday nights this week in Lisner Auditorium, with a Thursday night performance for the faculty . . . This story of the witch boy and the mountain girl stems from the Smoky Mountain ballad, "Barbara Allen," and was a notable success after its opening here several years ago with Carol Stone and Richard Hart, who's since gone on to the movies . . . The play was written for a college course at the University of Iowa by Howard Richardson and William Berney . . . Charles Vorbach and Zelda Fichandler are playing the leads . . . Seats now at the Lisner box office and phone reservations between 1 and 10 p. m. at NAtional 5055.

FIRST ISSUE of the new Theater Arts magazine will be out on Thursday . . . Charles MacArthur (the playwright and Helen Hayes' husband) is the editor of this new effort at a theater magazine by Publisher Alexander S. Ince, who recently bought out the old Theater Arts and has combined it with his old "Stage." . . . In the first issue will be an exclusive interview with George Bernard Shaw by Jean Dalrymple, one of the theater's liveliest ladies, who recently returned from Europe with a production of Sartre's latest, "Soiled Hands," in her briefcase . . . She'll share American rights with Gabriel Pascal . . . Other writers in the first Theater Arts issue will include Gilbert Gabriel, Brooks Atkinson and—Louis Broomfield, who is, of all things, dance critic of the magazine.

XAVIER CUGAT has a nifty, novel contest skedded for his week on the Capitol stage starting Thursday . . . He'll be searching for the best rhumba dancers . . . The contest will be held each night at the last show only, and only three couples may enter each night . . . You'll register as you go in from 6 o'clock onward, and the names registered will be put in a bowl . . . The first three Cugat pulls out will be called to the stage to give their rhumba . . . Last night of the run—Wednesday—Cugat will give $100 to the best rhumba couple of the week.

FAYE EMERSON, who last night began her final week at the National in "The Play's the Thing." The comedy's New York housing problem has been solved by the quick closing of Keith Winter's drama, "The Rats of Norway." Which makes it possible for the Molnar revival to open a week from tonight at the Booth

Man Sentenced In School Bus Child Fatality

A Waldorf, Md., saw mill operator yesterday was sentenced to serve 18 months in the Maryland House of Correction for the traffic death of a 10-year-old girl as she boarded a school bus in front of her home in Silesia, Md.

Clemmer Basil Mills, 37, saw mill operator and lumber dealer, was sentenced by Trial Magistrate Alan Bowie in Upper Marlboro Police Court.

Mills was convicted of being the driver of a truck which instantly killed 10-year-old Rose Mary Thorne, 8191 Livingston rd. Silesia, as she boarded an Oxon Hill school bus in front of her home on April 5.

He also was fined $50 for driving with inadequate brakes and $25 for failing to come to a full stop 10 feet in front of a loading school bus.

Defense Attorney Frank M. Hall appealed the manslaughter conviction to the county circuit court and Mills was released on $1000 bond after paying the two fines.

Mills told the court that he saw the bus, but no one was around it and it appeared as if the bus had just loaded and was in the act of driving away.

In handing down the decision, Bowie declared that failure to stop for a school bus is a "violation of the strongest kind and under the law as we see it we can enter but one verdict, guilty on all three counts."

Mexico University Retains Rector Forced to Resign

Mexico City, April 18 (U.P.)—The board of governors of the National University today refused to accept the resignation of Dr. Salvador Zubiran, rector of the government-supported university.

The demonstrators charged he had been by-passing the student council.

The Conservative newspaper, Excelsior, reported the student demonstrators "seemed to have been aroused by Communist agitators" and that secret service agents "were watching the office of the Institute of Mexican-Russian Cultural Relations," from which, the paper said, some of the demonstrators were seen to emerge.

Farm Housing Plan Offered in Senate

A Republican and a Democratic Senator joined yesterday in proposing a $267,500,000 farm housing amendment to the Wagner-Taft-Ellender housing bill.

The amendment, sponsored by Senators Milton R. Young (R., N. Dak.) and Richard B. Russell (D., Ga.), authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture to make both loans and grants for new construction, alterations or repairs to farm homes.

Under the proposal, a farm owner would be eligible for Federal housing assistance on a showing:

1. That his farm is without "a decent, safe and sanitary dwelling" and other adequate facilities for his family, resident farm labor, or the family of the operating tenant or sharecropper.

2. That he is without sufficient resources to provide the improvements on his own account, and

3. That he is unable to secure the credit elsewhere under terms that he could reasonably be expected to fulfill.

To finance the farm home loans and grants, the amendment authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture to issue 25 million dollars in notes, for purchase by the Treasury, this year; an additional 50 million dollars in 1949, 75 million in 1950 and 100 million in 1951.

The bill now carries no rural housing program, but makes provision for a special study.

The Senate, meantime, put over until tomorrow action on a whole series of amendments sponsored by Senator Ralph E. Flanders (R., Vt.) and the Senate Banking Committee and backed by Senate Republican steersman Robert A. Taft.

The so-called "Taft amendments," opposed by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.), would be substituted for some 14 McCarthy amendments tentatively adopted last Wednesday.

Senator Robert F. Wagner (D., N. Y.), who with Taft and Senator Allen J. Ellender (D., La.) drew the long-stalemated original long-range housing bill, yesterday threw his "unqualified" backing behind the Taft amendments.

Wagner, long absent from the Senate because of illness, said the basic principles of the Taft proposal remain substantially the same as in the original bill.

"It is based on practically the same finding of housing needs, from 1,250,000 to 1,500,000 new dwelling units a year," said Wagner. "It provides credit tools and other aids to enable private enterprise to take care of the need.

"It establishes Federal aid for local programs for slum clearance and it extends Federal subsidies to local communities providing decent housing for low income families who cannot be adequately served by private enterprise."

McCarthy has written all members of the Senate outlining some of his points of housing bill conflict with Taft. He complained that the Taft version would "continue the present discrimination against lowest income groups in the selection of tenants for public housing." One of McCarthy's amendments would give welfare or relief families first choice at public housing. McCarthy complained also that the Taft draft would continue to provide public housing facilities to persons with enough income to rent privately-built homes.

Two Net $750 In 72 Hours At Roulette

Las Vegas, Nev., April 19 (U.P.).—Two young men who invented a system to beat the roulette wheel quit today after 73½ hours' play at the Golden Nugget Casino, richer by an estimated $730.

Albert Hibbs, Chillicothe, Ohio, and Dr. Roy Walford, San Diego, Calif., cashed in their chips today after three days of nearly uninterrupted gambling.

The bearded, weary men wouldn't disclose their exact winnings, but said "we made more than our expenses."

Club officials estimated that Hibbs and Walford earned about $10 an hour and ran their $300 stake up to about $1000.

Their winnings, however, were far lower than the estimated $12,000 they won last year in Reno, Nev., playing their secret system.

Rail Freight Rates Upped Another 5%

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday granted another temporary freight rate increase averaging about 5 per cent.

The increases, totaling more than $300,000,000 a year, will apply to both railroads and domestic water carriers. They may be made effective on 10 days' notice to the public.

The commission said higher rates were required because of the freight business which has been lost because of work stoppages, in the coal mining and other major industries, and by severe winter conditions in the early months of this year.

The ICC noted the railroads themselves "are now facing either the possibility of a work stoppage under a strike vote already "taken" or an increase in their labor costs.

The new increase lifts rates within the East by 10 per cent, within the South by 5 per cent, and within Zone 1 of Western territory by 5 per cent. Zone 1 covers an area immediately west of Chicago compromising Iowa, northern Missouri, southeastern Minnesota and most of Wisconsin.

The commission said rates on freight moving within the West and South and the West and East will take a 5 per cent increase.

For many years the standard of measurement among motor cars has been Cadillac. First in all the things that make an automobile desirable, it has come to be accepted the world over as the yardstick of automotive goodness. Today, Cadillac's margin of leadership is the greatest in history. Never before has it forged so far ahead in the basic motor car virtues. To own a Cadillac is to own the unquestioned best.
If you are waiting for a new Cadillac—please be assured that every effort is being made to further production. Demand is so great, however, that some delay in delivery is still inevitable. But hold to your purpose! There is no substitute for a Cadillac.

A's Shock Red Sox by Winning Twice, 5-4, 4-2

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

GRIFFITH STADIUM, April 19.—Thirty-two thousand truants from gainful pursuits are assembled here this afternoon. Something to do with a ball game scheduled at 3:00 p. m. It's the Yankees, who are defending the 1947 pennant, versus the Nats, who want no part of defending seventh place.

POVICH

The Washington athletes, affecting a neat black pin stripe in their white uniforms this year, are at least trying to look like the Yankees, sartorially. But in the preseason polls the Yankees are labeled emphatically as a ball team of another stripe.

President Truman is here to make the opening pitch. The Nation's first fan is one of the last to arrive. He disdained the grand entrance across the lawn and snuck into his box seat the back way, on the advice of his Secret Service men and against the advice of his public relations men.

There's some doubt right now whether baseball or politics is the great American game. The President is shaking hands warmly with his opposition, Speaker Joe Martin and Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, both of whom have eyes on his opening game pitching job, that includes board and room at the White House for four years.

MR. TRUMAN, a leftist in baseball matters, throws out the first ball without a windup, and an unfeeling Republican comments "That winds up his career at the opening game ceremonies."

The game started one home run ago. It didn't take the Yankees long. Early Wynn lost face against the second man he faced, Tommy Henrich, who pumped a homer into the left field seats with George Stirnweiss on base. Henrich, a left-handed hitter, isn't supposed to hit into the left field seats but he went ahead and did it anyway.

The Yankees have slackened their pace in the first inning. They're only hitting singles now—three in a row, and there's a four and—oops—there's another home run, with two aboard, by Allie Reynolds—hey, he's the Yankee pitcher. Everybody's getting into the act.

The Yankees have a 7-0 lead at the end of the first half of the first inning and it can be said definitely that if this isn't going to be a good game, it's gonna be a long one. The 32,000 Washington fans have effected a new look in the last 20 minutes. They're wearing their faces longer.

HEY, THE NATS are looking better—on the field and on the scoreboard. They have three runs themselves in the first inning, and you can read the thoughts of Reynolds—he should have stuck to his hitting.

For a team that scored seven runs an inning ago, the Yankees look distressed. Reynolds just walked two men in a row in the second, and there are conferences in the pitcher's box and Joe Page is warming up on the sidelines.

The tension is off for the Yankees now. Reynolds got the side out on Coan's line drive back to the box which the Yankee pitcher caught with his gloved hand just before he nearly got a snootful of baseball.

THE YANKS are off again. They just came up with two more in the fourth on a single by Henrich, a double by Keller and a single by McQuinn. Early Wynn is still in there, obviously because the Nats need his hitting. Certainly they don't need his pitching.

They don't need Wynn's fielding, either. He just messed up an infield hit by Rizzuto in the fifth. But the Yankees didn't get any more runs because Mickey Vernon got it at the start and finish of a double play on Reynolds' fiery grounder.

9-4, Yankees. The Nats just came up with a run in the fifth with a furious attack launched against Reynolds by Eddie Yost, who drew a walk and scrambled to second on a passed ball. Culberson scored him with a single to left.

THE NATS DIDN'T get more than one run because venerable George McQuinn roused his old bones at first and made a larcenous one-hand grab of Jake Early's steaming grounder. It was more than mildly criminal.

12-4, Yankees. They just rapped Wynn for three more runs in the ninth, abetted by Yost's wild throw and Coan's boot, and as for that message to Garcia 50 years ago, he apparently just got it, because he's coming in to pitch for the Nats.

The Nats staged a ninth-inning rally comprised of two singles and no runs and fell eight runs short of sending the game into extra innings.

64 by Locke Leads Open

Southtrn Pines, N. C., April 19 (AP).—Bobby Locke of South Africa ripped into the first round of the Carolinas Open golf tournament today with an eight under par 64 to take the lead by five strokes. It was a competitive course record.

Playing at the scene of his first American triumph, Lockt was three strokes under the old record for the 6661-yard Mid Pines course.

Locne seared the course with a nine birdie barrage but lost one of those on the par three thirteenth to end up eight under regulation figures and five strokes ahead of second-placer Johnny Bulla of Greensboro, N. C.

Two other players broke par 72. In the third place with 70 were Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C., who played with Lockt and Glenn Teal, former Jacksonville, Fla., pro, now playing out of Charlotte.

Stranahan Leads

Frank Stranahan led the 64 qualifyers today in the forty-eighth annual North and South amateur championship by firing a one-under par 71.

The Toledo, Ohio strongboy had the only sub-par round recorded.

Four men came in with par 72's. They were Capt. Fred G. Mosley, Landover, Md.; the Army champion, George Hamer, jr., Columbus, Ga.; Fran B. Edwards, Caroleen, N. C., and Charley Price of Washington. Donald Cooke of Chevy Chase, Md., was six strokes off the lead with a 77.

Horse Destroyed as Fever Precaution

Jamaica, N. Y., April 19 (AP).—A horse named Forfar has been destroyed after developing what was dianosed as Pneumonia, the action being taken as a precautionary measure since the symptoms of that illness and swamp fever are somewhat similar.

Yanks Rout Nats, 12-4, In Opener

was something less than invincible, and was wild to the point where as early as the second inning Manager Bucky Harris called for relief man Joe Page to warm up on the sidelines.

Nats Are Nervous

Against the Yankee power the Nats were a feeble and erratic gang, displaying a first-game nervousness that was nowhere apparent in the battle-hardened Yankees. When it appeared in the fifth inning that the Nats might get back into the ball game, with the Yanks' lead cut to 9-4, two on and only one out, First Baseman George McQuinn dashed the hopes of the 31,728 with a super one-hand grab of Jake Early's fiery swat toward right field.

Outfielder Leon Culberson, newcomer to the Nats from the Red Sox, towered above his mates on opening day. He crashed out four singles, three of them in succession, to break into the lineup with a bang.

Wynn bore no resemblance to the fast-balling right hander who won 17 games with a seventh-place club last year, and the Yankees rocked him for six hits in the opening inning. Manager Joe Kuhel did not relieve him until two were out in the ninth when the Yankees had all of their 16 hits and 12 runs. Then he called on Cuban Rookie Ramon Garcia who retired the only two batters he faced.

It's 2-0 in a Hurry

Wynn's ineffectiveness was foreshadowed when he walked George Stirnweiss, the first man he faced on four pitched balls. Henrich, with two strikes against him, lashed a homer into the temporary seats in left field and the Yanks had a 2-0 lead.

Joe DiMaggio and George McQuinn renewed the Yanks' assault with singles to left with one out, and then the Yankees got a break. Bill Johnson's bleeder down the third base line evolved as a single and the third Yankee run scored. Rizzuto grounded into a force out at second, but Rookie Catcher Gus Niarhos rapped a single to right for the fourth run of the inning.

Whereupon Reynolds improved his lead by three more runs with a homerun smack into the left field that barely cleared the head of Outfielder Gil Coan and the 3-foot barrier.

Wynn Makes Smart Play

Wynn steadied somewhat thereafter but the Yankees clouted him for two more runs in the fourth, on Henrich's single, a double to left by Keller and McQuinn's single to left.

They had the bases full with two out in the sixth when Wynn got out of trouble by grabbing Johnson's grounder and making a force play at home with a smart throw.

In the ninth, Eddie Yost inspired some more Yankee runmaking with a two-base wild throw of DiMaggio's soft grounder. Johnson's double to center scored DiMaggio, and Rizzuto scored Johnson with a single to left. When Coan bobbled Rizzuto's hit, the Yankee reached third. Garcia replaced Wynn and Niarhos' fly to Coan scored Rizzuto.

Yost Starts a Rally

Back in the first inning the Nats countered the Yankees' seven big runs bravely enough with three of their own. Yost opened up on Reynolds with a double to left. Kozar smashed a single past McQuinn, and Coan followed with a two-bagger to left after Reynolds had two strikes on him.

Culberson's single to left drove in the third run of the inning but the attack died when Robertson struck out and Christman popped up.

The Nats didn't get another run until the fifth, when they got their last one. Vernon walked and took second on a uassed ball. Culberson moved him home with a single to right, and a bit later Christman beat out a hit with one out. But McQuinn stole a hit away from Early and the Nats were a gone gang.

Lopat, Hudson To Pitch Today

Right-handed Sid Hudson will do the pitching for the Nats today against the Yankees. Hudson, off to a great early season start last year, was bothered with a sore shoulder later and finished with a 6-9 record.

His mound opponent will be Ed Lopat, the osuthpaw the Yankees obtained from the White Sox last winter. Lopat, who beat the Nats consistently last year, had a 16-13 record for 1947.

Blackwell Gives 7 Hits

Reds Whip Pirates, 4 to 1; Umpire, Fan, Players Tangle

Cincinnati, April 19 (AP).—Home runs by Hank Sauer and Bobby Adams, combined with Ewell Blackwell's classy hurling, gave the Cincinnati Reds a 4-1 victory today over the Pittsburgh Pirates as the clubs opened a day ahead of the National League pack before 32,174 fans.

A free-for-all pushing-pulling argument in which players, umpires and fans participated, marred the contest and held up play for five minutes while the field was cleared of pop bottles.

The scrap started in the eighth inning after Sauer had blasted a homer with Grady Hatton aboard.

Babe Young then hit a double to the right field wall and ran into Shortstop Stan Rotek as he went into the keyston sack.

Young, who had fallen, grabbed Rotex and both started swinging in futile fashion while teammates of both rushed on the field, along with photographers and a couple of spectators.

Both started swinging, but no one was hit. Teammates tried to pull them apart, and photographers swarmed to the scene.

Umpire in Chief Beans Reardon ordered the photographers from the playing field. Umpire Jocko Conlan and one camera clicker scuffled near third, before the photographer, grumbling, departed.

The umpire swung his mask at the spectator but missed and Umpires Jocko Conlan and Larry Goetz rushed in to offer aid. Police arrived a little late and hastened the fan from the field.

Right field fans then showered bottles and other articles in front of the bleachers and time was called to clear away the debris before play was resumed.

Philadelphia, April 19 (AP).—The Philadelphia Phillies announced today outright release of Outfielder Roy Cullenbine.

Win World Series Trip

You Still Have Time to Win In Post's Baseball Contest

The big league baseball season started yesterday. From now on, you'll be keeping up with results in the American and National Leagues.

That means you will want to enter The Washington Post's Pick-the-Winner Contest. Each week a ticket to a World Series game and a round-trip, first-class railroad ticket will be awarded to the person winning the contest. Two tickets to current games of the Nats also will be awarded each week.

All you have to do is fill out the contest blank which appeared in Sunday's edition of The Washington Post. Or you may use a reasonable, handwritten or typewritten facsimile of the contest blank.

You have until midnight, Wednesday, April 21, to mail your entry to the Baseball Contest Editor of The Washington Post. Better send your selections in right now. Do so before you throw away your paper of last Sunday.

Wynn Just Didn't Have It But Kuhel Not Disheartened

Tlthough his major league debut as a manager was soured by the 12-4 defeat the Yankees hung on his Nats, Joe Kuhel was far from disheartened after the game.

"Wynn (Early Wynn) didn't have bad stuff," Kuhel said in the dressing room. "The Yankees just jumped on him quick, but they're liable to do that to any team.

"We'll go with Hudson tomorrow. I understand they're using Lopat. If he's in there, Tom McBride will replace Sherry Robertson in right field and Al Evans will be the catcher."

The Nats, Too

Everybody Got Into Jam at Park

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

GRIFFITH STADIUM, April 19.—You get to the ball park two hours early in hopes of avoiding the jam, but what do you run right smack into—a jam. It was nothing like the Nats got into in the first inning, however.

There were hundreds outside trying to buy nonexistent tickets and an equal number of vendors peddling everything from souvenirs left over from last year's Redskin season to rubber baseballs with Joe DiMaggio's autograph on them.

Most of the 32,000 people here today are not real baseball fans—they're just opening-day fans bargain hunting. For the price of a single ticket they get to see the President of the United States, many other nationally prominent people, the world champion baseball team and other sights, including the Nats.

About 20 minutes before the ball game the Yanks and Nats lined up in a human fringe around the diamond to await the presidential pitch. Someone spotted a No. 33 among the athletes and Dick McCann, of the Redskins, informed him that it was Nick Altrock, not Sammy Baugh.

There were a few seconds' hesitation by Mr. Truman before he tossed out the first ball. He switched the ball from one hand to the other and a kid nearby said: "That's what the Nats need—a pitcher who can throw with either hand."

SPEAKER of the House Joe Martin, a Republican, wanted Mr. Truman to throw the ball right-handed, but the President pitched left-handed. His act was warmly approved by Sid Hudson, who caught it.

All the pregame ceremonies over, the umpires assembled for their pregame conference. Clark Griffith dispatched his No. 1 strategist, Manager Joe Kuhel, to the parley, and the Yanks were represented by Chuck Dressen, coach in charge of ground rules and all traffic around third base.

After Tommy Henrich had deposited a home run to make it 2-0, Yankees, Al Kozar and Mickey Vernon retired Charlie Keller to set the stage for Joe DiMaggio's first appearance. Gil Coan, taking no chances, moved so far back against the temporary left field bleachers that an usher asked to see his seat stub. DiMaggio however, crossed Coan up—he drilled a vicious single through the mound which almost amputated Early Wynn's right leg.

A FEW PITCHES later Pitcher Allie Reynolds hit a three-run homer to make it 7-0 and several of the football-minded fans began looking around for the goal posts. Other patrons wanted Clark Griffith, Commissioner Chandler and House Speaker Martin to raise the flag again and start the game from scratch.

MANY FANS CONTINUED to argue that Coan could have caught the home runs Henrich and Reynolds hit if the temporary stands had not been in left field. Their arguments, however, failed to make an impression on the scoreboard operator, who continued to show that big "7" in the first inning.

Wynn was still around when the ninth opened up, but he wasn't there when it was over. He literally got booted out of the game. Yost turned DiMaggio's bounder into a double and Coan overran Rizzuto's single into a triple. That's when Wynn went out and Garcia came in.

Lou Brissie Gives Only 4 Hits; Spence Raps Homer

Boston, April 19 (AP).—Patriots' Day which began with bright sunshine ended in a drizzle and so did the hopes of Boston rooters whose Red Sox were defeated twice by the Philadelphia Athletics, 5-4 and 4-2.

A crowd of 22,409 fans saw the Sox lose an 11 inning morning contest 5-4 as the A's Phil Marchildon weathered successive home runs by three Boston batters in the second inning.

In the afternoon contest, witnessed by an additional audience of 33,875, rookie left hander Lou Brissie, whose left leg was so badly shattered by German shrapnel he has to wear a shinguard, limited the powerful Boston pennant contenders to four hits.

Brissie Hit by Drive

Only Red Sox who were able to hit Brissie were starting Pitcher Denny Galehouse who knocked in the first Boston run, Sam Mele, Dom DiMaggio and Ted Williams.

Williams' hit was a bullet line drive which smashed off Brissie's bad leg, an inch above his protective plastic guard. The Anderson, S. C., native fell in agony as the ball bounced sharply out of the infield.

Lou Goes to Hospital

As a precautionary measure Brissie later was sent to Faulkner Hospital, for X-rays.

In the morning contest another A's war hero, Pitcher Phil Marchildon who was shot down while flying for the Canadian Air Force, had only the one bad inning. first three batters all hit home runs.

First Sacker Stan Spence, Shortstop Vern Stephens and Second Baseman Bobby Doerr accomplished this unusual feat. The Sox added another run in the eleventh but two errors played a large part in that score.

The A's won the morning contest by scoring twice in the eleventh on Buddy Rosar's double and singles by Pete Suder and Eddie Joost.

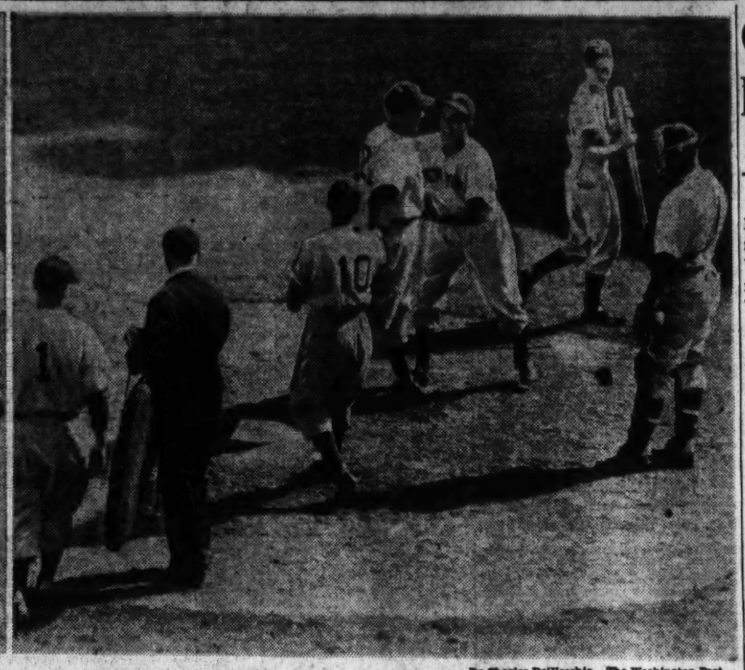
W&L Beats GW, 13-12, on Vinson's 10th Inning Single



By Charles DelVecchio—The Washington Post

SAME OLD YANKEE STORY—The Yankees demonstrated yesterday they still can hit a long ball. In the opening inning of the opening game of the 1948 season with the Nats, they drove two homers into the temporary left field stands. Left, Tommy Henrich is congratulated at the plate by George Stirnweiss after Henrich homered. The umpire is Bill Grieve. No. 12 of the Yankees is Charley Keller and the Washington catcher is Jake Early. Right, the scene at home plate after Pitcher Allie Reynolds also homered in the first inning. Left to right: Stirnweiss, Grieve, Phil Rizzuto, Reynolds, Gus Nairhos, bat boy and Early. Those two homers produced five of the Yankees' seven runs in the first inning

Colonials Behind, 12-2, At One Point

Lexington, Va., April 19 (AP).—Fred Vinson's single into centerfield in the tenth inning scored Willis Woods with the tie-breaking run as Washington and Lee's baseball team trimmed George Washington here today, 13-12.

The victory was No. 7 for the undefeated Generals in Southern Conference competition, and sustained them in the league leadership, one full game ahead of North Carolina.

The Generals had piled up a 12-2 lead in the first six frames before the visiting Colonels attacked Pitcher John Ligon with a batting barrage which developed seven runs in the seventh inning.

Two more tallies off Relief Hurler Lacey Putney in the eighth put the Generals in serious trouble and First Baseman Don Druckenmiller's second round tripper of the day in the ninth inning sent the game into an extra inning.

Vinson had already banged out a home run, a double and a single when he came to bat with two men out in the tenth.

Jack Sacks Takes Fancy To N. C. Bass

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

IF LARGE-MOUTH BASS fishing's your fancy, Jack B. Sacks of Chevy Chase knows the place to go.

He's still glowing over the recent highly successful trip he made to the Currituck Sound area in North Carolina. And he plans to go back for more in the near future.

On the northeast tip of the State, it's a good 250 miles from here. But Sacks claims the roads are excellent and the results make the trip worthwhile.

In the first place, there's no closed season on bass. "After that," Sacks said. "The legal lshing there, I can understand quota is eight a day and the minimum size 12 inches. Although his catch averaged about a pound and a half, it isn't uncommon to take six and seven-pounders.

standable. He's been fishing for Sacks' enthusiasm is underbass for 25 years and says he can't remember taking his limit more than a half-dozen times. About an hour after he made his first cast near Spot, N. C., he had his initial day's quota.

According to Sacks, fresh water bass fishing is big business down there. There are more guides in Currituck than in any other county in North Carolina. Sportsmen's accomodations are plentiful, costing about $6 per day for a room and three meals.

It is difficult to rent a boat, if you have your own outboard. Guides find it more profitable to take out fishermen themselves, charging $6 per person for a day's sport. After the superb fishing he found, Sacks said he didn't begrudge the fee.

He explained, "the native guides know every gut, bay and creek of the sound. I seldom use a guide, but in that area I think it's practical. It's too easy to get lost without one—all those marshy streams look alike and I'd be afraid I'd never find my way out."

With his guide, 250-pound Grover Sawyer, poling a skiff, Sacks employed three fishing methods with equal success. He used a Yellow Sally fly with a No. 2 spinner and a home-made black and white bucktail affair. Then he tried surface plugs—black, perch and frog jitterbugs. When it was windy, he tied a hook on the end of a leader, putting a cork 15 or 16 inches from the hook and baiting it with a minnow.

North Carolina sells a special tourist license to nonresidents. It costs $1.60 for a day; $2.60 for five days.

Sacks suggests this route by car: No. 1 to Petersburg, Va.; 160 to Suffolk; 58 and 191 to Deep Creek; 191 to Great Bridge, Va.; 170 to Sligo, N. C.; 34 to Colnjock, N. C., and No. 158 to any point on Currituck Sound to Kitty Hawk.

A more expensive, but more leisurely way to go is to take the Norfolk & Washington boat to Norfolk, putting quor car to Norfolk, putting your car on the boat. After the overnight trip, you'd be only about 75 miles away. And in two hours, you'd be ready to start pulling in bass.

Bucky Harris Makes Sports Award Presentation to His Son

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Bucky Harris will make special award presentations to his 15-year-old son Dick tonight, and not a kid in town thinks Dick is undeserving.

Dick, one of the best athletes in recent Georgetown Branch Boys Club history, will receive from his famous dad a letter, three gold stars, two gold basketballs and a gold medal.

Dick joined the club last summer in time to play second base (his dad's old position) for Hutchinson Furniture in the Boys Clob Western Division Junior League. He swatted .330 to lead his team to fourth place in the nine-team league.

Dick, 5 feet, 9 inches, also played left end on the Georgetown Branch 105-pound football team. His team finished second and was the only one to score on and beat Champion Eastern Branch. In that 6-0 game, Dick caught 1 passes. He also handled his team's punting and got or two 60-yard boots.

Next he proved himself a standout basketball player. He played for the American legion, Post 51, which won three Boys Club championships. In one game aagingt Friendship House he tossed in 28 points.

Now he is playing second base for May Hardware in the Boys Club Western Division Senior League. He is one of the youngest players in the league, most of the others being 17.

The awards presentation will take place at a special athletic awards banquet for 175 Boys Club lads at the Continental Hotel. When Dick rises to accept the prizes from the Yankee manager, onlookers will note a strong facial resemblance between the two.

Joe Branzell says the resemblance also holds true when Dick puts on a baseball uniform. "Altohugh he's rangner than his dad, he hustles and handles himself like Bucky," which should be recommendation enough for and interested big league scouts.

Cote's 'Sprint' in Last Seven Miles Wins Boston Marathon

Boston, April 19 (AP).—Gerard Cote, 34-year-old policeman from St. Hyacinthe, Que., won the fifty-second annual Boston A. A. Marathon for the fourth time in nine years today.

Cote also won the classic in 1940, 1943 and 1944.

The veteran Cote outran young Ted Vogel of Tufts College, the National A. A. U. champion, over the last half of the race.

Cote's time for the 26 mile, 385 yard course was 2 hours, 31 minutes and 2 seconds—nearly six minutes off the record set in 1947 by the little Korean runner Yun Bok Suh.

Vogel, who raced shoulder-to-shoulder with the former Canadian army sergeant for 19 miles, was second in the grind, finishing in 2:31.46.

Vogel was leading at the half-way mark but Cote pushed into a 70-yard lear about 7 miles from the finish on what is known as "Heartbreak Hill."

Vogel began to falter somewhat here. His feet seemed to be bothering him, but he picked up again and within the next mile and a half caught the stylish-running Canadian.

At Coolidge Corner in neighboring Brookline, 3 miles from the finish, Cote cut looseand raced into a 30-yard lead which he increased step-by-step until he finished about 200 yards in front. Smiling Johnny Kelley of West Acton, a two-time winner who has finished second more than any other competitor, was fourth in 2:37.52.

Fifth place went to Ollie Mannlnen of the Boston A. A., whose time was recorded as 2:39.59. There were 143 starters.

Harpers Ferry Wins

Harpers Ferry, W. Va., April 19 Harpers Ferry High's baseball team walked away with an 11-7 victory over Hedgesville (W. Va.) High in an error aboundant game played here. The game had been originally scheduled for Hedgesville, but was shifted because of a conflict in school work.

Strikeout Expert

Fort Royal, Va., April 19.—John Pickrell, righthanded pitcher of the Warren County High School baseball team of Fort Royal, Va., has 28 strike outs to his credit in 16 innings of pitching against two opponents this season.

Weak Knees Force Saggy Out of Derby

Havre de Grace, Md., April 19 (AP).—Calumet Farm's Citation ran the legs off Mrs. Helen Sagner's Saggy—literally—in Saturday's Chesapeake Stakes.

The bargain colt's weak knees gave out again and the limp removes whatever doubts there were Saggy would challenge Citation in the Kentucky Derby. This eliminated all three of the eligibles which trailed the Calumet star Saturday.

Sylvester W. Labrot, jr., isn't going to send Bovard even though he finished a creditable second. Mrs. J. C. Stewart or Elkton has sent Dr. Almac to her Elkton, Md., farm for a rest.

Saggy, who had to give up racing for a time last year because of his weak knees, might not even make the May 15 Preakness at Pimlico for which he and Bovard have been made supplementary entries.

Citation, the king of all he surveyed in Maryland, will be shipped to Louisville Thursday, Trainer Jimmy Jones announced. Jones will stay here until Derby Day for which his father, Ben, will make Calumet's final preparations.

Bladensburg Wins

Bladensburg defeated Prince Frederick High, 7-2, yesterday at Bladensburg. Al Haley's homer with one on in fourth paced the Bladensburg attack.

Spring is here—12 months a year
It's always Spring where barley starts on its way to becoming malt in the Home of Budweiser. Spring-like conditions are necessary in order to make the kind of barley malt required by the most expensive brewing process known to America. So, by forcing air through a man-made rainstorm, we create a warm, moist atmosphere that coaxes the barley to sprout, the first big step in malting. This then is followed by many painstaking steps that in the end bring you the distinctive taste and elusive bouquet found only in Budweiser.

Kirk Rides Winner at Garden State

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Garden State, April 19.—Jockey Carson Kirk, Silver Spring, Md., boy who learned to ride at Charles Town, took advantage of the "dark" day at Havre de Grace to make a single saddle appearance here.

He climbed aboard the Christiana Stable's Anna Christie and the combination ran off and hid from five rivals in the Williamston Purse.

Allowed to go postward as the longest shot in the field, Anna Christie led every jump of the 6 furlongs and Kirk coasted her into the wire three and a half lengths in front of the favorite, J. A. Kroeck's Blue Helen. The beaten off third was Mrs. Aksel Wichfeld's Wicki Wicki.

Winner Pays $17

The Philadelphians, who show their brotherly and sisterly love for New Jersey by tossing their coin into the tote, couldn't see Anna Christie as a wagering proposition and she paid $17.

Just to sho wher victory was not a fluke, the filly registered time of 1:10 4/5, a second off the track record and the fastest time of the meeting to date.

Our racing territory also made good in the Medford Purse. Sylverter Rich's Agilant, a son of Sir Walter and Flaming Hamie and bred by the late J. K. Belk of Charlottesville, Va., was the winner by a scant nose over A. T. Hurff's Senoril. Third money went to Tacaro Briar, owned by R. L. Hall, jr., of Upper Marlboro, Md.

Pays $6.60

Agilant, coming back to the races after being rested from Florida campaigning, paid $6.60 and was ridden the 6 furlongs by Jockey Elwood Polk in 1:12.

Marylanders had a chance to cheer in the third race. B. F. Christmas of Upper Morlboro, saddled Hadawin, owned by L. G. LeFaivre, jr., of Baltimore, and the 8-year-old took the fourth race.

Jockey Bill Balzaretti booted the veteran home at a $7.20 mutuel with Joe Kelley's Hedgethorn second and H. W. Len's Listen Tiger, third.

There is no daily double here, but if there were, the twin bet probably would have paid peanuts. Expendable won the first and Copper Hill took the second, both paying $4.20.

ROMAN HOLIDAY was allowed to settle into stride, gained racing room on inside while improving position sharply approaching stretch, rallied to intermittent punishment and was up by head heat in concluding strides. KEL'S LOVE went to front early, shook off PEMBOY, opened good lead, but was tiring at close. V.P.I. CLEF was sent to serious contention along backstretch, but swerved when placed to strong pressure. ETERNAL NEWS could not threaten. LITTLE CASSINO was forward factor early on inside, but faltered after half. PRODIGAL GAL was through early. PEMBOY flashed speed and stopped.

Here Is Why Graw Halted

Havre de Grace, Md., April 19 (AP). A question of spreading available racing dates over as much time as possible brought about the two-day halt in racing at Havre de Grace for this week and for next week, too.

After a juggling of dates, it was decided that Monday and Tuesday at the "Graw" would be "dark" days for duration of the spring meet, which ends May 1.

It all developed after Garden State in New Jersey set up a spring meet.

In order to avoid competition with the Jersey track as much as possible, Maryland race people got together and Bowie track opened early, on March 29.

Havre de Grace, which has a second meet scheduled for July, found itself with an 18-day period between the close of Bowie's meet to the opening at Pimlico on May 3.

To use up all those days and have only seven left for July did not seem feasible, track officials decided. The maximum number of days per year for mile tracks in Maryland is 25.

So, for the last two weeks of the spring meet at Havre de Grace it was decided to run Wednesday through Saturday and thereby get the best days of a week. It also gives three Saturdays for the "Graw."

Underwriters Hear Forecast Of Recession

By S. Oliver Goodman

The short-term business outlook is "moderately poor," while the long-term prospect is bright, Donald B. Woodward said last night at a meeting of the local chapter of the American Society of Chartered Life Underwriters in the Shoreham Hotel.

Addressing 250 insurance men, legislators and business leaders, Woodward declared that "we are now in a position which all history tells us is to be one from which recession comes." He indicated little concern over the short-term period, adding that the long-term prospect is "positively exhilarating and glamorous."

Woodward, vice president of the Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York, added that "without presenting an extensive statement of reasons to support the view, my guess is that relations between nations are so profoundly disrupted, that we shall not experience international tranquility for a long time . . ." America's duty is to "keep aloft a standard to which the world can rally with our aid and guidance."

Insurance growth should continue, he said, for four fundamental reasons: rising population, increasing dependency, greater excess of income over subsistence needs and higher competence of life insurance personnel.

Last night's session marked the twenty-first anniversary of the founding of the American College of Chartered Life Underwriters.

PRICE CUT. General Electric Co. announces its second price cut of the year. It is trimming 5 per cent off fractional horsepower motors, switchgear, conventional transformers, lightning arresters, feeder regulators, cutouts and power capacitors. The other cut—3 to 10 per cent last January 1—concerned household appliances. The company says the new cuts will save its customers 10 million dollars annually. The first one's saving was estimated at 50 million dollars.

Van Deventer, a member of Laidlaw & Co., has been elected a director of American Car & Foundry Co.

MISTAKES CITED: Spiraling costs, errors in management planning and mistakes by Government regulatory agencies were blamed by Warren Lee Pierson, board chairman of Trans World Airline, for the financial setbacks last year of airlines. He pointed out that in 1947 the airlines carried more passengers and cargo than ever before, yet lost more money than in any prior year. Pierson spoke in Baltimore at a gathering of business leaders and officials greeting the inauguration of TWA service into that city next Sunday.

U.N. Conferees Ask Global Free News

Geneva, April 19 (U.P.).—The United Nations Conference on Freedom of information and the Press finally opposed today an American resolution calling for the global guarantee of the right to gather, transmit and publish news everywhere without restrictions.

The conference decisively defeated a Soviet amendment designed to saddle the resolution with an appeal to governments to prevent warmongering and racial propaganda in the press. The vote was 30 to 6, with three abstentions.

The plenary session unanimously adopted a joint resolution submitted by the United States and seven other western nations condemning warmongering and distortion of news.

All resolutions adopted will go to the United Nations Economic and Social Council for further action. The Council in turn will report to the U. N. General Assembly.

Ruling Deferred In Labor Suit on Political Activity

A tribunal of three Federal justices yesterday took under advisement a suit to declare unconstitutional portions of the Taft-Hartley Act forbidding political expenditures by labor unions.

The suit, challenging the civil aspects of the new labor law's ban on union political activity, was brought by Walter P. Reuther, president of the CIO United Auto Workers, against Attorney General Tom C. Clark.

Two justices from the District Court, Jennings Bailey and F. Dickinson Letts, and Federal Circuit Court Justice James M. Proctor, heard the case.

Last month, a Federal judge here declared the ban unconstitutional, in a case involving the criminal, rather than the civil phases of the law. An appeal on the decision will be argued in the Supreme Court next week.

Arbitration Urged On Va. Gas Disput

Richmond, Va., April 19 A.—Governor Tuck today called upon Local 336, Utility Workers of America (CIO) and the Lynchburg Gas Co. to submit their differences to arbitration.

The gas company maintains that the union does not represent the majority feeling among the workers and wants an election on whether the CIO group should continue as bargaining agent.

Temporary Workers Made Eligible for In-Grade Promotion

PROMOTIONS: The several hundred thousand temporary indefinite employes will be made eligible for Ramspeck in-grade promotions. These are the people who have been appointed to Federal jobs since March, 1946, pending the establishment of suitable Civil Service registers.

Many of these workers will get small pay raises in the pay period following a forthcoming Civil Service order. They are in two classes: (1) employes who are classified up to and including CAF-16and P-3; who have served 12 or more months without a change in salary, and whose efficiencyratings ar e good or better, and (2) employes in Grades CAF-11, P-4 and above who have served satisfactorily a minimum of 18 months without a change in salary.

Those periods of service that are less than 12 and 18 months will be counted toward the in-grade promotions. No employe will be given more than one step-up in grade even if he has served 24 months.

The Civil Service order also will make emergency indefinite appointees eligible for in-grade raises. Its legal officials worked out a new order to permit the raises with the cooperation of General Accounting Office officials.

PAY PROGRESS: Senator Taft, the GOP leader, will make a campaign speech in Akron, Ohio, on April 28. At that time he can be expected to reveal his stand on pay raises in general and Federal pay raises in particular.

COMMERCE: The Senate Appropriations Committee gave Commerce an additional $204,000 to enable it to retain its 46 field offices. The House cut would force it to close 10 offices.

LABOR: The committee has restricted the Bureau of Labor Standards' activities to safety and other matters. It has forbidden the agency to inquire into the health conditions of factory workers. The committee gave it $250,000 more than was voted by the House.

NLRB: The National Labor Relations Board was ordered by the committee not to spend money on the problems of agricultural laborers. The House gave the NLRB $7,200,000 to spend in seven months. The Senate committee boosted this to $9,400,000 for nine months. In either case, the agency would be able to hire several hundred additional employes . . . The Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service was given its full budget estimate of $2,940,000 by the committee . . . At the suggestion of Labor officials, the child labor and the youth employment research functions in the Wage and Hour Division were ordered transferred to the Bureau of Labor Standards.

NOTES: The Womens' Bureau was given funds by the committee to continue existing field offices . . . Gordon Grant, jr., a Wall Street lawyer, yesterday was appointed to replace James A. Tawney as clerk of the House Ways and Means Committee. Tawney is able and well-liked by just about everyone on Capitol Hill—except Chairman Knutsen. He's being urged to remain with the committee as a professional adviser on Social Security revision . . . The President yesterday asked Congress to give Maritime 65 million dollars additional. If granted, the agency would hire several hundred additional people.

PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE is planning to purchase the Woodmont Country Club in July. The club and the land surrounding it will be used as a site for the new National Institute of Mental Hygiene.

JOBS: Civil Service yesterday announced an exam. to fill high-grade chemist jobs in Federal agencies here. The jobs pay from $7102 to $9975 a year to start. No written exam. . . . A second exam. for physical therapists also was announced. Starting salaries range from $2644 to $5903. The jobs are open in Federal hospitals with the exception of those operated by VA.

STORY: A young man wearing a button with "LSMFD" on it was observed at yesterday's session of the Supreme Court. Curiosity got the better of another Supreme Court visitor who took a good look at the button and remarked:

"You must work for Lucky Strikes—wearin this utton."

"No," came the reply, "I'm a law school student, and the LSMFD on this ugbbtion means 'Law School Men For Douglas.'" He went on to explain why he thought Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas would make a great President.

But the man with whom he was talking didn't need to be convinced. He had formerly worked with Douglas in the Securities and Exchange Commission, and he's doing what little he can as a Federal lawyer to further the Douglas boom.

SHORTAGE: Civil Service officials are now thoroughly convinced that the stenographer and typist shortage will be with us for years. A check shows that the stenographer who graduates from business school has her choice of at least half a dozen jobs.

So, what's the answer to the problem? Civil Service people say higher salaries would help, but not cure it. They are now urging that Federal officials dust off the dictaphones and other mechanical devices so as to make greater use of the available stenographers and typists.

Jury Indicts 2 In Shooting Fray At Night Club

Participants Prove Reluctant to Testify And Eyewitnesses Also Forget Details

Two men who shot it out here in motive-shrouded gunplay at the Brass Rail, night club restaurant, were yesterday indicted in charges of attempting to kill each other.

The indictments were returned by a Federal grand jury despite refusals of the participants to testify and a general reluctance of eye witnesses to recall details of the shootings.

Indicted were Caarles H. Nelson, 39, of 1803 H st. ne., and Henry M. Leake, also 39, of 104 R st. ne., who has a police record of participation in the numbers racket.

Early Morning Fray

The double shooting occurred at about 2:30 a. m. January 8, at the S st. side of the Brass Rail, 1739 7th st. nw., after the cafe's closing hour. Nelson, night manager then, was shot in the chest; Leake was shot in the back.

Both were admitted to Freedmen's Hospital, though neither was seriously wounded, police said.

Leake was later placed under police guard and charged with assault with a dangerous weapon. In turn, he swore out a warrant against Nelson on a similar charge. Then both participants refused to testify on grounds that their testimony might possibly incriminate themselves.

Police said Nelson told them that Leake appeared at the Brass Rail after closing hour and demanded admittance. When refused, he fired through the door, striking the manager in the right chest, Nelson told police. He said he got his own gun and shot Leake as Ieake was leaving, police said.

Police records show that Leake was fined $100 for permitting gaming in 1935 and sentenced to 90 days in jail in 1937 for operating a lottery.

In the January shootings, however, police reported difficulty in digging up evidence. Court records indicate the case has been continued five times in Municipal Court.

Police said that besides refusals of the two to testify, investigators also ran into the following difficulties:

Nelson's wife, Susan, declined to testify on the grounds that a wife cannot be forced to testify in matters which might incriminate her husband.

Willie Granger, woman cashier at the Brass Rail, told them she knew of the shooting but "couldn't remember" what happened.

Hazel Brown, restaurant employe, said she left before the gunplay took place.

Cornelius C. Parker, of 150 Seaton pl. nw., described as an eyewitness, told police he saw the shots fired "but didn't stay around to find out what it was all about."

Pvt. Jacob L. Rinker, of No. 2 Police Precinct, said that despite the crowd at the scene immediately after the shootings he could find none willing to admit knowing anything about the fight.

Gallinger Gets Pat on Back For Food Award

Gallinger Hospital officials were given a pat on the back yesterday by John Russell Young, president of the District Board of Commissioners, for winning an honorable mention in a national contest for excellence in food service.

Young turned over a plaque receive dfrom Institutions Magazine to Dr. Alvin R. Sweeney, Gallinger superintendent, expressing his congratulations. The award, one of 36 given nationally was announced at the National Restaurant Association convention in Cleveland last week.

Also present at the presentation ceremony in the District Building were Auguest A. Dressel, president of the Washington Restaurant Association; Richard Woldt, chief steward at Gallinger, and Miss Eva M. Marks, chief dietician there.

36-Million River and Harbor Bills Advanced in Committee

House subcommittees yesterday approved 38 new flood control and rivers and harbors projects totaling more than 36 million dollars in estimated cost. Included were projects in Maryland and Virginia.

The action was taken by Public Works subcommittees. The full committe is expected to act today.

The subcommittees, headed by Representative Angell (R., Oreg.), anr Representative Earl Wilson (R., Ind.) approved in addition preliminary surveys for 18 other proposed projects.

The new projects require congressional authorization and approval of the President. Then, before work can be undertaken on them, Congress must appropriate the actual money.

Rivers nad harbors projects in the $16,665,000 omnibus bill included:

Rock Hall harbor, Md., $40,000; channel from Kent Island narrows to Wells Cove, Chester River, Md., $16,400; Cambridge harbord, Md., $77,000; Bransons Cove, lower Machodoc Rive, Va., $28,600; Norfolk harbor, Va., southern branch of Elizabeth River $1,730,000.

Navigation survey items approved included:

Tolchester Beach area, Md., $2000; Little Magothey River, Md., $1000; Holdens Creek, Va., $1600; Hacks Creek, Northumberland County, Va., $2000; Back River, York County, Va., $2500; Powells Bay Accomack County, Va., $2000.

DAR Hears Truman Warn Aggressors Anew

worked diligently to repair the destruction inflicted by war. We have had considerable success. We would be much farther along the road to world recovery but for the determined campaign of obstruction by one great power which has sought to perpetuate poverty as a means of aggression."

Mr. Truman declared that while he considered strengthening of the military establishment and initiation of a broad program of economic aid important matters, "even more essential, perhaps, is a general understanding of the present situation on the part of all Americans."

Urges Discussion

He asked members of the DAR Congress to discuss these matters during its sessions this week. "I feel certain," he added, "that the determination of the remaining free peoples of Europe to band themselves together in a common defense of their economic and political liberties will be matched by an equal determination on our part to help them to do so."

Speaker Martin, in his address, praised the DAR as "one of the foremost organizations of the world for freedom," and added: "What has transpired in the world is what you have warned would transpire if ever the torch of freedom could be extinguished by those whose lust for power drove them mad."

Declaring the United States must "lead a cooperative world government back to peace, sanity and decency," Martin stated: "We must arm for peace, and to preserve peace. But we must have a defense, especially in the air, fully adequate to meet any need of the future." He declared the action of the House in voting for a 70-group Air Force was a "long step" in that direction.

"We must," said Martin, "have an air armada which can carry our defense to any point from which an attack on us might start. It is our best insurance against war. It is an effective step toward the preservation of world peace. That is, and must continue to be, our real objective."

There also were political overtones in Martin's address. He defended his intervention in the coal strike as part of a needed "cooperative movement at home for domestic readjustment to peace."

Sees Dangers Faced

He declared the Nation faces the danger of inflation and high prices and a "constantly expanding government with its attendant waste, contradictions, complications, high taxes and inefficiency."

Martin charged a centralized government would guide the national economy "on the principle that what somebody at Washington thought was good for the people would be done. That is exactly the principle on which the despotism of the Kremlin is based, and upon which the Russian economy operates."

As Mrs. O'Byrne, presiding for the first time as president general, sounded the keynote for the DAR Congress, she warned delegates that since the Congress last met, "the world has drifted steadily toward war."

"All of our efforts to bring about peace seem to be of little avail," she said. "Even all we do through our stupendous recovery program may not avert conflict.

"Peace by appeasement is but temporary. Peace without strength is a one-sided arrangement with the terms dictated by those having power. Consequently we appeal emphatically for strong national defense, strong home defense and strong national preparedness."

Mrs. O'Bryne said the "danger to our very form of Government in our own country . . . is a very real and living menace today . . .

UMT Idea Gains, She Says

"The wisdom of universal military training is becoming more generally recognized as the delicate steps on world fronts are passing in constant panorama before the mind."

Mrs. O'Byrne characterized plans for a $900,000 building program, on which delegates must vote at this Congress, as "the placing of our own house in order that we may more efficiently serve our part in this present crisis."

Failure to approve the plans, she warned, would mean curtailment of services because of outgrown quarters.

Today's session of the Congress gets under way at 9:30 a. m., when reports of national officers will be heard. At 8:30 p. m., the president general will hold a reception in Constitution Hall to be followed, at 10 o'clock, by the pages' dance at the Mayflower Hotel.

Man, 73, Hit, 2 Drivers Face Death Charges

Leonardtown, Md., April 19 (AP). Two drivers, one a priest, were charged today in the highway death of 73-year-old John L. Thompson, who was hit by one car, then struck by another and dragged about 100 feet.

Thompson was fatally injured last night as he walked along Route 5 at New Market. He was a resident of Charlotte Hall, Md.

John H. T. Briscoe, St. Mary's County State's attorney, said charges of causing the death of Thompson had been filed against Benjamin F. Whitehurst of Piney Point, Md., and the Rev. L. E. Robinson, pastor of St. Paul's Catholic Church at Ellicott City.

Farm Bureau Head Charged

Easton, Md., April 19 (AP).—State police said traffic charges have been placed against Howard S. Leverton of Chestertown, president of the Maryland Farm Bureau, after a three-car accident.

William H. Langrall, 60, Mrs. Eudie Langrall and Paul Langrall, 24, all of Cambridge, were hospitalized yesterday when their car was forced into a telephone pole after leaving the Matapeake ferry, police said.

A hearing was tentatively set April 22 for Leverton on a charge of attempting to pass a car when the way was not clear, Trooper Charles E. Prichett said.

Composers' Works Mark Anniversary

Reprint From Yesterday's Late Edition

By Donald Engle

The program, commemorating the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the League of Composers, was drawn entirely from compositions by members of the league. Two works were heard for the first time in Washington, the Concertino of Bernard Wagenaar, and Frederick Jacobi's Concertino for Piano and Strings.

The latter work is an extremely delightful piece in three movements, the outer two high-spirited and vivacious, throwing in bold relief the singing lines of the slow section. A felicitous balance between piano and strings is maintained throughout, and in the solo role, Irene Jacobi gave her husband's work a sparkling and sympathetic performance. Assisting her as page turner, he shared an enthusiastic round of applause, as the composer of course.

Two works were repeated from a previous gallery concert last November, when Virgil Thomson's suite, The Plow That Broke the Plains, and William Bergsma's Paul Bunyan Suite were given their Washington premieres. Phillips, Douglas Moore and Dai-

House May Act Today on D. C. Rent, Time Bills

Measures Clear Committee But O'Hara Will Fight DST on the Floor

House action will be sought today on bills to extend District rent control through March 31, 1949, and to let Washington have daylight saving time this summer.

The two bills cleared the House District Committee yesterday. Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) said he has arrand with House leaders to seek unanimous-consent action on the two bills in the House today.

The unanimous consent procedure means that House approval of the rent control bill is likely today, but the daylight saving time bill may be delayed until Monday's District Day.

The daylight saving time bill is strongly opposed by Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.), chairman of the District Subcommittee that handled it. He voted against it there and in the full House District Committee.

Will Oppose Bill on Floor

O'Hara served notice that he will oppose the daylight savinb time bill on the House floor, and will demand a roll call on it. He called it "the world's greatest delusion."

The House District Committee backed the majority recommendation of O'Hara's subcommittee that the daylight saving time bill be good for this summer only. The bill as passed by the Senate would let the Distritc Commissioners put daylight saving time into effect each summer.

If the House agrees with the one-year limit on daylight saving time, the Senate would have the choice of accepting the change to speed final action, or sending the bill to conference.

In the rent bill, the House District Committee approved two minor language changes recommended by O'Hara's subcommittee. O'Hara explained the changes clarify but do not otherwise affect the purposes of the Senate-approved District rent control extension bill.

Continues Basic Controls

The bill continues the basic rent controls here, with these modifications.

Controls go off April 30 on transient hotel rooms, non-housekeeping rooms in private homes with no more than two paying tenants, and new housing accommodations that reach the market after March 31 as the result either of new construction or of conversion of buildings not previously used for housing.

Committee members said limiting decontrol of converted buildings to those not previously used for housing was designated to avoid any change for unreasonably high rents where only trivial changes had been made in existing housing.

Dirksen also announced that Wednesday's House District Committee meeting on the home rule bill is to be an all-day session. The meeting will start at 9:30 a. m.

He said approvel of the bill would be followed by a request to the House Rules Committee to grant two hours of general House debate on the measure.

Arnold Seeks To Transfer 2 Bus Routes

In the first of a series of seven moves designed to "put the company back on its fet financially," Arnold Bus Lines of Arlington yesterday proposed transfer of two of its routes south of Columbia rd. to the A., B. & W. Transit Co. of Alexandria.

Applications to make the changes have been submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Virginia State Corporation Commission, M. D. Mills, recently appointed general manager of the transit firm, said.

The routes proposed for the transfer are: (1) Route No. 9, which runs over 14th St. Bridge along Shirley hwy., to Shirlington and Fairlington; and (2) a portion of Route 10 running from Glebe rd. and Columbia pike to 16t hand Vermont sts, S.

May 19 Is Date Set

Mills said the route transfers would become effective May 19 if the ICC and SCC approve. The transfers, he said, will be the first of a series of changes to be made during the next six months in the company's "fight for survival."

The route transfers would turn over to A. B. & W. the only two major Arnold routes south of Columbia pike, in effect, establishing Columbia pike as a "line of demarcation" between the two Virginia transit companies.

The only remaining Arnold operation south of Columbia pike would be its Green Valley line, which connects Rosslyn and Shirlington circle, and is used as a shuttle service.

A spokesman for the A. B. & W. said yetserday no definite plans had been made to take over the route, but company officials he said, are revising routes and schedules to provided for the added passenger load if the proposal is approved.

Operation Losses Cited

Both routes were formerly opearted by the Arlington and Fairfax line, which was purchased by Arnold last year, and have been opearted at a loss since that time, Mills said.

He said the Arnold lines, which opeartet officially as the Washington, Virginia & Maryland Coach Co., would be cutting its operating losses by about $6000 a month by transferring the lines to A. B. & W. The firm was reported to have lost $285,000 last year. Loss during the first quarter of this year, Mills said, was about $25,000.

Along with route transfers, the company proposes, Mills said, to extend existing routes to Dominion Hills and Paisley Forest on the Wilson blvd. line, and to Garden City on the Lee blvd. line, and to install through bus service to Jefferson Village, near Falls Church, during morning and afternoon rush hours. The changes, which, he said, do not require ICC approval, will go into effect May 19.

Other changes, to be made later, include, he said, revision of routes and schedules and extension of existing routes into several rapidly developing areas.

Cold Cost Fruit Men A Million

Fruit crops worth more than a million dollars at current prices were destroyed during Saturday night's cold snap, Maryland and Virginia agriculture experts reported yesterday.

The news was especially bad from the consumers' standpoint. As far as the producer is concerned, it was pointed out, a less abundant crop means higher prices, thus removing some of the sting.

As luck would have it, one of the lowest temperatures in Maryland—21 degrees—was registered in Washington County near Hancock where about 60 per cent of the entire State's apple and peach crop is produced.

Loss to the crop was estimated at between 25 and 33 per cent by C. O. Dunbar, University of Maryland horticulurist. This could rise to 50 per cent, he said, depending on how a number of "borderline" cases turn out. Total value of the Washington County crop is about $1,200,000.

The damage to the Shenandoah Valley (Va.) apple and peach crops was not as great. A. B. Groves, plant pathologist at the V.P.I. agriculture experimental station at Winchester, put the damage at about 5 per cent. The valley yields about 70 per cent of the State's estimated 25 million dollar fruit crop.

Cherries were hardest hit with peaches next and apples third, Groves said.

Centreville Refuses Daylight Saving Time

Centerville, Md., April 19 (AP).—Most of Maryland will move over to daylight time next week, but Centerville, at least, will have none of it.

The town commissioners have voted to remain on Eastern Standard Time because rural sentiment is all for it. In a spetciol election last year the townspeople voted against fast time.

Truck Driver Cleared In Fatal Collision

Arthur Carper, 43, of 58 K st. ne., was acquitted by Hyattsville Police Court Magistrate Arthur P. Owens yesterday of charges of manslaughter and reckless driving in a truck-car collision in which one man was fatally injurde April 2 in Bladensburg, Md.

Raymond L. Butler, 34, of 4523 39th st., Brentwood, Md., was killed. Police said Butler's car rammed a truck operated by Carter at Kenilwroth ave. and Quincy st., Bladensburg.

Step to Open Way To Lend-Lease in Arms Due Today

The State Department plans to ask Congress today for new controls of arms exports in a move that may lead to lend-lease aid for non-Communist western Europe, it was disclosed last night.

It was said that State and Navy Department spokesmen will propose passage of a new munitions control act that has been on the shelf since President Truman requested it a year ago.

The act would permit the President to follow various policies on shipments of arms and war-potential goods. For example, he would decide whether "aggressor or aggrieved, peace-maker or trouble-maker" should get aid.

Home Rule Luncheon Group Backs New Auchincloss Bill

The Home Rule Luncheon Committee, representing some 40 local organizations, went on record yesterday in favor of the revised Auchincloss bill and promised to work for its passage.

About 30 committee members, meeting at the Good Earth Restaurant, unanimously adopted a resolution that described the bill as a "substantial answer to the problem of home rule for the District of Columbia."

However, the resolution emphasized that it does not restrict "the right of any organization represented by this committee to seek constructive amendment to the bill." Veterans', civic, labor, professional, welfare, church and housing groups are represented in the committee.

Dr. George Galloway, a member of the staff of the House District Committee, said after the meeting he was "hopeful" the revised measure would be favorably reported by the committee "within the week." It's due to reach the committee Wednesday.

Earlier, Galloway and Clarence Pierce, another committee member, explained major revisions in the home rule plan, including provisions for a majority vote referendum November 15, a talking but nonvoting delegate in the House of Representatives and a fixed annual Federal contribution to the District.

Dr. Galloway contended the new bill would grant "more home rule to Washington than the States ordinarily grant to their cities." He said the proposed formula setting the Federal payment to the District would give the city a million dollars more than the contribution this year.

Harry Wender, chairman of the District Recreation Board, claimed the "national representation people will be opposed to everything . . . unless it includes national representation per se."

Presiding at the meeting were Mrs. Frances Adams of the Washington Committee, Americans for Democratic Action, and Mrs. Libby Dunn of the D. C. League of Women Voters.

Area News in Brief

Navy and Marines Don Summer Garb

The Navy and the Marines Corps officially recognized yesterday that summer is in the air—lagging four days behind the Army and the Air Force.

First Sergt. Frank L. McNamara of Bolling Field sews the Air Force insignia on his new summer uniforms

Leatherneck officers may wear either uniform from yesterday through May 16, but enlisted Marines must wait until May 1 to wear khakie. Their enlisted sisters must hold off on wearing their cool green seersucker numbers until May 1. Their dress uniforms then will be snappy white sharkskin.

The Army and Air Force—officers, men and Wacs—felt the call of summer last Thursday. They may wear either their ODs or cotton khakis through May 14, after which the light uniforms are mandatory until September 30.

Beginning yesterday, naval officers could forsake blues in favor of khakis or grays, if they felt like it, and the enlisted men could appear in either blues or whites.

On and after May 17, sailors of all ranks and rates will put away their blues for the summer. Waves may blossom out in their gray seersucker now, on the same schedule as the male mariners, with whites for dress occasions.

Gun-Toter Jailed, Fined

A taxicab passenger who became so annoyed when the vehicle stalled that he threatened the driver with a pistol was given a six-month jail sentence yesterday, plus a $50 fine, in Municipal Court.

George W. Scriber, 33, of 36 I st. ne., was found guilty by Judge Ellen K. Raedy of threats and carrying a deadly weapon. According to testimony Scriber was riding Saturday night in the cab of Edward S. Jones, 1872 California st. nw., when it stalled. Scriber first asked how long Jones had been driving, then grabbed at the hacker's identification card, brandishing his gun and threatened to shoot him.

As Gaining Device

Montgomery Starts Drive On 'Pinball'

Two Montgomery County detectives yesterday revealed they had to watch or play more than 200 games on pinball machines to launch a weekend anti-pinball drive.

Netted in the county drive Friday night were five men charged with gaming. Frazzled by the pinballing orgy which preluded the arrests were Detective Corps. Edward Barber and Jesse Day.

Furnish $200 Bond

Arrested, then released in $200 bond each pending a hearing in Silver Spring police court May 18, were:

Herbert R. Dietle, 26, 1908 Rockwood rd., Silver Spring; James D. Weakly, 29, Omaha Beach dr., Silver Spring; James E. Walper, 22, 701 Ritchie ave., Silver Spring; Bernard W. Fling, 47, 613 Ritchie ave., Silver Spring, and Ralph H. Jecklin, 46, 207 Normand dr., Silver Spring.

Corporal Barber said he played countless games to win 52 times on a pinball machine at a tavern known as Pop Dietle's Place, Georgia ave. in Montgomery Hills. Barber said part-owner Dietle paid him $2.95 whereupon he was arrested.

Later the plainclothes detectives swooped down on the Grotto Grill, Georgia ave. and Fenton st. to arrest the others. The detectives said they saw Weakly play some 150 games, then receive $8.40 prize money from Walper. The remaining two men, according to police, "figured in the pay off."

First Arrests in Year

Police Chief Charles M. Orme denied that the arrests marked the launching of a crackdown but admitted they were the first pinball arrests in a year.

Chief Orme said both machines involved were one-ball games which he said are on the increase in the county. One-ball machines, he said, are particularly suspect in police eyes as instruments of gambling and not pure pleasure.

Maximum fines for gaming is six months in jail and/or, $500.

Wife Stabbed, Police Accuse Riverdale Man

Stabbed with a butcher-knife wielded, according to police, by her husband, a 38-year-old Riverdale, Md., woman, Mrs. Iris Cates, was in critical condition last night at Leland Memorial Hospital.

The knife-wielding occurred early yesterday at the Cates' home, 6611 Calvert Court, Calvert Houses, in Riverdale. The husband, at Prince Georges General Hospital, was under police guard, after a warrant was sworn out for his arrest on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

According to Georges County Policeman Lee Pumphrey, police had been called to the home shortly before midnight Saturday by Mrs. Cates who said her husband had threatened her. Cates could not be found. Shortly after midnight, after police had left, he returned, Pumphrey said, and stabbed Mrs. Cates in the back, puncturing a lung, with a butcher knife.

The terrified woman, attempting to escape, ran into a plate glass door and was cut by the shattered glass. She was taken to Leland Memorial Hospital by neighbors and several blood transfusions given her.

Cates, who, Pumphrey said, ran from the house after the stabbing, returned after investigating police had left, and slashed his wrists and throat with another butcher knife. The wounded man was taken to the hospital by the Branchville Rescue Squad.

Cates, police said, is employed as a handyman at the University of Maryland building project.

J. W. Gregory, Postal Aide, Ends Own Life

Joseph W. Gregory, 67, veteran Postoffice employe, ended his life with a shot through his temple yesterday in the back yard of a home which formerly was occupied by his daughter.

Gregory was pronounced dead at the scene by an Emergency Hospital staff doctor and Voroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of suicide.

The body, police said, was found at about 7 a. m. in the rear yard of 2205 49th st. nw. Gregory had lived at the 49th st. address with his daughter, Mrs. Gladys Kirchoff, for nine years until she moved to Richmond last summer.

Sprawled Beneath Tree

When his daughter moved to Richmond, Gregory became a roomer in the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Purtlebaugh, at 4849 W st. nw., only a stone's throw from the daughter's former home.

Gregory's body was discovered by Charles S. Kalin, of 2211 49th st nw., who went to the Purtlebaugh home where it was found that Gregory had left a note addressed to one of his children. It said in part:

Contents of Note

Society officials have admitted the situation developed as the staff revolted against the administration of Mrs. Jewell Gaffney, executive director of the society.

Firemen Hit New Snag in Hours Battle

The District firemen's 10-year battle for a 60-hour, 5-day week in place of their present 72-hour, 6-day week, has run into a new snag.

As a result of vigorous objections to the bill by Senator Joseph H. Ball (R., Minn.), the measure may be recommitted to the Senate District Committee for further consideration, despite the fact the committee has already approved the legislation and sent it to the floor for action.

When the bill came up in the Senate last Monday, Ball objected and asked that action on the measure be deferred. This was done, as a matter of parliamentary routine.

Since then Ball has conferred with Senator C. Douglas Buck (R., Del.), chairman of the District Committee.

Agreed to Recall

The chairman has agreed to have the measure recalled, Ball said yesterday, because it was reported out by the committee with "barely a quorum" present. It is felt there should be more discussion of the measure, Ball said.

Ball opposed the bill in committee and objected to action on it in the Senate on the ground that the legislation authorized a change in the fire department that would cost the District about half a million dollars a year at a time when the District government is already short of revenue.

The Commissioners ought to ask Congress for funds to shorten the working hours of the firemen, and also show where that money is to come from, Ball feels, before Congress changes the law that requires firemen to work six days a week.

Until 1919, Washington firefighters were on a 24-hour, 7-days-a-week work schedule. At that time they were put on a double platoon system, averaging 12 hours a day, 7 days a week. Five years later the working week was reduced to six days, or a total of 72 hours a week.

1939 Bill Vetoed

In 1939 Congress approved a 60-hour, 5-day week for the firemen here, but President Roosevelt vetoed the measure. Since then, Firemen's Association No. 36, International Association of Fire Fighters, has been trying to get another law passed.

Under the present system, firemen on night duty work 14 hours for 6 days a week, for a total of 84 hours while those on day duty work 10 hours a day, for a total of 60. The firemen rotate tricks every other week, and average 72 working hours a week.

The proposed change would average a 60-hour week, through a 70-hour work week on the night shift, 50-hour work week on the day shift.

"Pvt. Mulvaney"

Sgt. Mulligan Of Kipling Legend Dies

"Oh, East is East, and West is West, and never the twain shall meet, Till Earth and Sky stand presently at God's great Judgment Seat."
Kipling—Ballad of East and West

As he had solemnly vowed, Sergt. Owen Mulligan has gone West without breaking a silence about his legendary past as a warrior in the East.

Mulligan

Legend has it that the grizzled Irish fighter was the inspiration for Rudyard Kipling's lovable Private Mulvaney, one of the heroes in "Soldiers Three."

Scores of writers implored Mulligan to write his memoirs. One offered him $10,000. To all, the balding veteran replied:

"To say anything about the past would cause dire consequences. I have taken a vow to carry the story to the grave."

His vow was fulfilled, Saturday at 4 p. m., when Sergt. Mulligan, sometimes soldier for Her Majesty the Queen, retired Marine Corps veteran, died at Bethesda Naval Hospital, He lived at 1826 H st. nw.

Born in Ireland, May 18, 1864, he sailed "as a broth of a boy but a devil of a man" to India, a British soldier under Lord Roberts.

After unchronicled years of soldiering in the East, he came to this country in 1896. About the time of the war with Spain he enlisted in the 31st Michigan Infantry and in 1901 enlisted in the Marine Corps.

After a tour of duty in the Philippines and Cuba, he was stationed here at the office of the commandant. For many years chief of corps orderlies, he often served as personal aide to visiting notables.

Upon his retirement in 1923, a full-dress parade was held in his honor at Quantico, Va. The then commandant of the corps, the late Gen. John A. LeJeune, termed Quartermaster Sergt. Mulligan "the outstanding picturesque figure in the old Marine Corps."

The past 24 years he was employed as a guard at the National Savings & Trust Co. Bank officials said the sergeant, "a delightful gentleman with a back straight as an arrow," never missed a day of work, never was late, until stricken ill a month ago.

Gives Reasons

Union Local For Fireman Segregation

Local 36, International Association of Fire Fighters, last night went on record as overwhelmingly in favor of segregation of white and Negro firemen in the District.

Capt. Joseph W. Conroy, president of the local, said the vote was 330 to 12, with the voters comprising about 65 per cent of the union's membership in the District Fire Department.

Fire Chief Clement Murphy has been studying "integrating" Negroes in white fire companies, but told The Washington Post in an interview Sunday that he had not made up his mind in the matter.

Murphy also said, "It's not fair to the taxpayers, to have about 56 Negroes in the department assigned to two companies when other companies operate with 16 men."

In last night's resolution, union members pointed out that "under the present 72-hour work week of firemen, officers and men alike on duty must use the same blankets, lienen and beds" and sleep, cook and eat together. Under these conditions, they said, integration would lower morale and decrease efficiency.

The resolution also referred to two Negro fire captains having been made acting battalion chiefs, and said, "These two colored captains and all colored lieutenants and sergeants were appointed as such by courtesy of their color alone, never having placed high enough on a Civil Service promotional register to have been legally appointed.

"These colored captains, when acting battalion chiefs, are in charge of white companies and command white officers and men. Under a policy of integration all colored officers then would command white personnel, although many of the white subordinates placed higher than their colored superiors on Civil Service promotional registers."

The resolution recommended that when an officer was needed in a Negro company he be chosen on the basis of the promotional register, and that if he was not qualified under the register his appointment be made on a temporary or acting basis until he or another reaches the top of the register.

The resolution further recommended that the two Negro captains "not be allowed to act as battalion chiefs until they have earned the right to do so in competition with white captains."

Chief Murphy has said that a special board of two deputy chiefs and the fire marshal will select, on a merit basis, 14 of the 50 captains who have taken turns at serving temporarily as acting battalion chiefs to serve as permanent acting chiefs.

FOR HER DEBUT: White organdy will be the choice of many debutantes for their coming-out parties this season. Youthful and fresh, it is also an adaptable fabric, suitable for either a formal evening function or an afternoon garden fete. Louise Armour, Washington designer, created the one above, which is made of white organdy over a stiff taffeta underskirt. Novel note is the neckline, fashioned to hold a spray of fresh flowers. The corsage of tulips matches the coral tones of the short mesh gloves

Chic Mme. Fath Takes Fashion Spotlight Here

M. Jacques Fath, famous Paris coutourier, and his tres chic wife were at the Walnut Room of Woodward & Lothrop yesterday afternoon to meet a few guests and to show a few Fath creations.

Mme. Fath's costume was a trim suit of navy blue, worn with pearl chocker, no blouse, and a tiny white pique hat. She wore white pique gloves, carried a little white pique fan, and her pumps were navy blue. She had a healthy sun tan, her short blond hair was curled softly at the ends, and around her brown eyes she wore a touch of blue eye shadow.

Ater looking first at Mme. Fath, guests then looked at dresses from M. Fath's Paris collection. Navy blue and white seemed the favorite colors. Dresses were long, full-skirted, narrow shouldered and bustling at the back.

M. Fath is one of the youngest and most famous of the Paris coutouriers. He has just returned from Hollywood, where he has signed a contract to do a picture. He designs all of Mme. Fath's clothes as well as those of their 5-year-old son.

The greatest fault in American women's dress, he says, is "overdress.' He decries "too much fur, too much decoration, too much material."

Dynamic Lee De Forest Works 12-14 Hours a Day, Walks 8 Miles Before Lunch

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

ONE OF THE WORLD'S greatest living inventors, Lee De Forest, and his pretty auburn-haired wife, are in town this week, enjoying one of their rare social splurges. He's the genius who invented the audion-vacuum tube, the life of electronics, which made radios and television possible, put sound in movies—made Marconi's voiceless wireless speak. Sure of being an inventor since he was an 11-year-old kid, Dr. De Forest's first invention was a farm gate which opened automatically. Today over 300 of his patents are in constant use.

Though he's actually 75, he looks a casual 55, works 12 to 14 hours every day—much of it standing in his laboratory. He also heads a school for 6000 scientifically inclined former GIs out in Chicago. He is president of a television company and an assortment of other business ventures.

He invented the audion-vacuum tube back in 1906 and his most important contemporary project is working to make color possible in television.

Likes Hiking, Climbing

UNLIKE EDISON and other big brains who needed little sleep, Dr. De Forest gets seven hours a night—but never lies down or naps daytimes.

Hiking and mountain climbing are his hobbies. He has climbed Mount Whitney, our highest peak, five times, the last ascent to celebrate his seventieth birthday.

Last Sunday, at a luncheon given in the De Forests' honor by Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Witt, he showed up ruddy-cheeked, his deepset eyes sparkling, after an 8-mile saunter. After downing an entire delicious, deboned chicken, soup, salad an individual Baked Alaska (whipped up by the Mayflower chef), he left for New York to be honor guest at a television banquet and show.

Secret of Success

ALTHOUGH Iowa-born, Alabama-raised Lee De Forest was rigorously educated to be an inventor, the secret of his success, the reason he is alive to see his inventions acclaimed and used, is Marie De Forest. They met 18 years ago—in swimming—at a party given by Movie Star Bebe Daniels, whose grandpa happened to have been a De Forest. They married three weeks later.

Since then Marie De Forest has devoted her whole life to her husband. A wonderful cook, she whisks him out of Chicago weekends to their Wisconsin farm, fixes food which agrees with him—takes the edge off the odd dishes eaten during a busy week. Until 1946 they lived in Beverly Hills, now they plan to return for the summer season.

Marie De Forest, by the way, is writing the story of their life together, expects to finish it sometime before Christmas. Mrs. De Forest believes her husband has accomplished so much, remained so tremendously vital because he has always had perfect peace and contentment at home.

Cotillion Parties

Miss Patricia Layne, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Clyde L. Layne, gave an "open house" Saturday evening following the Army, Navy Junior Cotillion. Miss Layne is a student at Mount Vernon Seminary.

Mrs. John T. Martha entertained at a dinner party before the Cotillion for her daughter Lynn, and house guest, Miss Helen Duquette of Baltimore.

Peppers Return From California

Senator and Mrs. Claude Pepper, who have just returned from California, have as their house guest former Senator James H. Hughes of Dover, Del. In Coronado, the Peppers visited Senator Hughes' son-in-law and daughter, Commander and Mrs. John P. Martin. Commander Martin is a medical officer on the carrier USS Princeton.

After attending the Senate Ladies luncheon today for Mrs. Truman and the Cabinet wives, Mrs. Pepper will leave for New York, where she will bid bon voyage to Mrs. Edward G. Robinson, who is sailing on the S. S. de Grasse for Paris. Mrs. Robinson will have an art exhibit—her second—in Paris on July 1.

Daughter to Pauls

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Paul announce the birth of a daughter, Kathryn Anne Paul, on March 5, in Doctor's Hospital.

Bathursts Move

Col. and Mrs. C. R. Bathurst of Washington have moved to their new home at 3069 Cleveland ave. Mrs. Bathurst has as a house guest Mrs. John Paul Stack of New York City.

Thrift Shop Tea to Feature Silver, China

One of the Thrift Shop's sources of income is the commission room on the second floor of the shop, 809 9th st. Valuable pieces of silver, glass, rare bits of china, any number of collector's items, find their way to this thriving place of business where they are sold on a commission basis.

And in order that the public may know of the department there is to be a special commission table at the Thrift Shop white elephant tea on April 28, where guests may purchase any article from the wide selection which Mrs. James H. Patten will have on exhibition. Assisting her at the table will be Mrs. Lewis Ecker, Mrs. R. M. Kauffmann, Mrs. Dwight Dickinson and Mrs. Percy Myers, manager of the Thrift Shop.

Still another feature of the party is to be the booth where Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis will read fortunes and make her predictions for the future.

Mrs. Benjamin B. Cain, chairman of arrangements for the benefit, promises loud speakers so that guests may have no trouble in hearing the musical program which Meredith Howard is arranging.

Just a bundle or a cash contribution will admit to the tea at Anderson House, which Mrs. Truman, Mrs. Vinson, ladies of the Cabinet and Mrs. Woodrow Wilson will attend. The hours are from 4 to 6 p. m., with tea following the entertainment.

Antique Show

Mrs. Keith Price of Falls Church will be chairman of the Antique Hobby Show to take place April 23 and 24 under the auspices of the Night Branch Guild of Falls Church. Dr. Wood Plans College for Women Over 45

There are 15 million women in this country, over 45 years of age whose lives seem aimless and often useless because they have reared their families. Yet into their experienced hands could be placed the future of the world if they were but shown what to do and how to proceed through special education, according to James Madison Wood, noted educator, writing in the May issue of the Woman's Home Companion.

The president emeritus of Stephens College announces his plans for the first time in this article, for a new type of school to provide training for mature women whom he considers the greatest reservoir of energy and good will in the Nation.

"Today we are in the midst of a revolution—industrial, economic and social," writes Dr. Wood. "What shall we salvage from the present world? Shall we leave the choice to chance? Or shall we plan our tomorrow? I believe the answers to these questions lie in the hands of women. With their accumulated experience and wisdom they are the ones best fitted to do the job since the problems of the community, the Nation and the world are only expansions of the problems of the family. If women have reared children successfully they know why; if they failed they know what their mistakes were."

Dr. Wood proposes to establish a new type of college—a college especially organized for mature women.

The educator's plans include a college where no academic degrees—not even a high school diploma—would be required, where students would be drawn from all social, economic and cultural classes, a college concerned with making the most of the varied experiences its students have had as women and mothers, not with their previous formal education, their wealth or the neighborhood in which they live.

The curriculum for the new college, which Dr. Wood is planning to establish first at a key center where he can test his ideas, will have three main characteristics. "Above all it will be cultural because culture makes for stability in life. And stability is one of the things most vitally needed in the United States today after the last difficult 30 years of war, depression and more war," he writes.

Secondly, the faculty will give general training in leadership. From experts in the personnel field, the students will learn how to select and then work with existing organizations to accomplish specific jobs. Finally, the curriculum will include teaching the students tolerance—"of ideas and degrees of success." "Women must learn to expect slowness and to make compromises frequently and with skill," the educator points out.

On the Club Front

MRS. TRUMAN entertained members of the Washington Soroptimist Club at a White House tea yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Rose Robison Cowen, club president, headed the group.

Democratic Club Hears Martin Agronsky

Some 200 members of the Womans' National Democratic Club turned out at a luncheon meeting yesterday to hear Martin Agronsky, commentator for the American Broadcasting Co., discuss current affairs.

The speaker said that although President Truman had granted everything the liberals asked, "they are still deserting him." While Henry Wallace can't be elected President, he will swing more Democratic votes than the party realizes, Mr. Agronsky declared.

"The only successful way to stop Communism is to fight for a liberal democracy," the speaker concluded.

Mrs. W. E. Waren, program chairman, introduced the speaker and Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, club president, presided.

Radcliffe Club To Hear Dr. Cronkhite

Dr. Bernice Brown Cronkhite, vice president of Radcliffe College in Cambridge, Mass., and dean of its graduate school of arts and sciences, will be guest of honor and speaker at a spring luncheon of the Radcliffe Club of Washington on Saturday, at 1 p. m. At the meeting following the luncheon, which will be held in the Good Earth Restaurant, 1609 K st. nw., the president of the club, Mrs. William A. Coblenz, will preside. Dean Cronkhite, who will give an "off-the-record" talk on "Radcliffe Today," will be introduced by Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle, president of the Washington Board of Education.

Cronkhite

Radcliffe alumnae in the Washington area may make reservations for the luncheon with Mrs. Bruce K. Fuller, 1753 Harvard st. nw., Michigan 7197, before 10 a. m. on Saturday.

Gov. Robert F. Bradford of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts has recently appointed Dean Cronkhite the only woman member of a special legislative commission on higher education. She holds A. B. and Ph. D. degrees from Radcliffe, where she has been dean of the graduate school since 1934. She also studied at the law school of Yale University and the University of Brussels in Belgium. She is a member of the advisory board of the graduate school of arts and sciences in Harvard University

The American-Lithuanian Society of Washington will sponsor a fashion lecture and show on April 29 at the YWCA's Barker Hall, 17th and K sts. nw. Proceeds will be for the benefit of displaced persons in the American zone in Germany.

SALLY STEELE

Sally Warren Steele will present the lecture entitled "Forecast of Fashions to Come." Her talk will cover the evolution and definition of fashion. In conjunction with her discussion she will give hat-making demonstrations, designing each one in 60 seconds. The fashion show will include original designs by young students at the Magda Studio of Design.

Tickets for the event may be obtained at the YWCA, from members of the society and at the Magda Studio of Design.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Financing Daughter's Marriage to Student, Doctor Faces Long-Range Expenses That May End in 1953; Now She Wants a Second Child

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Our son Johnnie is now 5 years old and Ned, my husband, is a pre-medical student who hopes to enter medical school in the fall of 1949, the year in which his veteran's subsidy for education will cease, after which we will be on our own, except for family gratuities, in meeting expenses.

If all goes well, Ned will start practice five years hence; and in the meantime, my father, a physician, plans to pay his tuition through medical school, but the income for living expenses will be rather uncertain.

However, Ned has a thousand dollars invested, so we wouldn't be penniless in emergency; and inasmuch as we want at least three children, we feel we shouldn't wait any longer to have the second child. But my mother is much opposed to the idea.

Mother thinks we would be very foolish to have another child before Ned is practising medicine, but we think it would be foolish to wait until Johnnie is 10 before we increase our family; and I want to try to convince mother that it is best to have the child now.

Girl Wants to Be Completely Happy

DURING the time Johnnie was expected, Ned was in the service and, being separated from my husband, naturally I wasn't as happy as a mother-to-be should be. This time I want to be completely happy and while I shall have the child regardless of what mother says, I want her to look forward to it, too.

I am an only child and my parents have always given me everything I could ever want, except that I always wanted a brother or sister and certainly intend to have several children of my own.

Mother and dad have been wonderful to Ned and me. They have given us substantial gifts and are always sending money to help out, as of course we are living on the proverbial shoestring; and it's because of our financial situation that she thinks we shouldn't have a child now.

However, we feel we can manage somehow; we have faith that God will take care of us; and if people waited until they felt they could afford children, our population would certainly drop! Do you have any suggestions for convincing mother that we're right? We shall appreciate your advice. C. R.

Girl's Realistic Attitude Is Phony

DEAR C. R.: On first reading, your prospectus seems admirable, your spirit sturdy, your logic impressive. But a little reflection dispels the illusion.

Although adult in years and going through motions of adult competence, actually you are an infantile character; and your living consists in sailing under your parents' power and exerting yourself mainly to invoke their fulsome endorsement of your objectives.

Basically, the psychological problem here is not how to sell your mother on the "rightness" of your determination to have a second child now—thus adding a fourth to the list of their semi-dependents—but rather how to wean you from infantilism and incite growth toward realistic use of intelligence, as becomes a wife and mother.

According to your story, your father is pledged to put Ned through four years of post-graduate school after his Federal subsidy lapses, and as for living expenses during that time, obviously the tacit assumption is that family gifts and gratuities (from the same source) will continue to flow, while Ned's nestegg is reserved for "emergency."

As for you, your dream of fulfillment, your vision of a future compatible with your past, includes not only marriage to a professional man trained in the image of your father, but also several children eugenically spaced, to compensate for the brothers and sisters you never had; and the gist of all you say in your foregoing letter is a strong projection of an unconscious idee fixee that your parents should underwrite your dream throughout.

Faith in God Is Figurative

FOR EXAMPLE, your desire to win your mother's fond accord with more begetting at this time, theoretically that you may feel "completely happy" about it, is really a tacit demand that she "invest" herself in the undertaking, emotionally and if need be financially, thus espousing lively responsibility for the child's welfare.

Granted you say, with show of spirit, "I shall have the child regardless of what mother says—," it seems to me this is a defiant statement of conditioned belief that she and your father won't let you down whatever you do. And as for your faith that God will provide, doubtless you feel that God is always as near as your parents; in the event a higher power must amend your deficiencies.

To test the quality of your intent—whether responsible or irresponsible — ask yourself this: Would you firmly go ahead to have a second child now, confident that with the help of God you could manage somehow, if your parents' resourceful bounty didn't exist? If the answer is "yes," you are in character qualified to proceed independently; but if "no," your pretensions to maturity should be abandoned, and you should at least be honestly meek in suing your mother's support of the project. 'Don'ts' for Fern Growers

Don't let people touch and play with ends of the fronds.

Don't water the fern every day; soak it thoroughly every third day.

Don't remove the feelers that grow along with the fern leaves. Wind them around the pot so they are out of sight, but let them stay.

Don't keep the fern in a small pot when it is growing so fast that it needs more dirt around it. Either separate it into two plants or replant the whole thing into a larger pot.

To Live in Miami After Cuban Trip

The marriage of Miss Floria Ann Jacobi, daughter of Mrs. William J. Jacobi of Washington, and Harry Jack Schwalb, son of Mr. and Mrs. Davis Schwalb of Miami, Fla., took place Sunday, April 18, at the Floridian Hotel in Miami Beach.

The bride wore white satin trimmed with seed pearls, a veil of illusion and carried lilies of the valley. Mrs. Herbert Ellenbogen, who served as matron of honor for her sister, wore blue faille and carried American beauty roses. Melvin Schwalb served as best man for his brother.

How to Remove Rust From Metal

I read recently of a new chemical preparation on the market which removes rust from metal and another one which prevents metal from rusting. Can you tell me where to buy these preparations in Washington, or by mail?
H. B. D.

Rust removers are on sale in the housewares section of most local department stores, as well as in hardware stores. One store has a rust preventative and a rust remover made by the same company. You can inquire about them by telephoning NA. 5100.

I have a Navy raincoat, color navy blue, that should be cleaned. A dry cleaning shop told me that they cannot clean such a coat because it contains rubber. I washed the coat myself with soap and water, but it still looks very spotted. Will you let me know if you have any information on cleaning this coat other than with soap and water?
H. P.

Because of the rubber in the coat, it would not be wise to attempt cleaning it in any of the waterless cleaners. When you washed it in soap and water, did you immerse it in the suds, rinsing and wringing it in the conventional manner? If this is the method you used, perhaps washing it in the following way would remove the spots and more thoroughly clean it: Lay the coat as flat as possible on a table. Now, prepare a very heavy suds (dissolve 1 cup mild soap flakes in 2 cups water and whip until very frothy). Using a brush, apply this suds to the coat, rubbing with a circular motion and giving particular attention to the spotted and soiled areas. Go over the entire coat in this fashion and rinse very thoroughly. Hang to dry quickly in some of the wind for which the city from which you write is famous.

How do you pickle pine and antique white-painted maple furniture, unpainted furniture, and if possible, mahogany veneer? Is there such a painting procedure as black antiquing and gold antiquing? If so, now do you get the effect? Is it possible to paint by hand (they probably use a certain type blower in the factory) so that one can get a darker and lighter effect of a solid color paint? R. O. C.

Mahogany, pine, or any more or less open-grained wood can be pickled or "limed" effectively. The results won't be as good with maple, which is a hard wood with close pores. Before pickling, remove all the old finish by applying varnish remover. Then wipe piece with denatured alcohol and let it dry. Sand to remove remaining traces of finish. (In using varnish remover on veneers, be sure to work quickly so that it won't penetrate under the veneer and loosen it.)

PRETTY as a picture is this new "petti-skirt" bedspread which features a delightful frilly ruffle in a color to match one of those in its tufted floral design. The spread, which comes in five colors, is especially appropriate for a French Provincial setting

Mahogany is often bleached before it is limed in order to achieve a lighter effect. Use a commercial wood bleach and follow directions on the package. After wood dries thoroughly, sand satin smooth and brush off dust thoroughly. Apply a ground coat of flat white paint to the bare wood and wipe off almost at once. The idea is to fill only the pores with white. A day or two after painting, apply a thin coat of shellac or varnish. When this dries well, sandpaper lightly, then wax.

To antique white, apply a ground coat of white paint to furniture. Remove old finish first if it is in bad condition. If it is in good condtion, wipe with turpentine to remove polish and grease. Sand lightly, then paint. Several coats will be needed to cover a dark finish adequately. After white paint is dry, apply a coat of glaze. This can be made by thinning varnish with one-fourth as much turpentine and adding black, brown, or other color-in-oil. The wet glaze is wiped with soft cheesecloth in such a way as to remove practically all of it from the flat surfaces, but to leave more or less in carvings, mouldings, etc. The final effect is an almost invisible tint on flat surfaces, shading to deeper tones in parts where glaze has been allowed to remain.

There is not a black antiquing painting procedure which can be used at home. However, there is gold antiquing. This is the application of a gold bronze for the base instead of the white base described above. Over this, use a glaze which has been darkened with burnt umber, or varnish which has been thinned by adding one-fourth as much turpentine and darkened with dark gold color-in-oil.

By using the method described above for antiquing, you could possibly achieve the two-tone color effect you wish. For instance, if you wish two shades of blue, apply light blue for the base coat, sand down when thoroughly dry and tint the glaze with dark blue, wiping it off of the center flat surfaces while wet.

Police Investigate Poisoning of Dogs

3 Animals Dead In One Section Of Falls Church

Fairfax County police yesterday were investigating complaints of a series of dog poisonings in the Jefferson Village section of Falls Church.

Police said they have received reports three dogs have died and four others have become ill in recent weeks in the area around the 500 block of E. Marshall st.

Joseph J. Howard, investigating officer, quoted a veterinary as attributing the death of one dog to strychnine.

Howard related that one of the dogs had been locked in a cellar, and investigation showed a slit in the screen over a window, through which poison possibly may have been tossed.

The Jefferson Village-City Park Citizens Association, which asked police to investigate, will discuss the situation at its meeting next Monday at 8:30 p. m.

Ruling Deferred On Drowning of Ex-Powers Model

Chicago, April 19 (INS).—A coroner's jury today deferred a decision as to whether Marilyn Roble, blond 25-year-old former Powers model, met death in Lake Michigan by murder or suicide.

Miss Roble

Her body, clad in a brassiere, was found yesterday. Detectives searched for her missing clothing in the hope it would provide clews.

Miss Roble died by drowning, and a coroner's physician said cuts on the chin and face apparently were caused by waves which pounded her body against the rocks.

Stewardesses On Planes Need No Leap Year

Seattle (AP).—Denise Ryan, supervisor of stewardesses for Northwest Air Lines, said stewardesses of the line are trading their exciting jobs for trips to the altar nearly as often as they did during the war.

Miss Ryan said of a total of 54 sky girls in the line's western region, 14 were married or announced engagements within the past six months.

Western Air Lines stewardesses have shown reluctance to give up their jobs for marriage, while West Coast Air Lines isn't bothered by the matter. They employ men stewards.

Gov. Tuck Rejects Tax School Plea Of Whitehead

Richmond, Va., April 19 (AP).—Governor Tuck wrote Delegate Robert Whitehead tonight he is not disposed to recommend any further tax increases nor does he intend to call a special Assembly session to provide more money for public school construction.

The Governor's letter was a reply to the Nelson County Delegate's request for prompt action to help localities finance school improvements required by recent Federal court antirace-discrimination decisions.

Tuck told Whitehead the emergency the Delegate referred to in his letter was not a new development and was known to the General Ashembly.

The Governor said he felt the State had met its oblagtion to the schools, considering other urgent demands upon the treasury. He said he felt the matter was one for the localities themselves to work out.

On the race issue he said he was aware some conuties would be required to construct additional Negro school facilities, and felt these areas were entitled to, and would probably get, sufficient time to make the necessary additions.

Alcoholic Drink Taxes for March Up in Maryland

Annapolis, Md., April 19 (AP).—Receipts from State Alcoholic beverage taxes took an upward swing in March, Chief Deputy Comptroller Joseph O'C. McCusker reported today.

But the slight increase over last March failed to raise the total for this fiscal year to the level of last year.

Beverage taxes since July 1, 1947, have brought in $4,639,751. As of March 31 a year ago, they had produced $5,44,968. Only the 20-cent per gallon wine levy and 3-cent beer tax have raised more money than in the previous corresponding period.

The boys put a suitcase in the road, and when curious drivers stopped, jumped out brandishing toy pistols.

They quickly surrendered when the deputies became "victims" and fired at them.

Said the sheriff:

"They were having a lot of fun, but it was scaring the daylights out of curious motorists."

Crisfield Strike Of Crab Pickers Still Unsettled

Crisfield, Md., April 19 (AP).—Settlement of a walkout of 350 seafood plant workers remained up in the air today. Fifteen packing houses have been idle for a week because of a wage dispute with crab pickers.

Business Agent Melvin Tyler of the packing workers' union said there had been no date set for another meeting with company representatives. Tyler said the men were willing to work under a contract running to July 1, "but they won't let us work."

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Reader Suggests New Invention For Don Ameche

We've all heard the complaint of the budding young inventor: "I was born too late. All the great inventions have already been thought of."

Here's one that still needs a Don Ameche to work out its details. It's suggested by Sol Levine of 930 F st. nw., who writes:

"I've just been trying to phone a man whose line has been busy for a long time. Unaware that somebody is trying to get through to him, he's carrying on a long-winded conversation.

"What we need is a signal of some kind, attached to the telephone, to signify that another call is waiting on a line that's in use. Perhaps a light or a buzzer would do the trick."

Or a fire gong, Sol, for the benefit of wives who say, "Now be sure to call me at 6 to tell me when you'll be home for dinner"—and then gab with a girl friend from 6 to 7.

A friend of mine once gave up in disgust and sent his wife a telegram reading, "For Pete's sake, hang up."

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Pop's poem to the contrary, the Nats will finish last regardless of how much you root for them.

And speaking of baseball, how do you account for the recent sports item which said:

"The St. Louis Browns rallied in the ninth to score five runs, but it wasn't enough, and they lost to the Fort Worth Cats, 8 to 2."

What happened to the other two runs?

Phillips Exeter Academy,
Exeter, N. H.

Dear Paul:

The Brownies sold those two runs to the Red Sox to raise enough cash to pay off their bankers.

As to the Nats, I'd like to bet you an ice cream soda that they don't finish last, but I'm afraid Happy Chandler would find out and bar me from the stadium.

Bill.

PERSONAL NOTES

Mrs. J. H. Acklin, 4605 30th st., Mount Rainier, Md.: Since you guessed "Jack in the Pulpit," the announcer revealed that the riddle's answer is "a place." Now what do we do?

Mrs. V. M. Nauman, 513 2d st., Shenandoah, Va.: And it can't be John L. Lewis, either. Any other suggestions?

EXPLANATION

Several readers have asked why our items about signs are captioned "Add Signs."

That's shop talk. The original copy for every newspaper story carries the name of the author and a one-word "slug" line for easy identification.

Thus an item about signs would probably be slugged "signs." Any addition to such a story would be slugged "add signs."

This system sometimes leads to amusing combinations. The able John W. Ball, who admits that he was a cub reporter when movable type was invented, usually writes our stories about the Nation's meat supply. The slug, in those cases, reads "meat—ball."

Alfred Friendly on the atomic bomb might be slugged "friendly—bomb." Dillard Stokes reporting a conflagration could develop into "stokes—fire." And, of course, Marshall Andrews covering a story involving the Secretary of State invariably winds up as "marshall—andrews."

I certainly hope they never send me out to do a story about bricks.

THOUGHT FOR TODAY

F. L. Glascock of Marshall, Va., sagely observes that even in Leap Year, marriage is a hit or miss proposition for a girl.

Either she makes a hit, or she remains a miss.

NEW YORK—Gen. Omar Bradley is signing a contract with Life magazine, for the publication of his writings on the war. It will be a technical military history of the war, and will be ready in 1952 . . . Vladimir Horowitz, who has played in Carnegie Hall countless times, will make his first appearance there as a speaker on April 29. As president of the Rachmaninoff Fund, he'll announce the fund's piano-contest winner . . . Clifford Odets will have another one-man show on 57th st.—the goal of every painter. Twenty-seven water-colors by the playwright will be exhibited at the J. B. Neumann Gallery. . . . The Joe DiMaggio-Toots Shor bit which was cut from "The Naked City" is being used in the trailer.

The ten Hollywood men now being tried in Washington for contempt of Congress have subpenaed the heads of every film studio to testify at their trials. The ten separate trials may last until summer. And unless some settlement is reached, this will be the first time that all Hollywood studios will be functioning without production-executives . . . The writer-defendants, incidentally, banned from working in any studio until they swear they're not Communists, nevertheless have sold some movie-stories to the studios.

Air Force Fight Old Story

By Drew Pearson

Apropos the current row between the Air Forces and the Army-Navy, it is interesting to recall that in 1940 the Army asked Congress for only six Flying Fortresses. This was one year after war broke in Europe, yet the Army still didn't see the need of planes.

FORRESTAL

And had it not been for Congressman Ross Collins of Mississippi who demanded more planes, the Army would have been worse prepared than it was.

Today, President Truman, a former artilleryman, is siding with Secretary Forrestal's Navy and Ground Forces, while Congress—as in 1940—is siding with the Air Force.

Backstage battling between Forrestal and Air Secretary Symington has been even more vitrolic than most people realize. Here is part of the repartee during a locked-door session of the Senate Armed Services Committee between the Air Secretary and the man who is supposed to be his boss:

Symington—"Supposing you take this figure of 15 billion more if the three services get everything they want. That is the figure that went around. It would not be 15 billion, it would be a lot more with the mobilization plan."

Forrestal—"We do not accept that."

Symington—"The Army does. They are talking mobilization. We are not. We are talking peacetime Air Force in the being."

Forrestal—"They are talking a little bit higher than they need talk."

Symington—"The Air Force for three years has said it needed the 70-group program in peacetime and it has never deviated because of the strategic aspect of the 70 groups. We asked this year what we asked for in 1947 and 1948."

Forrestal—"You have to exercise some judgment between extremes. There is a middle ground for judgment which, as I say, I have to rely on the joint chiefs of staff to furnish me with, and they are going to have a very hard wrestling match to do it."

Total Air Strength

In addition to the 70 regular groups, the Air Force is asking for 27 groups for Air National Guard, 34 groups for Air Reserve, 22 squadrons for such activities as reconnaissance, air weather and air communications. The increase from 55 to 70 groups will mean a corresponding increase from 364,000 to 453,000 men by the end of 1949.

If the 70-group program is approved, the Air Force plans on adding 1512 airplanes in fiscal year 1949. The big increase would be in bomber strength. Under the 55-group program the Air Force would be limited to 480 bombers; under the 70-group program this would be increased to 720 bombers.

"That is roughly a 50 per cent increase in our striking force," Gen. "Touhy" Spaatz told the Senators.

"The plane we would like to continue to build," added Symington, "is a modification of the B-29."

He pointed out that the first B-29 had a bomb load of 2000 pounds, whereas the present bomb load is 10,000 pounds. The original range was 3938 miles, the present range is 4100 miles and the expected range is 6945 miles. However, the B-29 already has been flown more than 5000 statute miles with 10,000 pounds of bombs, Symington disclosed.

Romanian Wire-Puller

In a spacious house on Long Island United Nations delegates are entertained by a mysterious Romanian named Vespasien Palla. Dr. Palla came to the United States on the Queen Elizabeth with his own car and chauffeur, now boasts two footmen.

How he does it with Romanian currency under strict control is a mystery. Nevertheless, U. N. delegates are never without champagne and shashlik when they visit Palla's home.

Previously Dr. Palla was Romanian Minister to Switzerland for the Fascist Antonescu government which declared war on the U. S. A. It was this same Antonescu government which slaughtered 300,000 Jews, sent many of their bodies to the I. G. Farben soap factories.

However, Palla now serves the Communist government of Romania, is reported to be close to Anna Pauker, red boss of Romania.

Despite this background, Palla obtained a visa to visit the U. S. A., and believe it or not, is consulted by State Department officials on legal problems. Furthermore, he is the man believed to have engineered the sudden U. S. shift of policy regarding genocide — the massacre of human beings because of race, religion or culture.

The world has seen some ghastly massacres even in modern times, among them the Turkish massacre of the Armenians and Hitler's slaughter of the Jews. Now the United Nations proposes making future mass destruction an international crime.

But suddenly the United States switched its position. Instead of backing a genocide convention with teeth, last week U. S. Delegate John Maktos received new instructions—namely to confine the crime of genocide to governments. This would make the treaty unenforceable, since any government can claim that rioters who massacred Jews, Armenians or Moslems were irresponsible criminals uncontrolled by government.

This sudden switch hasn't received the publicity to our switch on Palestine, but it's just as fundamental, and even more mysterious.

My real worth

The more important part of me . . . Is not what I am worth . . . But how much good my life can do . . . For others on this earth . . . For I may have enormous wealth . . . And carry quite a name . . . And never share a particle . . . Of money or of fame . . . My worldly goods and glory are . . . Of little use to me . . . Unless they bring some benefit . . . To my community . . . Unless I try to overcome . . . My selfishness and pride . . . And show my neighbors that I have . . . A more considerate side . . . The only real, substantial worth . . . That I possess today . . . Is not the sum I gather but . . . How much I give away.

NEW Scientific Discoveries Used in Hair Experts' Exclusive Treatments Help You To GROW THICKER HAIR
Hopeless Cases Not Accepted

R. W. FARRELL, Trichologist

Hair Experts' Scientific Plan Allied with Nature's Functions!
Upon Nature's innate system of growth is based Hair Experts' specialized system . . . a plan that results in thicker hair NATURALLY grown and nurtured to full strength and virility with the aid of modern scientific formulae. First, the scalp is thoroughly and professionally cleansed of its dandruff or other disorders through special, gentle but effective germicides which penetrate below the skin surface to kill the source of the infection and then reopen clogged passages.
Then when the basic cause of the scalp trouble is routed, Hair Experts begin the rejuvenating treatments that start to show actual results within weeks.
Special Exclusive Laboratory Created Formulae Used ONLY by Hair Experts!
After energizing the papilla to action, and then creating a fertile "field" for that growth, Hair Experts' special formulae (scientifically created by and for them) stimulate the sub-scalp hair growth to normal, natural length, strength and thickness. Then sluggish blood circulation is normalized to flood the hair follicles with life-giving "food" for hair growth.
Delay Is Deadly! Fatal Follicle Shrinkage May Negate Any Treatments!
Once your hair begins to show these symptoms: excessive hair in the combings; weak, short hair; excessive dandruff; itchiness, etc., you can be sure that a scalp disorder is already well under way. Follicle shrinkage is fatal!
Once it has set in your chance for thicker hair is practically negligible! Come in IMMEDIATELY for a free, private scalp examination. Relax under our pleasant, professional treatments and care, and enjoy THICKER HAIR within a few months.
